Joe Would Study Viet Conditions

Ellenville Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, just returned from Vietnam and scheduled to meet the press in Poughkeepsie Friday, today called for a citizen's commission to evaluate conditions and events in Southeast Asia.

Resnick is expected to expand his views on Vietnam at two press conferences tomorrow. He will meet with newsmen of the Mid-Hudson Valley 10 a. m. Friday at his Poughkeepsie office. Another conference is scheduled 4:30 p. m. at the Thruway Motel in Albany.

Today in Washington, the congressman said the citizen's commission would help Americans share and understand Vietnam and other world problems.

Resnick recently returned from a four-week tour of nine Southeast Asian countries, told a news conference Wednesday he would urge President Johnson to create such a commission, to be composed of leading newspaper editors and other opinion molders.

The controversy over Vietnam, Resnick said, can best be understood by viewing it in context with the other nations in that part of the world.

U. S. infantrymen pursue North Vietnams who tried to overrun three bases near Da Nang. Report Communist death toll in five South Vietnam provinces at least 400 since truce ended Tuesday. Story on Page 32.

The effect of his proposed commission would be to help end squabbling which, he said, now characterizes some of the attempts to discuss the events in Vietnam.

U. S. policy in Vietnam, he added, is supported in Southeast Asia much more widely than most Americans realize.

Some leaders in the area, he said, who have refrained from taking a public position, are privately outspoken in their support of the U. S. position. They say that any American withdrawal from Vietnam would hand over the entire region to Communist China — "a development that all of them fear," Resnick said.

Resnick also told reporters he is very encouraged by the reaction to his candidacy for New York's Democratic senatorial nomination. He is the only announced candidate for the post.

The trip to Southeast Asia, he said, had helped his candidacy because "it gives me a little credibility."

At the same time, he criticized congressional critics of U. S. Vietnamese policy for their failure to see firsthand what is going on in that nation.

Specifically, he mentioned Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D. Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; and Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D. Minn. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and Jacob K. Javits, R. N.Y., as among those who have not visited Vietnam in recent years.

Resnick said he had neither asked for, nor received, administration support for his candidacy.

Rocky on the $500 Million:

Income and Business Taxes Targets

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller has decided to seek a major increase in the state income tax, rather than the sales tax, it was reported today.

Highly placed sources said the Republican governor also had made a firm decision to ask the Legislature to raise business taxes.

These were said to be his devices for finding the $500 million in extra revenue needed — he told the lawmakers Wednesday — to provide more state aid for education, Medicaid and other welfare programs.

By no coincidence, they happen to be the main elements in a tax - increase plan suggested last month by State Comptroller Arthur Levitt.

The sources said Rockefeller was delighted that Levitt had spoken up and that he intended to give the Democratic officeholder "full credit" in his budget message.

Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson and Sen. Jay P. Rolison Jr. were somewhat split in their reaction to Gov. Rockefeller's message to the State Legislature yesterday. Story on Page 6.

Levitt's main proposals were for a 20 per cent surcharge on the income tax — that is, raising everyone's payment by 20 per cent — and an increase of about 18 per cent in business taxes. He estimated these moves would produce between $500 million and $520 million in new revenue.

The sources said Rockefeller had decided to adopt both proposals, although there was some possibility the percentages might be changed.

Levitt took both Republicans and Democrats by surprise when he volunteered his tax-increase ideas in mid-December. Republican leaders in the government, notably Rockefeller, saw Levitt's move as a pre-Christmas political gift. It meant they could advance a tax plan along these lines and claim Democratic parentage for it.

Democratic legislative leaders quickly sought to disown Levitt's ideas, because of the negative political angle.

Now they are questioning whether Rockefeller really needs a major tax increase, as he contended in Wednesday's "State of the State" message to the opening session of the 1968 Legislature.

Speaker Anthony J. Travia, Democratic boss of the Assembly, said he was not convinced. "If he thinks a $500-million increase is necessary this year," Travia said, "he is going to have to prove it in a way his message doesn't even begin to approach."

Rockefeller said he probably could manage a budget of around $5 billion with existing financial resources but that more state aid should be supplied and this would require another $500 million.

The Senate's Democratic minority leader, Joseph Zaretzki, said Rockefeller ought to make do without a tax boost. He said he would not vote for an income or sales tax increase but might be willing to raise business taxes.

The Legislature's ranking Republicans, Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges and Assembly Minority Leader Perry B. Duryea Jr., praised Rockefeller's message but were noncommittal on the tax question.

List New Tax Rates For Towns

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

The tax rate of county charges to be added to the individual tax rates of each of the 20 towns in the county were revealed today.

The first rate listed next to each town is the new rate and the second rate is last year's figure for comparison.

Denning 88.97—60.51; Esopus 49.43—33.62; Gardiner 74.14—50.43; Hardenbergh 32.95—22.41; Hurley 40.44—27.51; Kingston Town 44.48—31.85; Lloyd 42.37—28.81; Marlborough 38.68—26.31; Marlboro 46.83—31.85; New Paltz 68.44—46.55; Olive 63.55—46.55; Plattekill 148.29—100.85; Rochester 31.78—21.61; Rosendale 68.44—46.55; Saugerties 63.55—43.22; Shandaken 29.66—20.17; Shawangunk 44.49—30.26; Ulster 63.55—43.08; Wawarsing 55.61—35.60; and Woodstock 68.44—46.55.

Each township will be advised of the county charges rate and the rate for county highway charges. This will permit the printing of tax bills in preparation for mailing as soon as the State Legislature validates the $15 million county budget adopted by the Board of Supervisors December 28.

The huge increase evident in county charges has been attributed to the increased costs of welfare and Medicaid payments. This year the county also made many adjustments in salaries of employees under the recommendations of Hanawalt Associates who conducted a county salary study.

A Rosendale SOS to State

On Year-End Fund Report

By LYNN MULVANEY

The aid of the state attorney general's office is being sought by the Town of Rosendale to determine what measures should be taken to secure a 1967 year-end financial report from former Justice of the Peace Daniel J. McManagle.

The town, unable to complete its audit for 1967 because it does not have McManagle's records, is sending a telegram to State Attorney General Louis Lefkowitz stating that the town clerk, Catherine O'Leary, has twice asked McManagle for his records and that he has not cooperated.

"The books are a necessity. They are required by law," Supervisor Gerard DeFelice told the town board meeting last night. "We cannot complete the audit of town fiscal affairs without them."

DeFelice later also admonished McManagle for not having attended any town board meetings since a GOP caucus in September during which he lost the GOP nomination to be a candidate for reelection in November.

McManagle was resoundingly defeated in the caucus, 123 to 25, by Edward Brosky who later was defeated in the election by the now incumbent Democrat Justice Wilfred Doolittle.

Another newcomer, seated at last night's organizational meeting of the board, was Councilman Glenn A. DeBrosky, a Republican.

Planning for the year ahead, De Felice asked the board to "open its eyes toward welfare" which now accounts for about 50 per cent of the county budget. "I hate to see us (Rosendale) held back in our growth program because of excessive welfare costs," he said.

"The water was knee deep," Mrs. Marabell said. Firemen are shown pushing the water into Wall Street. The ceiling collapsed under the weight of the water. Mrs. Marabell said no estimate of the damage was available. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

Consideration to the building of a new town hall was mentioned with an accompanying "wait and see" attitude.

DeFelice made committee appointments as follows: Town Building, Justice Raymond LeFever and Justice Wilfred Doolittle; constables, Councilman Harry Snyder and Councilman Glenn DeBrosky; town highway and equipment, Snyder, LeFever; recreation, DeBrosky, Snyder and Doolittle; Perrine Bridge, Snyder; planning board, DeBrosky; junk cars, DeBrosky.

The board passed a resolution which requires Rosendale, the Town of Esopus and the County Board of Legislators to act as agents for the administration of funds for the preservation of Perrine's Bridge.

Announcement was made of the purchase of a small building for the dump custodian at $200 and $40 for moving expense.

De Felice also asked the board to consider the purchase of a new pay loader and a copying machine during 1968.

Yerry to 14th Term

Senior Housing Reviewed

Final plans for the construction of 32 units of Senior Citizen Housing adjacent to Colonial Gardens are being reviewed by the New York State Division of Housing. Specifications for bidding are expected to be available early next month, according to George E. Yerry Jr., chairman of the Kingston Housing Authority.

At yesterday's annual meeting of the authority, at which Yerry was elected chairman for the 14th consecutive term, he said that the authority has received a $450,000 reservation of funds for construction of the project from the State Division of Housing.

He advised that representatives from the Housing Assistance Administration have visited Kingston and have inspected a number of houses that the Authority is contemplating buying under the recently approved Rehabilitation Housing Program.

The houses are located in the Seventh and Eighth Wards in the same area designated by the Common Council as an urban renewal housing code enforcement area.

Alexander Yosman, executive director of the authority, said last year 21 families moved from Colonial Gardens and one from Wiltwyck Gardens. Of the 21, 13 purchased homes. He noted that since 1953 when Colonial Gardens opened, 282 families have moved, with 141 of that number purchasing homes.

Yosman advised that the authority currently has $101,766 invested in its reserve fund for Colonial and Wiltwyck Gardens. The funds are invested in local banks and in government securities and are used to keep up the property in order that it be in good condition when turned over to the city at the end of the 50-year contract. The Authority pays the city taxes based on the assessed valuation at the time the property was acquired. Interest in the amount of $31,732.15 has been earned to date.

Yosman reported that there have been no rents or charges outstanding nor any vacancy losses on any of the developments operated by the Authority since its opening. Colonial Gardens was opened in 1953 and Wiltwyck Gardens in 1966. A progress report was given on Rondout Gardens in which summer occupancy is expected. To date $613,000, has been expended on construction and interest earned on investment of construction funds, $17,260.

Also elected were Benjamin A. Storms, vice chairman; Oscar V. Newkirk, treasurer; Robert P. Slover, secretary and Dorris Dabney Sr., assistant secretary. Members of the authority serve without pay. Harry Gold was reappointed counsel.

Courts Await Ray's OK of City Reapportionment Plan

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Kingston reapportionment, mandated by the U. S. Supreme Court ruling of one-man-for-one-vote, now returns to the courts after twice being rejected.

The Common Council approved the latest reapportionment plan on Dec. 22. There was no opposition at a public hearing yesterday and Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan is expected to sign the measure within the next few days. It will then return to State Supreme Court Justice T. Paul Kane.

Reapportionment in Kingston has a short but unsuccessful history. The first order to reapportion came in December, 1966 growing out of a citizen's suit by Harry Thayer and Robert Davis against the Common Council of Kingston was organized from unequal districts in violation of the one-man, one-vote mandate of the U. S. Supreme Court.

Judge Kane of the Third Judicial Department of the State Supreme Court then ordered reapportionment to be done under his (Kane's) scrutiny and supervision.

The Council came up with a reapportionment plan using a local head count. The 13 new wards were numerically equal.

Judge Kane, however, rejected the local plan in February, 1967 and submitted his own plan which called for four districts with 11 aldermen. Three of the districts would have three representatives while the fourth would have two. Candidates would run at large within their districts.

City Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein appealed Judge Kane's decision and proved successful as the Appellate Court reversed Kane by a 5-0 vote.

The appellate court also rejected the Kingston head count and ordered the city to reapportionment on the 1960 official federal census. This has been done.

Chairman of the Common Council Reapportionment Committee was Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward). He worked closely with Corporation Counsel Klein, who, in an exclusive Freeman interview, outlined reapportionment procedures.

According to Klein, there are very few precise guidelines. Generally, it is advised that whenever possible districts should be made up in contiguous areas. Districts should not appear bizarre such as one with a peculiar meandering cut running through it.

All districts should be equal as possible within reason. Kingston had problems since it has within its limits, creeks, wide open spaces, several cemeteries, a golf course and farm land.

Klein has confidence in this plan and is more than hopeful for its approval. Before submitting it to the Common Council he and City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle took it to the attorney general's office in Albany where Gov. Rockefeller has set up a sort of clearing house on reapportionment to aid municipalities. Klein said officials in Albany found Kingston's plan "entirely satisfactory."

Boundary Description

The following is a brief description of Kingston's ward

First Ward

Beginning at St. James Street, south to Green Street into Converse Street and into the center line of the Esopus Creek. It then runs east along an imaginary line connecting Albany Avenue with the Esopus Creek.

Second Ward

Running north on Albany Avenue to the city line and then southeast on Foxhall Avenue to New York Central Railroad tracks. It follows the tracks to Broadway, then west on Broadway to the point of beginning near the arterial.

Third Ward

Begins at railroad tracks on Foxhall Avenue, down Foxhall to East Chester Street, up East Chester Street north to Flatbush Avenue where it crosses the city line. Up Flatbush to Foxhall.

Fourth Ward

Beginning at corner of East Chester Street and Broadway south on Broadway to Delaware Avenue. Down Hasbrouck Avenue to East Union

In New Hampshire

Romney Ready to Face Nixon

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney, who concedes he trails Richard M. Nixon in popularity polls, "may be a setup" for Nixon in New Hampshire's Republican presidential primary, says a liberal GOP group.

The Ripon Society said in its current newsletter a Nixon-Romney contest in New Hampshire could be similar to the West Virginia Democratic primary of 1960 in which John F. Kennedy defeated Hubert H. Humphrey.

Humphrey quit the presidential race after that defeat and Kennedy went on to win the nomination and the White House.

"Romney may be a setup for Nixon just as Humphrey was for Kennedy," the Ripon Society said. "As John Kennedy demonstrated in 1960, a landslide victory, even over an opponent who never really had a chance, can be made a convincing selling point in the campaign for delegate votes in other states."

Wednesday in New York after completing his foreign tour. "I am an underdog and I have an uphill battle. I'm not accustomed to this."

Before flying home, he told Paris reporters who asked him to comment on public opinion polls showing him further behind Nixon now than last June: "Oh, I think that's a reflection of the press more than the people."

"I think the press has been very negative for a long time toward me...And I think when I indicate what I believe in and what I stand for that I can change that picture."

Romney heads for New Hampshire Jan. 11 to open his campaign and is scheduled to visit at least eight communities that day. He's expected to spend five days on his initial campaign trip. He has made it clear he plans a campaign which will bring him in personal touch with as many voters as possible in that small state "so they will see what I have." The primary is March 12.

The Ripon Society published a poll taken among readers of its newsletter, The Forum, with 60 per cent rating New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller their first choice for the GOP nomination. It reported 78 per cent of the readers responding consider Rockefeller the Republican most likely to defeat President Johnson. But 70.6 per cent of the same liberal Republicans said Nixon has the best chance of winning the nomination. Rockefeller maintains he won't seek it.

The society said the poll's most noteworthy result was Romney's "poor showing"—he was ranked fourth choice for the nomination. The society said readers of its newsletter could be expected to be receptive to Romney's candidacy and "this lack of support from his most immediate ideological constituency reveals a serious weakness in Romney's drive for the nomination."

McCarthy to Enter
Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, who also plans to enter the New Hampshire primary but on the Democratic side, said he doesn't have any clear indication what kind of showing he can make against President Johnson on the Vietnam issue.

McCarthy, who opposes the war policy told an interviewer his decision to run in New Hampshire means he will have to give up tentative plans for a foreign trip.

Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, assured a place on California's presidential ballot for his American Independent Party, told a Santa Monica, Calif., news conference he thinks his party will get on the ballot in all 50 states.

Court Upholds Trooper

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A state trooper "was performing his duty" when he gave chase after an automobile fleeing against oncoming traffic and the state is not liable for the ensuing fatal collision of the fleeing car and another vehicle, an appellate court says.

In a 3-2 decision, the State Supreme Court's Appellate Division held that "it was the reckless driving of the pursued" that caused the accident. Nathan L. Stanton, a New York City stockbroker, was killed in the crash, on the Quickway between Liberty and Monticello in 1961.

In dissenting opinions, Presiding Justice James Gibson and Associate Justice Dominic Gabrielli said the trooper should have discontinued the chase when his car drew abreast of the fleeing car.

Gabrielli said Trooper R. W. Radloff should have given up the pursuit "for the safety of all persons."

The court's ruling upheld a Court of Claims dismissal of a $600,000 suit against the state brought by Stanton's family, who contended that the trooper displayed "negligence" when pursuing the car, driven by Thomas Hayden of Kingston.

The family also said the trooper should have taken car keys away from Hayden when the latter was stopped for a traffic check. While the trooper turned his attention to the traffic, Hayden took off in the wrong lane. The trooper gave chase after Hayden at speeds up to 100 miles an hour.

Associate Justice Ellis J. Stanley Jr., in the majority opinion, said: "We do not believe...that the state is liable for the damage occasioned by a fleeing lawbreaker while being pursued by a state trooper who was performing his duty."

In New Hampshire

Romney Ready to Face Nixon

By WALTER R. MEARS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan Gov. George Romney, who concedes he trails Richard M. Nixon in popularity polls, "may be a setup" for Nixon in New Hampshire's Republican presidential primary, says a liberal GOP group.

The Ripon Society said in its current newsletter a Nixon-Romney contest in New Hampshire could be similar to the West Virginia Democratic primary of 1960 in which John F. Kennedy defeated Hubert H. Humphrey.

Humphrey quit the presidential race after that defeat and Kennedy went on to win the nomination and the White House.

"Romney may be a setup for Nixon just as Humphrey was for Kennedy," the Ripon Society said. "As John Kennedy demonstrated in 1960, a landslide victory, even over an opponent who never really had a chance, can be made a convincing selling point in the campaign for delegate votes in other states."

The January grand jury was sworn in Wednesday in Supreme Court by Supreme Court Justice Roscoe V. Elsworth.

William F. Elgee of Marlboro was designated foreman and Bertha Quinn of Kingston, acting foreman. Frederick D. Linhart of Kingston was named clerk.

Wednesday in New York after completing his foreign tour: "I am an underdog and I have an uphill battle. I'm not unaccustomed to this."

Before flying home, he told Paris reporters who asked him to comment on public opinion polls showing him further behind Nixon now than last June: "Oh, I think that's a reflection of the press more than the people."

"I think the press has been very negative for a long time toward me. And I think when I indicate what I believe in and what I stand for that I can change that picture."

Romney heads for New Hampshire Jan. 11 to open his campaign and is scheduled to visit at least eight communities that day. He's expected to spend five days on his initial campaign trip. He has made it clear he plans a campaign which will bring him in personal touch with as many voters as possible in that small state "so they will see what I have."

Recognition of Bargaining Agents Due

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Action is expected to be taken by the Board of Education of the Kingston School District (Consolidated) at the January meeting to officially recognize negotiating bargaining agents of two non-instruction groups selected by employees at elections conducted last month.

The regular meeting of the Board is scheduled for today at 8:30 p. m. at the George Washington School, after the executive meeting of the school board members, which convenes at 7:30 p. m.

Selected in Run-off
A resolution is expected to be approved to recognize the Civil Service Employees' Association as the sole bargaining agent for the Custodial and Cafeteria Personnel in the Kingston consolidated school system. The CSEA was selected by that group at a run-off election held on Dec. 19 under the supervision of the American Association of Arbitrators, Inc. At an earlier election on Dec. 12 the results of voting showed no majority and the second election was scheduled.

The Board also is expected to take action at tonight's meeting to officially recognize the Educational Secretaries of Kingston Area as the sole bargaining agent for Secretarial and Administrative Support Personnel units in the consolidated school district. The ESKA was elected by that group at an election on Dec. 12.

In other business, the Board is expected to take action on bids received last month for the construction of the new Zena Elementary School. If approval of the bids has not been received from the State Department of Education, it is understood that letters of intent will be issued for the work pending state approval.

Low bid for general construction was submitted by Stanley R. Benjamin, Inc., Long Beach, in the amount of $819,940. The second low estimate came from William Forrest, Poughkeepsie. The bid was $823,000. The low bid for heating and ventilating was submitted by Tougher Heating & Plumbing, Menands. The estimate was $142,200.

Other Low Bids

C. B. Strain & Son, Saugerties — $81,800; Sprinkler work: Port Sprinkler Corp., of Albany, $14,976; Kitchen work — Lewis Equipment Co., of Albany, $11,100.

The agenda for tonight's meeting also includes reports from committee chairmen and district officers, and the superintendent's report by Dr. W. Wendell Hoover.

HEART PATIENT — Dr. Philip Blaiberg is shown at Groote Schuur Hospital in Capetown, South Africa shortly after he became the world's third heart transplant patient. The patient has been listed in good condition since the operation. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Progress Is Good, Heart Man Gains

By DAVID J. PAINE

CAPE TOWN (AP) — South Africa's second man to get a transplanted heart was reported getting along fine today. Meanwhile, the National Broadcasting Company went to court in an attempt to protect a contract for exclusive television coverage of the historic medical event.

In a morning bulletin, Groote Schuur Hospital said the condition of Dr. Philip Blaiberg, in whose chest the heart of a young factory worker was grafted Tuesday, "is very good."

Good Progress Made

He is making satisfactory progress," the bulletin said. "He is fully conscious. He has had no solid foods yet, but generally he is in very good spirits."

The bulletin gave no other details, but Dr. Jacobus Burger, medical superintendent of the hospital, said chances that Blaiberg's body would reject the alien heart was "very remote."

A hospital spokesman said the 58-year-old retired dentist began taking fluids by mouth Wednesday, less than 24 hours after the five-hour operation. The spokesman said he might be given some soft-boiled egg today.

Blaiberg is expected to remain in an oxygen tent for another three or four days. He was under constant observation, with checks being made on his pulse rate and blood pressure at least every half hour. His blood gases are analyzed twice daily, and the chemical content of the blood is tested every four hours.

The hospital spokesman said to guard against infection and too much emotion, Blaiberg would not be allowed to see his wife for several days.

The spokesman also said that radioactive cobalt treatment to counteract the body's natural tendency to reject a foreign object—the transplanted heart—would begin within a few days.

Dr. Christian Barnard, who headed the surgical team for the transplant on Blaiberg and for medical history's first recorded heart transplant Dec. 3 on Louis Washkansky, had indicated that Blaiberg would be given less antirejection treatment than Washkansky. The treatment was believed a factor conducive to the pneumonia which killed Washkansky 18 days after the operation.

Meanwhile, the National Broadcasting Company went to court in an attempt to block a South African photographer who it said threatened to infringe on its contract with Blaiberg and his wife for exclusive photo coverage and interviews before, during and after the operation.

NBC said it contracted with Dr. and Mrs. Blaiberg last Friday to pay them $9,000 for exclusive films and interviews before the operation, $25,000 for "publication of the first exclusive film or pictures of the operation," and $16,000 for exclusive coverage afterward.

Dr. Barnard refused to permit NBC to photograph the operation, and court sources said this apparently would reduce the Blaibergs' take $25,000. But NBC in an affidavit to the Supreme Court said photographer Don McKenzie slipped into the gallery of the operating theater and made photographs of the operation before Dr. M.C. Botha, a member of the surgical team, ejected him.

Justice Basil F.J. Banks issued an order temporarily restraining McKenzie from selling or disposing of photographs relating to the operation. He was ordered to appear for a hearing Jan. 17 to determine whether the restraining order should be made permanent.

Recognition of Bargaining Agents Due

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Action is expected to be taken by the Board of Education of the Kingston School District (Consolidated) at the January meeting to officially recognize negotiating bargaining agents of two non-instruction groups selected by employees at elections conducted last month.

The regular meeting of the Board is scheduled for today at 8:30 p. m. at the George Washington School, after the executive meeting of the school board members, which convenes at 7:30 p. m.

Selected in Run-off
A resolution is expected to be approved to recognize the Civil Service Employees' Association as the sole bargaining agent for the Custodial and Cafeteria Personnel in the Kingston consolidated school system. The CSEA was selected by that group at a run-off election held on Dec. 19 under the supervision of the American Association of Arbitrators, Inc. At an earlier election on Dec. 12 the results of voting showed no majority and the second election was scheduled.

The Board also is expected to take action at tonight's meeting to officially recognize the Educational Secretaries of Kingston Area as the sole bargaining agent for Secretarial and Administrative Support Personnel units in the consolidated school district. The ESKA was elected by that group at an election on Dec. 12.

In other business, the Board is expected to take action on bids received last month for the construction of the new Zena Elementary School. If approval of the bids has not been received from the State Department of Education, it is understood that letters of intent will be issued for the work pending state approval.

Low bid for general construction was submitted by Stanley R. Benjamin, Inc., Long Beach, in the amount of $819,940. The second low estimate came from William Forrest, Poughkeepsie. The bid was $823,000. The low bid for heating and ventilating was submitted by Tougher Heating & Plumbing, Menands. The estimate was $142,200.

Other Low Bids

C. B. Strain & Son, Saugerties — $81,800; Sprinkler work: Port Sprinkler Corp., of Albany, $14,976; Kitchen work — Lewis Equipment Co., of Albany, $11,989.

The agenda for tonight's meeting also includes reports from committee chairmen and district officers, and the superintendent's report by Dr. W. Wendell Hoover.

HEART PATIENT — Dr. Philip Blaiberg is shown at Groote Schuur Hospital in Capetown, South Africa shortly after he became the world's third heart transplant patient. The patient has been listed in good condition since the operation. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Progress Is Good, Heart Man Gains

By DAVID J. PAINE

CAPE TOWN (AP) — South Africa's second man to get a transplanted heart was reported getting along fine today. Meanwhile, the National Broadcasting Company went to court in an attempt to protect a contract for exclusive television coverage of the historic medical event.

In a morning bulletin, Groote Schuur Hospital said the condition of Dr. Philip Blaiberg, in whose chest the heart of a young factory worker was grafted Tuesday, "is very good."

Good Progress Made

He is making satisfactory progress," the bulletin said. "He is fully conscious. He has had no solid foods yet, but generally he is in very good spirits."

The bulletin gave no other details, but Dr. Jacobus Burger, medical superintendent of the hospital, said chances that Blaiberg's body would reject the alien heart was "very remote."

A hospital spokesman said the 58-year-old retired dentist began taking fluids by mouth Wednesday, less than 24 hours after the five-hour operation. The spokesman said he might be given some soft-boiled egg today.

Blaiberg is expected to remain in an oxygen tent for another three or four days. He was under constant observation, with checks being made on his pulse rate and blood pressure at least every half hour. His blood gases are analyzed twice daily, and the chemical content of the blood is tested every four hours.

The hospital spokesman said to guard against infection and too much emotion, Blaiberg would not be allowed to see his wife for several days.

The spokesman also said that radioactive cobalt treatment to counteract the body's natural tendency to reject a foreign object—the transplanted heart—would begin within a few days. Dr. Christian Barnard, who headed the surgical team for the transplant on Blaiberg and for medical history's first recorded heart transplant Dec. 3 on Louis Washkansky, had indicated that Blaiberg would be given less antirejection treatment than Washkansky. The treatment was believed a factor conducive to the pneumonia which killed Washkansky 18 days after the operation.

Meanwhile, the National Broadcasting Company went to court in an attempt to block a South African photographer who it said threatened to infringe on its contract with Blaiberg and his wife for exclusive photo coverage and interviews before, during and after the operation.

NBC said it contracted with Dr. and Mrs. Blaiberg last Friday to pay them $9,000 for exclusive films and interviews before the operation, $25,000 for "publication of the first exclusive film or pictures of the operation," and $15,000 for exclusive coverage afterward.

Dr. Barnard refused to permit NBC to photograph the operation, and court sources said this apparently would reduce the Blaibergs' take to $25,000. But NBC in an affidavit to the Supreme Court said photographer Don McKenzie slipped into the gallery of the operating theater and made photographs of the operation before Dr. M.C. Botha, a member of the surgical team, ejected him.

Justice Basil F.J. Banks issued an order temporarily restraining McKenzie from selling or disposing of photographs relating to the operation. He was ordered to appear for a hearing Jan. 17 to determine whether the restraining order should be made permanent.

Poor Snow Removal

Now that we have had a real taste of winter and a good idea of what to expect in the days ahead, officials in charge of our streets and highways should bestir themselves and see that the equipment is in working order for adequate handling of the snow and ice.

The problem of dangerous streets and roads from snow and ice can be met by a carefully planned system, which among other things calls for prompt action and intelligent use of manpower and equipment. One method of efficient snow removal before the streets become blocked with snow is to battle the storms while they are in progress. Waiting for a few days until the streets are buried under huge drifts is not the efficient way to operate.

The same is true of icy street conditions. Don't wait until there is a big tie up of cars on hills and grades or crashes of motor vehicles before sanding the streets. Knowledge of local conditions and experience of this first storm should help in the matter of treating streets.

Our public works department should get out on the job in time. Before we get all tangled up with another storm, let's plan now to handle it.

Postal Boost; Junk Mail

Remember the penny post card? It now will cost five cents. All classes of mail will be affected by the postal hike agreed upon by Congress and after signature by the President to go into effect January 7.

First class mail will be boosted from five to six cents; airmail from eight to 10 cents; bulk mail from 2.7 to 3.6 cents.

But Congress hasn't done anything about the junk mail, which clutters up post office departments and weighs down the mail carrier.

The postal rate increase will, in effect, subsidize junk mail, which has become a nuisance to many Americans. First class mail pays its own way with a little left over.

Me-Tooism Rejected

The liberal Eastern wing of the Republican party is in a state of disarray. While the party has won 26 state houses, only four of them are in the East. Five are South or Border states, six Midwest and 11 Far West. They are largely states fed up with liberalism. Since these 26 states with Republican Governors will send 760 delegates to the Miami convention out of a total of 1,333, they can dictate the nomination.

The trouble is that these states also reflect the diversity of their regional interests. They were not able to agree on a nominee at their winter meeting. They balked when the Easterners under Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island, chairman of the Republican Governors Association, wanted to challenge the designation of moderate Senator Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois to be chairman of the Convention Platform Committee.

The truth is that more and more people are disillusioned with the liberalism that has ruled the nation since Franklin D. Roosevelt swept the New Deal philosophy of spend and spend and tax and tax into the politico-economic lexicon. The swing is not full cycle. Barry Goldwater would still be ahead of his time were he a figure in the coming election. But people are wondering why they are no better off, though they are making more money than ever; they are wondering if they must continually pay for the support of millions who should support themselves; they are wondering if chaos and crime and disorder are not too great a luxury.

For the first time in a decade, the Gallup poll found that people believe that the Republican party is best able to cope with the problems of the day—war in Vietnam, racial disorder, crime in the streets, the rising cost of living, among others. This response, if it is reflected in the national voting, indicates people are not going to want to vote for a Republican candidate who has nothing more to offer than me-tooism.

The National Committee for an Effective Congress, a nonpartisan group, confirms this thinking. Its latest analysis suggests that "Traditional appeals to economic well-being and promises to remedy specific grievances do not invoke the cheers they once did. America has experienced two great internal crises in her history: The Civil War and the Economic Depression of the 1930s. The country may be on the brink of a third trauma, a depression of the national spirit. At all levels of American life, people share similar fears, insecurities, and gnawing doubts to such an intense degree that the country may be suffering from a kind of national nervous breakdown."

There is one other factor that may play a large role in the national election. That is, that labor is no longer a political pawn to be led by the nose by demagogic appeals. The rank and file thinks for itself. Its interests are broad. Politically, it is part of the mainstream.

These are some of the reasons why the usual measures of politics are not applicable at this stage of the game. The electorate is looking for a sure hand to lead the country. It will not be satisfied with less.

"---But I'm Married, Still In School, Am Over 26 And I Have A Real Bad Cold!"

David Lawrence Says

LBJ's Unique Experience Helped Shake Tactics

WASHINGTON — Lots of things have been said or written about Lyndon Johnson and the kind of President he is, and undoubtedly public opinion will be affected to some extent in the election year 1968 by the "image" of the Chief Executive which has been portrayed by the press and by TV commentators in the last five years.

There is one thing, however, about Mr. Johnson's course in the White House which has not been presented objectively to the public. He must be appraised in relation to the background of his career prior to becoming Vice President. He is the first man in this century to reach the White House after having spent 24 years in Congress—12 consecutive years in the House of Representatives and 12 more in the United States Senate. During six of those latter years, he was the majority leader of the Senate and dealt constantly on legislative matters with a president from the opposite political party.

Unquestionably this unique experience had an influence in shaping Mr. Johnson's tactics when, as President of the United States, he himself was confronted with deep divisions in both parties. Rarely has a president prior to Mr. Johnson been elected previously to a leadership position by his party in Congress.

Mr. Johnson's political strategy in the presidency is very much like that which legislative leaders in Congress have from time to time found it expedient to practice in trying to reconcile differences of opinion not only inside but outside their party. The customary method is to endeavor to compromise or find some common denominator on which there can be agreement. Highly controversial sections of proposed laws are left for favorable action at a later time.

Lyndon Johnson's tenure in the Presidency has often been marked by his attempts to follow a "consensus"—an effort to do what the people generally would like at the moment rather than what may prove best for the country in the long run. The politician is more inclined to think of public opinion in the few months ahead as election day approaches either for Congress or the Presidency.

As for the "credibility gap" which critics have talked about, there really isn't much difference in the disclosure or withholding of information than what has been noted in other administrations. The tendency of high officials to give news to the public when there is a completed act or a definite step taken, rather than to tell the press each day in piecemeal fashion the details of an incomplete discussion or negotiation. No administration should be held responsible for the leaks, misinterpretations or anonymous comments picked up and broadcast in the meantime.

In international affairs particularly, when delicate matters are being handled through embassies and legations abroad or when foreign ambassadors convey to the State Department in Washington some confidential data, it is difficult—and actually at times unwise—for a President to give out the whole story at once without waiting for a decision to be reached. Premature publicity could have adverse psychological effects in other countries at a critical stage of negotiations.

Mr. Johnson is an unusual President in some respects, as he has had to become involved in more policies, programs and projects than his predecessors had to tackle. This is due to the complexity of American life, resulting from a rapidly expanding population.

So Mr. Johnson's approach is inevitably political. This is something which is not likely to change under the existing presidential system, especially since all the members of the House of Representatives and a third of the Senate have to be elected every two years. Mr. Johnson is often referred to as a master politician, but craftiness is not easy to abolish when dealing with 535 politicians in Congress who have the power to pass the laws and furnish the funds that a President needs in order to perform his duties. Lyndon Johnson is the natural product of a congressional environment.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

A man warms his hands on the radiant face of his wife. His sagging morale lifts at sight of her. Nothing in nature can move a man—upward or downward—like a woman. He is noble or he is vicious because of her. She pours love and faith. He drinks it like a wanderer on a desert.

Then why can't I understand daughters? I have four. What constitutes the feline mystique in little girls that dissipates when they are married? Why, at age five, do they test their claws and purrs on father when they do not yet realize what claws and purrs are? And why, at age 13, do they feel that they are in competition with mother for the old man?

This, my friends, is a subject worthy of a lot of questions and few answers. Girls realize that they are females long before boys realize that they are males. They will crouch between mother's knees as the never-ending brush strokes of the hair tear through the knots. They will cry if there is a spot, or a wrinkle, to mar a pretty dress.

They even know what color matches, and what doesn't. When father is out of sorts they know when to approach timidly, when to cuddle and kiss and make him feel like a king of the realm. There is even a built-in desire to be "good." Girls led every class I ever attended: Helen Walsh, Catherine Douglas, and Mary Daniels. The boys were so stupid they didn't even resent it.

The last of my girls is a young lady. No one told me; no one tells me anything. I just happened to notice heels on the shoes, a bra hanging off a bed and a certain type of walk that reminded me of a girl I once saw at Minsky's.

"What's the matter with you?" I said. Kathy lifted her head with a certain disdain. "Nothing," she said. "Nothing at all."

It's like that. No matter what I ask, the response is "Nothing." When Kelly and the kittens are in conference, I say cheerfully: "What's going on?" and the response is a chorus: "Nothing." The three of them are in a perpetual frenzy doing nothing.

In India, I stopped at Agra to buy a pair of amethyst earrings for Kathy when she is old enough to wear them. She burst into tears. "What's the matter?" "Nothing," she said. "I asked to go to a party of boys and girls. I said 'No. More Nothing.' " "Nothing," she said. "How, the earrings and the missed party equate. Don't ask me how. If I knew, I wouldn't be writing a column. I'd be remodeling heads in a psychiatrist's office."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frechette send a photo of themselves with their seven children, and Kelly cries. Robin and Pamela, the identical twins, and Jim, Kevin, Chipper and Chris, the Indians, appear to be happy and bright. Pamela, a year and a half old, perches on her mother's knee with bow in her hair. My wife weeps. Why? "Nothing."

Once, Mrs. Charles Frechette was all mine. She was Missy, the bright beautiful blonde. She gave me kisses when no one else would. She made me feel like the best writer in the world when no one else wanted to read my stuff. She was more than medicine. She was a miracle.

When she reached the teenage category, she suddenly became vague. The kisses became desecrated pecks. Her world was new and busy and ecstatic, and I was not in it. So I turned to Gayle, the wit, the life, the laughter of the family. She had tight black ringlets, and she found fun everywhere. Once she tried to push her stout grandma upstairs, and grandma's elastic broke and her panties fluttered down like a flag at sunset.

Gayle laughed so hard she fell to the bottom of the stairs. No injury. She just laid there, holding her stomach and trying to catch her breath. But then she double-crossed me by growing up. She had boy friends and dates at Tom Longo's place for pizza, and a separate universe began to spin.

Then came Karen. If the first was the heart and the second the life, the third was the soul of the family. She was born with an exquisite face and a heart brimming with sympathy. Like my mother, if Karen sees a sad movie or reads a sad story, she can't wait to try it again for another good cry. Karen is the giver. In affection, her wealth is inexhaustible. In materialism, she will never have a dime.

This blonde minx had the intellect of Ginny, the laughter of Gayle, the sentiment of Karen, and a smidge of her own seasoning. She knew how to curl in a lap, and whisper solemnly, with overtones of the fleetness of time: "I love you, Daddy." She was mine. I was hers. She had no doubt that I was the wisest of men, the most handsome, the ultimate fun.

She even told me that, when she grew up, she was going to find a young fellow with a splash of gray. Somewhere around Christmas, I lost her. She wears low heels. She swishes when she walks. She smiles at a boy who wears braces.

Daughters. I should have had 10 of them. . . .

Drew Pearson Says Doubletalk by Russians Confused Dictator Nasser

WASHINGTON—The most amazing story of last June's Israeli-Arab war has just been disclosed. It comes from highly secret intelligence sources, and tells how the Russians played a double game with Egypt's dictator Nasser. The reliability of the story is beyond dispute.

Throughout the crisis, U. S. intelligence kept picking up contradictory reports, some saying the Russians were secretly encouraging Nasser, others claiming they were trying to restrain him. It has now been learned, incredibly, that both reports were true.

Inside fact is that Nasser had two pipelines into the Kremlin and was getting contradictory messages. Through the diplomatic channel, he received urgent Russian appeals to avoid war with Israel. The Soviet ambassador actually called upon Nasser several times to hand him these appeals in person.

But Cairo and Moscow were also linked by the Russian KGB intelligence channel, which operates independently of Moscow's Foreign Office just as the CIA operates independently of the State Department.

Both the Russians and the Egyptians, sharing a predilection for secrecy, tended to place more reliance upon the secret KGB channel than upon normal diplomacy.

On May 13, Nasser informed the Russians, via the KGB, of his desire to concentrate his forces in the Sinai, to demand the removal of UN troops along the border and to close the Tiran Strait—moves clearly calculated to bring Israel to the brink of war.

Two days later, through the same KGB channel, Nasser received word that the Soviet Union agreed to his moves.

But Nasser was nervous over a confrontation with Israel. He wanted more specific assurances, so fired two questions to the Kremlin through the KGB:

1—How did the USSR estimate the consequences of an Arab-Israeli war?
2—How far would the USSR support the Arabs in the event of such a war?

The Soviet reply to these questions arrived, again through the KGB channel, on May 21. Sallah Nasser, the Egyptian intelligence chief, personally delivered the message to Dictator Nasser. It declared:

1. The USSR estimate was that the Arabs had the military strength to conduct a prolonged war which eventually would force Israel to make territorial concessions in the Negev and perhaps give up the port of Elat. This would resolve the question of navigation through the Strait of Tiran.

2. The USSR would undertake to prevent U. S. intervention in Israel's behalf.

3. The USSR did not foresee any military requirement for its intervention on the Arab side. Should unexpected circumstances arise, however, Egypt could count on immediate and massive Soviet assistance.

Thus encouraged, Nasser went ahead with his plan to close the Strait of Tiran, which he fully expected to lead to war.

He had moments of hesitation, however, because of the Soviet ambassador's appeals for restraint. The contradiction in communications also led to a backstage debate inside the Egyptian hierarchy over which Soviet messages to believe.

Wait for Israel Attack

Nasser finally concluded that the KGB channel carried the Kremlin's true, secret attitude and that the diplomatic messages were merely intended as camouflage "for the sake of history." He also figured that the intensity of the Soviet ambassador's appeals must mean that the Russians didn't want the Arabs to appear to be the aggressor. Therefore, Nasser calculated that the Russians wanted him to wait for Israel to attack first.

On this point, he was vigorously opposed by Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, who was suspicious of the Soviet doubletalk. In any event, he believed the Arabs should attack first.

Nasser's decision to wait not only led to a military debacle but brought a demand from the Egyptian war minister, Shams Badran, for a thorough investigation into the political developments that precipitated the war. Specifically, he called for an inquiry into all the communications received through the KGB channel.

There followed a bitter struggle over whose head should roll—that of Field Marshal Amer, who had trusted the KGB messages, or intelligence chief Sallah Nasser's who had believed them. The intelligence chief, though clearly wrong, was able to muster the most political power. Amer and Bairan were dismissed from their posts.

All this so distressed Amer, an Egyptian patriot, that he suffered spells of suicidal depression. It is known that Egyptian intelligence smuggled poison into Amer's prison cell. It is reported that Sallah Nasser, aware of Amer's suicidal tendencies and wishing to silence him, arranged for the poison to reach his hands.

Dictator Nasser, who had no wish for his old friend Amer to die, has now arrested Sallah Nasser.

Meanwhile, in Russia, the KGB has just gone through a violent shakeup similar to our CIA shakeup after the Bay of Pigs fiasco. It isn't clear whether the KGB acted on its own initiative, therefore is being punished; or whether it had the secret sanction of the Soviet leadership, therefore is being made the scapegoat.

Inflation to Rate Among Top Stories

A double-whammy in our nation's inflation, so important to us all, highlights the outlook for 1968. Coupled with Vietnam and the November election, it's a candidate for the big story of the year.

On September 13 Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler testified before the House Banking and Currency Committee that the Administration was seeking a $7 billion foreign trade surplus to help protect the dollar. But Mr. Fowler has now announced that our balance of payments for the first nine months of 1967 showed a deficit of $1.75 billion.

Moreover, the British devaluation, which touched off 25 other devaluations within a single week, means that "Made in U. S. A." goods now face tougher competition in world markets.

Wage settlements in 1967 in our country averaged nearly 50 per cent higher than the percentage increase throughout 1966-65. And the required offset through increased productivity is lagging far, far behind this.

American industry has invested more than $200 billion in new plants and machines in the past five years. Yet in spite of all the new construction and the automation, the output gain per man-hour fell this year and was lower than it was in 1961 or any year since. Accordingly, the cost per unit of manufactured output has gone up. The 1967 rise was approximately five per cent.

In addition to the Great Society's nearly incredible monetary inflation, this damaging effect on our domestic and export prices occurs in the fact of an increased labor force. Our country's population growth has slowed down, despite the publicity when we hit the 200 million mark on November 20. The population grew only 1.5 per cent this year.

The slowdown reflects a declining birth rate over the near term, and is concentrated in the younger and older ages. But the working age groups are growing rapidly. And the employment demand, with its effect on wages and prices, is likewise breaking all records—especially in the service industries.

Only about four per cent of the men and women looking for jobs are jobless. Even the Department of Labor, which usually emphasizes the unemployed rather than the employed, admits that we have twice as many people earning at two jobs (moonlighting) than there are people not working. Actually, so strong is the employment demand that for the first time in history more wives are working than are single women.

Heading into 1968, this tight employment condition creates a nearly unprecedented situation in the inflation problem. It is a fact, although a hardly known one, that at no time previously since the Korean War has a Federal budget on a national-income-accounts basis been actually in deficit—and therefore inflationary—under virtually full-employment conditions.

The so-called balance-of-payments problem is merely a soft name for our gold crisis. Having hit another new 30-year low after the British devaluation, this reserve is now so low ($12.4 billion) that the whole world knows its recovery is not assured.

President Johnson speaks as confidently as a clean-up man swinging three bats. But as the new year dawns it is painfully clear that the central bankers of the world are not convinced that Washington will overcome either the balance-of-payments problem or the inflation.

Treasury Secretary Fowler's announcement of the 1967 deficit was alarming enough, but if we are to keep the deficit from rising even further in 1968 we must prevent a burst of inflationary wage-price gas that would further boost imports purchased more cheaply abroad.

The fundamental task is to maintain here a better price trend than our trading partners abroad can achieve in their own countries. There is absolutely no other way to increase our excess of exports over imports and thus finally bring the balance of payments under control. Much of our balance-of-payments deficit will be relieved if and when some satisfactory solution is found for the Vietnam war. But this is where the double-whammy in our nation's inflation comes to the fore. (Copyright, 1968, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Missiles that will change their course by command from a man stationed in the home country and then follow the new route which he orders.

Missiles that can be guided in evasive action by a man at home base when the missile meets up with an antimissile threat.

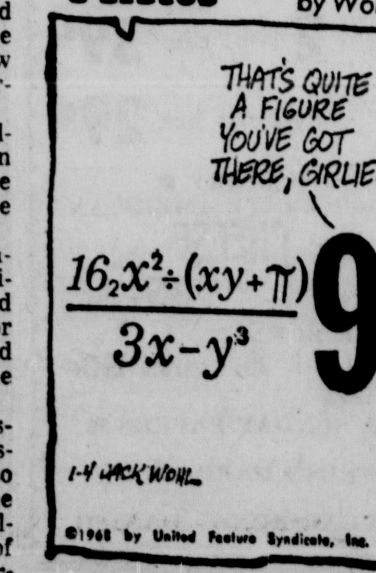

These are no longer laboratory dreams. All these abilities have been demonstrated piecemeal in one aspect or another of United States and Soviet space shots during the past year.

The communications necessary for following these missiles in flight and through their target on earth can be handled by unmanned satellites. Since the location of such satellites can be determined precisely and since the intercontinental missiles can be guided by communications relayed from and through such stations, these nonballistic missiles can be guided accurately to target.

There is a good deal of evidence Moscow is incorporating these new ideas into new types of intercontinental missiles as quickly as their rapidly advancing technology will allow.

Poor Snow Removal

Now that we have had a real taste of winter and a good idea of what to expect in the days ahead, officials in charge of our streets and highways should bestir themselves and see that the equipment is in working order for adequate handling of the snow and ice.

The problem of dangerous streets and roads from snow and ice can be met by a carefully planned system, which among other things calls for prompt action and intelligent use of manpower and equipment. One method of efficient snow removal before the streets become blocked with snow is to battle the storms while they are in progress. Waiting for a few days until the streets are buried under huge drifts is not the efficient way to operate.

The same is true of icy street conditions. Don't wait until there is a big tie up of cars on hills and grades or crashes of motor vehicles before sanding the streets. Knowledge of local conditions and experience of this first storm should help in the matter of treating streets.

Our public works department should get out on the job in time. Before we get all tangled up with another storm, let's plan now to handle it.

Postal Boost; Junk Mail

Remember the penny post card? It now will cost five cents. All classes of mail will be affected by the postal hike agreed upon by Congress and after signature by the President to go into effect January 7.

First class mail will be boosted from five to six cents; airmail from eight to 10 cents; bulk mail from 2.7 to 3.6 cents.

But Congress hasn't done anything about the junk mail, which clutters up post office departments and weighs down the mail carrier.

The postal rate increase will, in effect, subsidize junk mail, which has become a nuisance to many Americans. First class mail pays its own way with a little left over.

Me-Tooism Rejected

The liberal Eastern wing of the Republican party is in a state of disarray. While the party has won 26 state houses, only four of them are in the East. Five are South or Border states, six Midwest and 11 Far West. They are largely states fed up with liberalism. Since these 26 states with Republican Governors will send 760 delegates to the Miami convention out of a total of 1,333, they can dictate the nomination.

The trouble is that these states also reflect the diversity of their regional interests. They were not able to agree on a nominee at their winter meeting. They balked when the Easterners under Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island, chairman of the Republican Governors Association, wanted to challenge the designation of moderate Senator Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois to be chairman of the Convention Platform Committee.

The truth is that more and more people are disillusioned with the liberalism that has ruled the nation since Franklin D. Roosevelt swept the New Deal philosophy of spend and spend and tax and tax into the politico-economic lexicon. The swing is not full cycle. Barry Goldwater would still be ahead of his time were he a figure in the coming election. But people are wondering why they are no better off, though they are making more money than ever; they are wondering if they must continually pay for the support of millions who should support themselves; they are wondering if chaos and crime and disorder are not too great a luxury.

For the first time in a decade, the Gallup poll found that people believe that the Republican party is best able to cope with the problems of the day—war in Vietnam, racial disorder, crime in the streets, the rising cost of living, among others. This response, if it is reflected in the national voting, indicates people are not going to want to vote for a Republican candidate who has nothing more to offer than me-tooism.

The National Committee for an Effective Congress, a nonpartisan group, confirms this thinking. Its latest analysis suggests that "Traditional appeals to economic well-being and promises to remedy specific grievances do not invoke the cheers they once did. America has experienced two great internal crises in her history: The Civil War and the Economic Depression of the 1930s. The country may be on the brink of a third trauma, a depression of the national spirit. At all levels of American life, people share similar fears, insecurities, and gnawing doubts to such an intense degree that the country may be suffering from a kind of national nervous breakdown."

There is one other factor that may play a large role in the national election. That is, that labor is no longer a political pawn to be led by the nose by demagogic appeals. The rank and file thinks for itself. Its interests are broad. Politically, it is part of the mainstream.

These are some of the reasons why the usual measures of politics are not applicable at this stage of the game. The electorate is looking for a sure hand to lead the country. It will not be satisfied with less.

LBJ's Unique Experience Helped Shake Tactics

WASHINGTON — Lots of things have been said or written about Lyndon Johnson and the kind of President he is, and undoubtedly public opinion will be affected to some extent in the election year 1968 by the "image" of the Chief Executive which has been portrayed by the press and by TV commentators in the last five years.

There is one thing, however, about Mr. Johnson's course in the White House which has not been presented objectively to the public. He must be appraised in relation to the background of his career prior to becoming Vice President. He is the first man in this century to reach the White House after having spent 24 years in Congress—12 consecutive years in the House of Representatives and 12 more in the United States Senate. During six of those latter years, he was the majority leader of the Senate and dealt constantly on legislative matters with a president from the opposite political party.

Unquestionably this unique experience had an influence in shaping Mr. Johnson's tactics when, as President of the United States, he himself was confronted with deep divisions in both parties. Rarely has a president prior to Mr. Johnson been elected previously to a leadership position by his party in Congress.

Mr. Johnson's political strategy in the presidency is very much like that which legislative leaders in Congress have from time to time found it expedient to practice in trying to reconcile differences of opinion not only inside but outside their party. The customary method is to endeavor to compromise or find some common denominator on which there can be agreement. Highly controversial sections of proposed laws are left for favorable action at a later time.

Lyndon Johnson's tenure in the Presidency has often been marked by his attempts to follow a "consensus"—an effort to do what the people generally would like at the moment rather than what may prove best for the country in the long run. The politician is more inclined to think of public opinion in the few months ahead as election day approaches either for Congress or the Presidency.

As for the "credibility gap" which critics have talked about, there really isn't much difference in the disclosure or withholding of information than what has been noted in other administrations. The tendency of high officials is to give news to the public when there is a completed act or a definite step taken, rather than to tell the press each day in piecemeal fashion the details of an incomplete discussion or negotiation. No administration should be held responsible for the leaks, misinterpretations or anonymous comments picked up and broadcast in the meantime.

In international affairs particularly, when delicate matters are being handled through embassies and legations abroad or when foreign ambassadors convey to the State Department in Washington some confidential data, it is difficult—and actually at times unwise—for a President to give out the whole story at once without waiting for a decision to be reached. Premature publicity could have adverse psychological effects in other countries at a critical stage of negotiations.

Mr. Johnson is an unusual President in some respects, as he has had to become involved in more policies, programs and projects than his predecessors had to tackle. This is due to the complexity of American life resulting from a rapidly expanding population.

So Mr. Johnson's approach is inevitably political. This is something which is not likely to change under the existing presidential system, especially since all the members of the House of Representatives and a third of the Senate have to be elected every two years. Mr. Johnson is often referred to as a master politician, but craftiness is not easy to abolish when dealing with 535 politicians in Congress who have the power to pass the laws and furnish the funds that a President needs in order to perform his duties. Lyndon Johnson is the natural product of a congressional environment.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

A man warms his hands on the radiant face of his wife. His sagging morale lifts at sight of her. Nothing in nature can move a man—upward or downward—like a woman. He is noble or he is vicious because of her. She pours love and faith. He drinks it like a wanderer on a desert.

Then why can't I understand daughters? I have four. What constitutes the feline mystique in little girls that dissipates when they are married? Why, at age five, do they test their claws and purrs on father when they do not yet realize what claws and purrs are? And why, at age 13, do they feel that they are in competition with mother for the old man?

This, my friends, is a subject worthy of a lot of questions and few answers. Girls realize that they are females long before boys realize that they are males. They will crouch between mother's knees as the never-ending brush strokes of the hair tear through the knots. They will cry if there is a spot, or a wrinkle, to mar a pretty dress.

They even know what color matches, and what doesn't. When father is out of sorts they know when to approach timidly, when to cuddle and kiss and make him feel like a king of the realm. There is even a built-in desire to be "good." Girls led every class I ever attended: Helen Walsh, Catherine Douglas, and Mary Daniels. The boys were so stupid they didn't even resent it.

The last of my girls is a young lady. No one told me: no one tells me anything. I just happened to notice heels on the shoes, a bra hanging off a bed and a certain type of walk that reminded me of a girl I once saw at Minsky's.

"What's the matter with you?" I said. Kathy lifted her head with a certain disdain. "Nothing," she said. "Nothing at all."

It's like that. No matter what I ask, the response is "Nothing." When Kelly and the kittens are in conference, I say cheerfully: "What's going on?" and the response is a chorus: "Nothing." The three of them are in a perpetual frenzy doing nothing.

In India, I stopped at Agra to buy a pair of amethyst earrings for Kathy when she is old enough to wear them. She burst into tears. "What's the matter?" "Nothing." She asked to go to a party of boys and girls. I said no. More tears. Why? "Nothing." Somehow, the earrings and the missed party equate. Don't ask me how. If I knew, I wouldn't be writing a column. I'd be remodeling heads in a psychiatrist's office.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frechette send a photo of themselves with their seven children, and Kelly cries. Robin and Pamela, the identical twins, and Jim, Kevin, Chipper and Chris, the Indians, appear to be happy and bright. Pamela, a year and a half old, perches on her mother's knee with bow in her hair. My wife weeps. Why? "Nothing."

Once, Mrs. Charles Frechette was all mine. She was "Missy," the bright beautiful blonde. She gave me kisses when no one else would. She made me feel like the best writer in the world when no one else wanted to read my stuff. She was more than medicine. She was a miracle.

When she reached the teenage category, she suddenly became vague. The kisses became desecrated pecks. Her world was new and busy and ecstatic, and I was not in it. So I turned to Gayle, the wit, the life, the laughter of the family. She had tight black ringlets, and she found fun everywhere. Once she tried to push her stout grandma upstairs, and grandma's elastic broke, and her panties fluttered down like a flag at sunset.

Gayle laughed so hard she fell to the bottom of the stairs. No injury. She just laid there, holding her stomach and trying to catch her breath. But then she double-crossed me by growing up. She had boy friends and dates at Tom Longo's place for pizza, and a separate universe began to spin.

Then came Karen. If the first was the heart and the second the life, the third was the soul of the family. She was born with an exquisite face and a heart brimming with sympathy. Like my mother, if Karen sees a sad movie or reads a sad story, she can't wait to try it again for another good cry. Karen is the giver. In affection, her wealth is inexhaustible. In materialism, she will never have a dime.

Lastly, there was Kath. This blonde minx had the intellect of Ginny, the laughter of Gayle, the sentiment of Karen, and a smidge of her own seasoning. She knew how to curl in a lap, and whisper solemnly, with overtones of the fleetness of time: "I love you, Daddy." She was mine. I was hers. She had no doubt that I was the wisest of men, the most handsome, the ultimate.

She even told me that, when she grew up, she was going to find a young fellow with a splash of gray. Somewhere around Christmas, I lost her. She wears low heels. She swishes when she walks. She smiles at a boy who wears braces.

Daughters. I should have had 10 of them. . . .

Drew Pearson Says Doubletalk by Russians Confused Dictator Nasser

WASHINGTON—The most amazing story of last June's Israeli-Arab war has just been disclosed. It comes from highly secret intelligence sources, and tells how the Russians played a double game with Egypt's dictator Nasser. The reliability of the story is beyond dispute.

Throughout the crisis, U.S. intelligence kept picking up contradictory reports, some saying the Russians were secretly encouraging Nasser, others claiming they were trying to restrain him. It has now been learned, incredibly, that both reports were true.

Inside fact is that Nasser had two pipelines into the Kremlin and was getting contradictory messages. Through the diplomatic channel, he received urgent Russian appeals to avoid war with Israel. The Soviet ambassador actually called upon Nasser several times to hand him these appeals in person.

But Cairo and Moscow were also linked by the Russian KGB intelligence channel, which operates independently of Moscow's Foreign Office just as the CIA operates independently of the State Department.

Both the Russians and the Egyptians, sharing a predilection for secrecy, tended to place more reliance upon the secret KGB channel than upon normal diplomacy.

On May 13, Nasser informed the Russians, via the KGB, of his desire to concentrate his forces in the Sinai, to demand the removal of UN troops along the border and to close the Tiran Strait—moves clearly calculated to bring Israel to the brink of war.

Two days later, through the same KGB channel, Nasser received word that the Soviet Union agreed to his moves.

But Nasser was nervous over a confrontation with Israel. He wanted more specific assurances, so fired two questions to the Kremlin through the KGB:

1—How did the USSR estimate the consequences of an Arab-Israeli war?
2—How far would the USSR support the Arabs in the event of such a war?

The Soviet reply to these questions arrived, again through the KGB channel, on May 21. Sallah Nasser, the Egyptian intelligence chief, personally delivered the message to Dictator Nasser. It declared:

1. The USSR estimate was that the Arabs had the military strength to conduct a prolonged war which eventually would force Israel to make territorial concessions in the Negev and perhaps give up the port of Elat. This would resolve the question of navigation through the Strait of Tiran.

2. The USSR would undertake to prevent U.S. intervention in Israel's behalf.

3. The USSR did not foresee any military requirement for its intervention on the Arab side. Should unexpected circumstances arise, however, Egypt could count on immediate and massive Soviet assistance.

Thus encouraged, Nasser went ahead with his plan to close the Strait of Tiran, which he fully expected to lead to war.

He had moments of hesitation, however, because of the Soviet ambassador's appeals for restraint. The contradiction in communications also led to a backstage debate inside the Egyptian hierarchy over which Soviet messages to believe.

Wait for Israel Attack
Nasser finally concluded that the KGB channel carried the Kremlin's true, secret attitude and that the diplomatic messages were merely intended as camouflage "for the sake of history." He also figured that the intensity of the Soviet ambassador's appeals must mean that the Russians didn't want the Arabs to appear to be the aggressor. Therefore, Nasser calculated that the Russians wanted him to wait for Israel to attack first.

On this point, he was vigorously opposed by Field Marshal Abdel Hakim Amer, who was suspicious of the Soviet doubletalk. In any event, he believed the Arabs should attack first.

Nasser's decision to wait not only led to a military debacle but brought a demand from the Egyptian war minister, Shams Badran, for a thorough investigation into the political developments that precipitated the war. Specifically, he called for an inquiry into all the communications received through the KGB channel.

There followed a bitter struggle over whose head should roll—that of Field Marshal Amer, who had mistrusted the KGB messages, or intelligence chief Sallah Nasser's who had believed them. The intelligence chief, though clearly wrong, was able to muster the most political power. Amer and Bairan were dismissed from their posts.

All this so distressed Amer, an Egyptian patriot, that he suffered spells of suicidal depression. It is known that Egyptian intelligence smuggled poison into Amer's prison cell. It's reported that Sallah Nasser, aware of Amer's suicidal tendencies and wishing to silence him, arranged for the poison to reach his hands.

Dictator Nasser, who had no wish for his old friend Amer to die, has now arrested Sallah Nasser.

Meanwhile, in Russia, the KGB has just gone through a violent shakeup similar to our CIA shakeup after the Bay of Pigs fiasco. It isn't clear whether the KGB acted on its own initiative, therefore is being punished; or whether it had the secret sanction of the Soviet leadership, therefore is being made the scapegoat.

This is not to say the Russians will likely have great fleets of each new type of missile the Soviet scientists develop. Rather, indications are that the Russians will build modest numbers of one type, then add a series of newer types—again in small numbers—as technology permits.

This variety of improved Russian weapons types is presumably intended to insure that the United States will have to defend against a variety of weapons.

It is known that the United States has done some excellent and far-advanced research that would make possible missiles of the type mentioned above and other types of missiles with equally great sophistication. In this research, it is likely that the United States is ahead of the Russians.

The present U.S. development effort, however, is aimed more at markedly improving the quality of today's ballistic missiles (so they can more easily get through Russian defenses) rather than in developing a completely new intercontinental missile from scratch, taking full advantage of the great discoveries of the past seven years.

Greater Demand

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Publications
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Every time the Social Security system is altered to widen its coverage, increase benefits and raise taxes to pay the cost, the question inevitably is heard:

"How long can this go on?" This time out, there were seriously offered but finally defeated proposals to lift the earnings base not moderately from $6,600 to $7,000 as was done, but to $10,800.

The approved final new tax rate for those not self-employed is set at 5.9 per cent, to take effect in 1987. But there was talk that the rate might have to be hoisted higher by that time or earlier—possibly to 10 per cent.

For a considerable number of working Americans, the Social Security tax is the only federal levy they pay outside of gasoline taxes and various excises. Their annual incomes are too low to compel them to pay federal income taxes. Should the Social Security tax finally reach 10 per cent or more, it will become a large factor in their financial lives.

Demands Increase

At the same time, the American citizenry seems to be demanding more and more from the Social Security system. Benefits are going to be higher. From a few years back, hospital insurance and related protection under Medicare has been included—and with the 1967 law this is somewhat enlarged and improved.

The system is in a constant race with the rising cost of living. Since the new benefit levels taking effect with March 2 checks go up an average of 13 per cent for beneficiaries, temporarily this puts the system ahead in the inflation game. Living costs have risen just under 8 per cent since January, 1965, the last time higher benefits were voted.

But Social Security specialists and economists do not imagine this advantage will last long. Price rises can be expected to eat fairly quickly into the extra benefit cushion.

Moment of Truth

No expert in the field dares guess when the moment of truth will come—when tax-paying workers will resist higher Social Security tax rates demanded to pay for still higher benefits, tied perhaps to steady cost of living rises (sometimes talked of now).

Some analysis and public figures, not least Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York, are arguing today that the system henceforth should break away from crucial dependence on the insurance principle—with contributions by employee and employer—and turn to the general United States treasury to finance further advances.

The U. S. Senate's largely squelched more liberal version of the 1967 benefit-increase proposals did not seem, in the view of more conservative congressional types, to face up to the financing problem.

But Kennedy brought the issue into the open. And he evidently had some company among some students of the present system who think America is now sufficiently affluent to lay a heavy part of the Social Security burden directly on the treasury.

Big Money

Yet it should be understood we are talking about big money. Even the Senate's less-than-dramatic proposals for higher cash benefits and a more liberal "retirement test" (the amount a man can earn and still get full retirement benefits) would have cost nearly $3 billion in the immediate future and much more later.

Plainly the insurance principle partly supporting the program will be clung to for a good many years to come. But the pressure to break loose from it will inevitably mount as demands upon Social Security rise and the taxpayer's Social Security tax dollar looks trailer and trailer as a chief support.

Inauguration ceremonies New Year's Day proved quite impressive although Council Chambers were only half filled with spectators.

Bob Gallo looked just a bit nervous but seemed to gain confidence once he had the gavel in hand.

Mayor Garraghan's speech lacked something in the way of preparation. Ray claimed his grandson ate the annual message. Some aldermen complained that Garraghan's speech was hardly traditional in that the mayor usually outlines his programs for the coming year. But then, no one has ever accused Raymond of being a conformist.

Parties afterwards were gassers. We missed two, Pete Fisher's and the Mayor's. John Naccarato's looked like Grand Central. Everyone was there including Garraghan who stopped in before going to his own celebration at the Walnut Grove.

Included at Naccarato's were Republicans Frank Jablonski, Bob Schantz and John Machione. Jablonski and Pucker Davis were discussing the pros and cons of the recent pro football championships.

Chief Murphy stopped in along with Eleanor Bruhn, Judge Klein and spouse, June and Charlie Diamond, Charlie Cole, Jim Matthews, Ham Fish, Stan Petro and wife and Stan's mother.

Davis and Naccarato provided music via violin and accordion, respectively. Charlie Cole was desperately searching for a banjo, his specialty. A good time . . . thanks to John and wife and children.

Later in the afternoon we all flocked down to Florence Shea Ludlow's, the hostess who was huddled with Bob Gallo. It seems Mrs. Ludlow tore her nylons while representing the First Ward. A somewhat exasperated Gallo said he'd try to remedy the situation. When Flo got to her desk Tuesday she found two roses.

Ed Norton and wife at both parties. Ed as new majority leader has, what we think, are some sound ideas on Council procedures. He wants legislation moved and viewed by the mayor before being voted upon. Ed thinks the legislative branch should know what the executive branch thinks on city matters.

Bob Gallo's rearranging of Council seats (they're much closer together) has alleviated the acoustics problem, somewhat. Mild opposition has come from Mrs. Ludlow, who has to sit next to a pipe puffing Schantz and a cigar smoking Naccarato.

The press has been split up. This columnist now sits with Jim Thompson of WGH while that grand old man of the news business, Ira Warren The Kingstonian, is a desk-mate of WGH's Jim Tyrrell.

Tuesday's Common Council meeting pitted the Rookies against the Pros. Newcomer Frank Jablonski took the floor with an idea for city-wide alternate side of the street parking. This was quickly blasted by veteran Ed Norton who pointed out the number of one-way streets in the city.

Pucker Davis, in a rare talkative mood, then took the floor to complain about junk car parking in Block Park.

Davis wanted the Board of Public Works to haul the cars away and charge the violator.

Norton once again took the floor. Now it was veteran against veteran. Davis is the senior member of the Council. Ed's idea was to give the violator 30 days notice and then prosecute.

Said Davis, "We've given them 30 days, 30 weeks, 30 months and we could give them 30 years. I want action now."

Norton, with a smile, sat down. The snow removal problem, however, is nothing to smile about and there were few chuckles in the Council Tuesday over Kingston's Winter Wonderland. It's the aldermen that usually get the first complaints and most had had their fill over the holidays. Rumors of BPW trucks that won't start or can't make it up hills didn't set too well either.

But, then again, maybe some people aren't happy unless they're complaining. We like Dick Kalish's reported remark to Harry Thayer at a recent Lions Club luncheon. Dick suggested Harry might be of more service to the community by trying to help Mayor Garraghan instead of criticizing him. Dick suffered through the hail of criticism in the urban renewal crisis this summer. He should know what he's talking about.

To Rocky's Message

Wilson, Rolison Reaction

By CHARLES BERNPOHL
Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson felt that Governor Rockefeller's "State of the State" message yesterday demonstrated a "very conservative approach to budgetary problems" and was a "realistic message" but State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. was "less than enthusiastic over some of the items" defined in the speech.

Sen. Rolison felt that the economy of the state "may not be geared to handle all of the (Governor's) programs" and although Rockefeller "talked a great deal about economy, for which I'm glad" he also spoke about "two or three new things, such as housing development, and aid to urban development, and I don't know what the cost factor will be here."

Wilson said that the big problems to face the 1968 Legislative "tax" session will be "the problem of rising welfare costs, Medicaid, and aid to education," but the Governor was doing what was "practical and necessary."

'Too Far, Too Fast'
Dutchess County Republican Rolison believed that many of the Governor's programs went

"too far too fast" and that the people had not enough time "to digest them. Medicaid is a prime example" of this, he said.

Rolison said that when sales taxes had to be devised to cover the cost of such a program, it demonstrated that "not enough thought" had been given to the proposal and that this was "the fault of the Governor's office and the Legislature."

Woodstock GOPer Wilson explained that "the big problem (facing the state) rests at the local level," and that "aid to municipalities" and school budgetary problems were hindering any attempt to "reduce the tax load at the local level."

Agree on Performance
What both lawmakers agreed on was Rockefeller's performance as Governor.

"Rockefeller has an outstanding record" as a governor, said Rolison, adding, "He has demonstrated the ability to get along with both political parties, and he has the ability to get through 'a large part of his programs. He really has done a lot for the State' specifically in the 'field of education.'"

"Practically any field you can turn to, the Governor has anticipated the problems," Wilson said, and he went on to compare Rockefeller to former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and Thomas E. Dewey.

"We are well ahead of the Federal government in highway construction, pure air and water, and (Rockefeller's) reorganizing of the State government has been very efficient," the Assemblyman said.

Wilson also mentioned that the $500 million budgetary "gap" centered around "aid to the municipalities, school districts and to dependent children."

The State Senator said that although the Governor "has the grasp of State government, he does his homework, and he knows what he is talking about," lawmakers "reserve our right to criticize."

Rolison added that he thought there was a "crisis in the Medicaid program" and that New Yorkers "really have to get that monkey off our back. It will be a critical tax session with legislators taking 'a long hard look at the Governor's budget.'"

Senator Rolison also said that he expects the Governor's budget to be "well over five billion dollars."

The present budget is $4.7 billion.

On the first day of trading after the New Year holiday, Pfizer, which has produced so many modern miracles and profited handsomely for it, is now being forced to swallow the equivalent of some old fashioned castor oil.

A federal jury has just found three of the industry's most prominent members guilty of conspiracy to control production and distribution of antibiotics. Two of the companies were accused of making "enormous" profits thereby.

The conviction leaves Chas. Pfizer & Co., Bristol-Myers Co. and American Cyanamid subject to fines of $150,000 each, and opens the way for triple damage suits from big purchasers.

Bitter Dosage
But the dosage may be even more bitter. Dr. James Goddard, Food and Drug Administration head, said his agency is now considering the forced withdrawal from market of many scores of drugs in the next two years.

Among the products that have been found ineffective, he said, are some of the best known patent medicines in use today. As many as 1,600 brand names might be affected, he said, a number shocking to both industry and users.

Little wonder then that this industry, which was recently and understandably acclaimed by a national magazine as the most profitable in the business world, should suffer losses in the stock market also.

Many Stock Losses For Drug Industry

NEW YORK (AP) — The $5-billion a year drug industry, which has produced so many modern miracles and profited handsomely for it, is now being forced to swallow the equivalent of some old fashioned castor oil.

A federal jury has just found three of the industry's most prominent members guilty of conspiracy to control production and distribution of antibiotics. Two of the companies were accused of making "enormous" profits thereby.

The conviction leaves Chas. Pfizer & Co., Bristol-Myers Co. and American Cyanamid subject to fines of $150,000 each, and opens the way for triple damage suits from big purchasers.

Bitter Dosage
But the dosage may be even more bitter. Dr. James Goddard, Food and Drug Administration head, said his agency is now considering the forced withdrawal from market of many scores of drugs in the next two years.

Among the products that have been found ineffective, he said, are some of the best known patent medicines in use today. As many as 1,600 brand names might be affected, he said, a number shocking to both industry and users.

Little wonder then that this industry, which was recently and understandably acclaimed by a national magazine as the most profitable in the business world, should suffer losses in the stock market also.

Where this concern has been lacking, the government generally has acted with such ammunition as new laws, with roll-back pressure on prices, with such a barrage of adverse criticism that an industry's consumer markets are endangered.

In other words, the environment for business today is one in which the ground rules can be changed swiftly. Many industries, not just the regulated utilities, suddenly can find themselves out of bounds.

Wyandanch, in Suffolk County on Long Island, was the scene of Negro street disturbances in July. The school district includes some 2,300 students, 80 per cent of them Negro and many described as from culturally deprived families.

Dist. Principal James Lewis said he expected to start the first extended year the first week in August and end it the following June.

Dr. George I. Thomas, coordinator for rescheduling the school year for the State Education Department, said the state would guarantee all costs above those of the normal school year.

The cost was estimated at $200,000 the first year and $130,000 each year thereafter.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has petitioned for dissolution of the district. The NAACP wants parts of the district annexed to surrounding, more prosperous districts, largely white.

Man Surrenders In Ellenville
Sought by authorities in the area in connection with a double-shooting incident, Julio Valentin Rivera, 29, of Ellenville, surrendered with his attorney Wednesday night to police in that village.

Police Chief Abe Rand arrested the man on a warrant previously issued by Police Judge Ronald Elias, and the defense attorney, Alex J. Nirenberg requested an adjournment for preliminary hearing.

Bail was fixed at $2,500 cash or $5,000 property bond. In lieu of bail the accused man was committed to the county jail.

Hearing was adjourned until Tuesday, Jan. 9, at 7 p. m. Rivera was charged with first degree assault.

The defendant is accused of shooting Roberto Garcia Carbello, 28, of Ellenville, during an argument in the parking lot near the Town Tavern on Market Street in that village on the morning of Jan. 2, Carbello, who was shot in the face, remained in serious condition at Kingston Hospital today.

During the early investigation of the incident, police said Carbello's wife, Ida, also was wounded when hit by a bullet in the right index finger. She was treated at Ellenville Community Hospital and released.

After the shooting, Carbello's assailant disappeared and authorities had been looking for him since Tuesday morning.

Saugerties Ambulance Gets Order

An order to cease and desist from doing business at his present location is being served on Clifton Jones of Saugerties, whose ambulance service is housed at 14 Robinson Street.

A recent Supreme Court decision by Justice Isador Brookstein reversed a Sept. 16, 1966 Zoning Board of Appeals variance which granted Jones permission to operate his business from that address.

At a December meeting of the Village Board, Jones appealed to members to have the zoning members amended in order to allow him to continue his operation on Robinson Street.

At that time the Village Board assured Jones it wished to see his service remain in Saugerties and has since then appointed a committee of three to help relocate Jones' ambulance. They are: Donald McCaig, Gregory Mulstay and Richard Underhill.

According to village clerk, James Gage, temporary quarters for one ambulance has been found.

The cease and desist papers were mailed yesterday to Jones by the zoning enforcement officer John Rivenberg.

Opposition to the Robinson Street operation came through a petition submitted by residents of the area which is zoned residential.

Suffolk School Set to Begin 11-Month Year

WYANDANCH, N.Y. (AP) — The Wyandanch School District announced Wednesday it would become the first in the state to go on a mandatory 11-month school year.

Wyandanch, in Suffolk County on Long Island, was the scene of Negro street disturbances in July. The school district includes some 2,300 students, 80 per cent of them Negro and many described as from culturally deprived families.

Dist. Principal James Lewis said he expected to start the first extended year the first week in August and end it the following June.

Dr. George I. Thomas, coordinator for rescheduling the school year for the State Education Department, said the state would guarantee all costs above those of the normal school year.

The cost was estimated at $200,000 the first year and $130,000 each year thereafter.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has petitioned for dissolution of the district. The NAACP wants parts of the district annexed to surrounding, more prosperous districts, largely white.

Man Surrenders In Ellenville
Sought by authorities in the area in connection with a double-shooting incident, Julio Valentin Rivera, 29, of Ellenville, surrendered with his attorney Wednesday night to police in that village.

Police Chief Abe Rand arrested the man on a warrant previously issued by Police Judge Ronald Elias, and the defense attorney, Alex J. Nirenberg requested an adjournment for preliminary hearing.

Bail was fixed at $2,500 cash or $5,000 property bond. In lieu of bail the accused man was committed to the county jail.

Hearing was adjourned until Tuesday, Jan. 9, at 7 p. m. Rivera was charged with first degree assault.

The defendant is accused of shooting Roberto Garcia Carbello, 28, of Ellenville, during an argument in the parking lot near the Town Tavern on Market Street in that village on the morning of Jan. 2, Carbello, who was shot in the face, remained in serious condition at Kingston Hospital today.

During the early investigation of the incident, police said Carbello's wife, Ida, also was wounded when hit by a bullet in the right index finger. She was treated at Ellenville Community Hospital and released.

After the shooting, Carbello's assailant disappeared and authorities had been looking for him since Tuesday morning.

To Rocky's Message

By CHARLES BERMPHOL
Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson felt that Governor Rockefeller's "State of the State" message yesterday demonstrated a "very conservative approach to budgetary problems" and was a "realistic message" but State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. was "less than enthusiastic over some of the items" defined in the speech.

Sen. Rolison felt that the economy of the state "may not be geared to handle all of the (Governor's) programs" and although Rockefeller "talked a great deal about economy, for which I'm glad" he also spoke about "two or three new things, such as housing development, and I don't know what the cost factor will be here."

Wilson said that the big problems to face the 1968 Legislative "tax" session will be "the problem of rising welfare costs, Medicaid, and aid to education," but the Governor was doing what was "practical and necessary."

"Too Far, Too Fast"
Dutchess County Republican Rolison believed that many of the Governor's programs went

Rolison said that when sales taxes had to be devised to cover the cost of such a program, it demonstrated that "not enough thought" had been given to the proposal and that this was "the fault of the Governor's office and the Legislature."

Woodstock GOPer Wilson explained that "the big problem (facing the state) rests at the local level," and that "aid to municipalities" and school budgetary problems were hindering any attempt to "reduce the tax load at the local level."

Agree on Performance
What both lawmakers agreed on was Rockefeller's performance as Governor.

"Rockefeller has an outstanding record" as a governor, said Rolison, adding, "He has demonstrated the ability to get along with both political parties," and he has the ability to get through "a large part of his programs. He really has done a lot for the State" specifically in the "field of education."

"Practically any field you can turn to, the Governor has anticipated the problems," Wilson said, and he went on to compare Rockefeller to former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and Thomas E. Dewey.

"We are well ahead of the Federal government in highway construction, pure air and water, and (Rockefeller's) reorganizing of the State government has been very efficient," the Assemblyman said.

Wilson also mentioned that the $500 million budgetary "gap" centered around "aid to municipalities, school districts and to dependent children."

The State Senator said that although the Governor "has the

Many Stock Losses For Drug Industry

NEW YORK (AP) — The $5-billion a year drug industry, which has produced so many modern miracles and profited handsomely for it, is now being forced to swallow the equivalent of some old fashioned castor oil.

A federal jury has just found three of the industry's most prominent members guilty of conspiracy to control production and distribution of antibiotics. Two of the companies were accused of making "enormous" profits thereby.

The conviction leaves Chas. Pfizer & Co., Bristol-Myers Co. and American Cyanamid subject to fines of $150,000 each, and opens the way for triple damage suits from big purchasers.

Bitter Dosage
But the dosage may be even more bitter. Dr. James Goddard, Food and Drug Administration head, said his agency is now considering the forced withdrawal from market of many scores of drugs in the next two years.

Among the products that have been found ineffective, he said, are some of the best known patent medicines in use today. As many as 1,600 brand names might be affected, he said, a number shocking to both industry and users.

Little wonder then that this industry, which was recently and understandably acclaimed by a national magazine as the most profitable in the business world, should suffer losses in the stock market also.

On the first day of trading after the New Year holiday, Pfizer dropped $10.12 to $65.25 a share, Bristol-Myers $5.62 to $68.37 and American Cyanamid $2.25 to $26. Other drug makers also suffered severely.

If anything is proved by this it is that an industry cannot continue to thrive without aligning itself with the aims of the society in which it operates. Otherwise society reacts, sometimes with new laws.

As stated by businessmen repeatedly this year, a company must concern itself with social units as small as the neighborhood in which it operates a factory on up to the national economy itself.

This concern expresses itself in the preservation of clean air and water, the hiring and training of the underprivileged, the elimination of discrimination and a regard for the consequences to the national economy of price increases.

Where this concern has been lacking, the government generally has acted with such ammunition as new laws, with roll-back pressure on prices, with such a barrage of adverse criticism that an industry's consumer markets are endangered.

In other words, the environment for business today is one in which the ground rules can be changed swiftly. Many industries, not just the regulated utilities, suddenly can find themselves out of bounds.

Angelo Rivera, 49, of Ellenville, who was arrested late last month on a petit larceny charge, was sentenced Wednesday night to 30 days in the county jail after arraignment before Village Judge Ronald Elias. Police said Rivera was accused of the theft of jewelry belonging to an Ellenville resident.

Smaller Budget

NEW YORK (AP) — The City Planning Commission has proposed a capital budget of $872.5 million for New York's 1968-69 fiscal year. It was the first time since 1955 the recommendation was below the previous year's proposals. The proposal for 1968-69 is $118.7 million less than the one it submitted for the current fiscal year.

Closes and Opens

BOSTON (AP) — The Massachusetts legislature finally ended its 1967 session when the constitution required it to open the 1968 session. Some 200 bills were shelved as the legislature came to a mandatory midnight end. Legislators had until 11 a. m. to rest up before the new session began the next day, Jan. 3.

Useful Gift

BOONE, Iowa (AP) — Andrew Ahrens received a fire extinguisher as a Christmas gift from his son, Ray Ahrens, and family. A week later Ahrens discovered a fire in his basement, used his Christmas gift to save his home.

From 1838 to 1844, the racoon was the emblem of the Whig Party.

Means Different Things in Different Circumstances

EDITOR'S NOTE—The possibility of U.S. forces following retreating Viet Cong troops into the territory of neutral nations under a policy of "hot pursuit" has been raised with increasing frequency lately. What is "hot pursuit"? Does it have sanction in international law? In the following article, the distinguished scholar Milton Katz, Henry L. Stimson professor of law and director of International Legal Studies, Harvard Law School, discusses the question.

By MILTON KATZ
Written for the Associated Press

"Hot Pursuit" in international law means different things in different circumstances. The doctrine has evolved primarily as a doctrine of maritime international law. But on occasion states have tried to invoke it on land.

In only one type of situation can its meaning, application and limits be regarded as approximately clear. Suppose that a ship of the state of Erewhon enters territorial waters of the state of Utopia where it violates Utopian customs, fisheries or other law.

A Utopian patrol vessel pursues her through the territorial waters out into the high seas where it eventually captures her. Is the arrest lawful or does it violate the freedom of the seas?

The arrest is lawful if the pursuit was continuous—"hot"—throughout; but the right of hot pursuit ends as soon as the fleeing ship enters its own territorial waters or the territorial waters of a third country.

This doctrine evolved as a part of customary international law. It was proclaimed anew on April 29, 1958 in Article 23 of the Geneva Convention on the High Seas, signed by some 55 states, including the United States, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom, France, the Republic of China, Thailand, Cuba and Yugoslavia.

From time to time, some states have tried to invoke "hot pursuit" to justify behavior in wholly different circumstances, involving war and self-defense, on sea and on land.

Suppose that Utopia and Erewhon are at war. An Erewhon merchant ship, fleeing from a Utopian warship encountered on the high seas, tries to escape into the territorial waters of a neutral state. The Utopian warship, pursuing, captures the Erewhon merchant ship in the neutral territorial waters. Utopia might seek to justify the intrusion on the ground of "hot pursuit."

It appears to be at least the American and British view that the capture would be unlawful under international law in relation to the neutral state. Would it also be unlawful in relation to the enemy state, Erewhon? On this, foreign offices and learned writers have expressed conflicting views, but there appears to be no established doctrine.

The legal questions grow murkier when the scenario shifts from sea to land, and murkier still when groups of varying and uncertain allegiance become involved. American experience in this regard goes back a long way, with the United States on both the giving and the receiving end.

In the Seminole War in 1817, Gen. Andrew Jackson pursued the retreating Seminole Indians into West Florida, then Spanish territory, where he captured St. Marks and Pensacola in which the Indians had taken refuge. Spain protested and demanded indemnity. The United States restored St. Marks and Pensacola to Spain, but justified Jackson's conduct on the ground of "the total and lamentable failure of Spain to restrain, by force, her Indians from hostility against the citizens of the United States," in Secretary of State John Adams' words.

During an insurrection in Canada in 1837, the shoe was on the other foot. Defeated Canadian insurgents took refuge in the United States, where they apparently enlarged their forces through participation by Americans.

From Buffalo, they harassed the Canadian side of the Niagara River, using a small steamer named "The Caroline," since the United States had not effectively policed her own front line into it and set it adrift over Niagara Falls.

The United States protested the violation of her territory, but the British insisted their act was necessary as self defense since the United States had not effectively policed her own front line into it and set it adrift over Niagara Falls.

In time, the affair was amicably settled. Britain apologized for the violation of American territory. The United States conceded there was a "self defense" exception to the inviolability of territory, but emphasized that such exceptions arose only when the "necessity of that self-defense is instant, overwhelming, and leaving no choice of means, and no moment for deliberation," in Secretary of State Daniel Webster's words.

Comparable difficulties arose later between the United States and Mexico when, over a period of years, armed bands from Mexico intruded into the United States and escaped back into Mexico.

County Legislature Will Convene Tonight

Members of the new County Legislature, meeting for the first time at 8 o'clock tonight at the county building, will be bringing home some bad news to their constituents.

The new list of the county charges assessed to each township as its portion of the $15,000,000 county budget is expected to be available to each legislator tonight.

No surprises are expected in the organizational meeting of the new legislature and election of a chairman, designation of majority and minority leaders are expected to go according to political tradition.

Peter J. Savago, R-New Paltz-Gardiner, will be named chairman of the legislature. He served as chairman of the last Board of Supervisors. Douglas Dye, R-2nd District, is expected to be named majority leader, and Roger W. Mabie, D-7th District, minority leader.

Edward R. Mance, recently named clerk of the board to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Robert A. Snyder, will be named clerk of the legislature. A new deputy clerk is also expected to be named from a number of candidates.

Other county appointments are expected to be purely academic with the political makeup of the board predominantly Republican by a 28 to 5 margin.

Declining Lobster Industry Source of Concern in Maine

By JIM STROTHMAN

AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Aided by ideas from aerospace industries, the State of Maine is laying scientific groundwork to turn the tide on Mother Nature and stem a declining lobster supply.

Experts claim a gradual drop in ocean temperature over the past few years has caused the annual Maine lobster catch to dwindle. They have chosen a first experimental site to see if shoreline coves can be warmed artificially by discharge from power plant coolant systems.

If successful, other coves along the northeastern United States coastline may be heated.

Discover Break In Glasco Main

A serious water pressure problem which could have impeded firemen was averted when a water main break was discovered on Hudson Street, Glasco, Wednesday morning.

Fred Francello, Glasco Water District superintendent said the six-inch main break was at the lowest portion of the hamlet in front of the Hudson View Market and would have lowered the pressure dangerously if it had not been sealed off and isolated in time. The break was discovered about 7:30 and sealed off by 8 a.m., Francello said.

Constanzi Construction Co. was called to make repairs on the line. Francello was reappointed superintendent at Tuesday afternoon's town organization meeting.

Miranda, faintest of Uranus five known satellites, escaped detection until 1948.

field information we have gained over the last 20 years," said Robert L. Dow, director of research for the Maine Department of Sea and Shore Fisheries. "We think we have enough background to develop information on how lobsters could be produced in greater number at reduced cost."

Ideally, the average annual temperature for Maine lobsters, Dow said in an interview, is between 47½ and 49½ degrees. For 1967, however, the average water temperature will be between 44½ and 45 degrees, he predicted.

Scientists at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology blame the cooler offshore waters on a change in solar activity, which has shifted zonally, winds to lower latitudes. They claim it may be another 20 years until a warming trend begins.

"The cooler water has not only affected lobsters," Dow said, "but other shellfish—oysters, clams, shrimp and scallops. And it is not only peculiar to Maine. Other Northeastern states and Canada have had similar problems."

Statistics tell the story. In 1957, Maine's lobster catch totaled 24½ million pounds. In 1965, it was down to 19 million pounds. Dow predicted the 1967 total will be about 15 million pounds.

round of legal size, Dow explained.

The large marine crustaceans grow by shedding their shells. But they "molt"—or grow—less often in colder water. As a result, there are fewer lobsters.

City Democrats Meet Jan. 11

The Democratic city committee will hold its reorganizational meeting Thursday, Jan. 11, at 8 p. m. at the American Legion Hall on West O'Reilly Street.

The party will be electing a chairman, vice-chairman secretary, treasurer and nine members of the executive board.

The regular meeting of the committee meets on the fourth Thursday of the month, or Jan. 25.

The reorganizational meeting replaces the Dec. 28 date which was called off because of Kingston's 10-inch snowstorm.

partment of Sea and Shore Fisheries is considering plans to raise the water temperature in a cove on Cousins Island, Casco Bay, by distributing heated water discharged from the coolant system of a nearby power plant.

Heated water from the plant now rises to the surface of the cove, the director noted. The problem will be to distribute this heat, so temperatures on the bottom are suited to the comfort and happiness of the lobster population there to promote molting, growth and reproduction. Only a few degrees change in the present water temperature would be necessary for this to occur, officials said.

Incongruous Pattern in Cairo

Egypt: A Wartime Fervor and a Pitch for the Tourist Trade

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Almost seven months after the country's disastrous defeat in Sinai, the capital of Egypt presents an incongruous pattern of forlorn tourism and potential turmoil. Authorities are trying to maintain a wartime fervor while simultaneously vying for tourists.

Far From Universal

Civil defense measures date back to the conflict of June. Many windows are coated with a heavy dark blue paint. Motor car headlights are also supposed to be painted blue.

These measures, intended for blackouts, are fairly general but far from universal in the capital. They may foster a wartime psychology, but otherwise it is difficult to discern their utility. Cairo must be one of the easiest cities to detect from the air. The country has only one river, and most of the year the city glimmers in clear moonlight.

Store windows frequently have strips of tape criss-crossing their surface to prevent splintering. They give parts of the city a grim air, like London during the blitz.

Many doorways have a shelter barrier. The idea is that the halls or lobbies of buildings should serve as shelters. The barrier at the entrance is to protect the lobby from flying fragments if a bomb bursts on the pavement.

Capital Crowded

The capital is crowded with families evacuated from the Suez Canal zone. The whole area several miles back from the canal has been declared a military area and 300,000 persons were moved out. The only housing readily available is the large embassy-type villas or expansive apartments.

Prices keep soaring despite government efforts to hold the line. Razor blades are hard to find. Luxury goods are expensive—about $11 for a bottle of Scotch. The main department stores are well stocked with usable household items at moderate rates.

At a time when the city should be flooded with winter tourists, the trade is stagnant. Before last June the Nile Hilton boasted an occupancy rate of more than 95 per cent. By mid-December the hotel's rate had inched back to between 30 and 50 per cent but prospects for the winter season remained dim.

The renowned Shepherd's Hotel was completely closed until November.

The new hotels, the 15-story Cleopatra Palace and the El Borg next to the lofty Cairo Tower, were closed until recently.

Life in Cairo Goes On Upstream, workmen still toil

at the new Sheraton, a splendid edifice of more than 25 floors, and the Fontanahof, another Nile-bank project of more than 15 stories. Neither is finished, but there is no hurry.

At the Pyramids, 4,000 years of history gaze down at idle camels and listless guides.

ramids with a lengthy, all-Arabic floor show. A good Moslem doesn't drink, but the Arizona somehow manages to sell quite a bit of Scotch.

Egypt usually receives a million dollars every other day from Suez Canal tolls, and from sales or services to passing ships. This income is gone. For the time being, other Arab states such as Saudi Arabia, Libya and Kuwait, wealthy from oil royalties, are advancing loans to replace it.

Incongruous Pattern in Cairo

Egypt: A Wartime Fervor and a Pitch for the Tourist Trade

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN
Associated Press Writer

CAIRO (AP) — Almost seven months after the country's disastrous defeat in Sinai, the capital of Egypt presents an incongruous pattern of forlorn tourism and potential turmoil.

Authorities are trying to maintain a wartime fervor while simultaneously vying for tourists.

Far From Universal

a heavy dark blue paint. Motor car headlights are also supposed to be painted blue.

These measures, intended for blackouts, are fairly general but far from universal in the capital. They may foster a wartime psychology, but otherwise it is difficult to discern their utility. Cairo must be one of the easiest cities to detect from the air. The country has only one river, and most of the year the city glitters in clear moonlight.

Store windows frequently have strips of tape criss-crossing their surface to prevent splintering. They give parts of the city a grim air, like London during the blitz.

Many doorways have a shelter barrier. The idea is that the halls or lobbies of buildings should serve as shelters. The barrier at the entrance is to protect the lobby from flying fragments if a bomb bursts on the pavement.

Capital Crowded

The capital is crowded with families evacuated from the Suez Canal zone. The whole area several miles back from the canal has been declared a military area and 300,000 persons were moved out. The only housing readily available is the large embassy-type villas or expensive apartments.

Prices keep soaring despite government efforts to hold the line. Razor blades are hard to find. Luxury goods are expensive—about $11 for a bottle of Scotch. The main department stores are well stocked with usable household items at moderate rates.

At a time when the city should be flooded with winter tourists, the trade is stagnant.

Before last June the Nile Hilton boasted an occupancy rate of more than 95 per cent. By mid-December the hotel's rate had inched back to between 30 and 50 per cent but prospects for the winter season remained dim.

The renowned Shepherd's Hotel was completely closed until November.

The new hotels, the 15-story Cleopatra Palace and the El Borg next to the lofty Cairo Tower, were closed until recently.

Life in Cairo Goes On

Upstream, workmen still toil

at the new Sheraton, a splendid edifice of more than 25 floors, and the Fontanahof, another Nile-bank project of more than 15 stories. Neither is finished, but there is no hurry.

At the Pyramids, 4,000 years of history gaze down at idle camels and listless guides.

amids with a lengthy, all-Arabic floor show. A good Moslem doesn't drink, but the Arizona somehow manages to sell quite a bit of Scotch.

Egypt usually receives a million dollars every other day from Suez Canal tolls, and from sales or services to passing ships. This income is gone. For the time being, other Arab states such as Saudi Arabia, Libya and Kuwait, wealthy from oil royalties, are advancing loans to replace it.

Key Administration Sources Behind LBJ in Public Appeal

By JOSEPH R. COYNE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's exemption of Western Hemisphere nations from his appeal that Americans not travel abroad is based on solid economic foundations, say key administration sources. They said present administration thinking is to continue that exemption when and if restrictive measures—such as a head tax or a tax based on the number of days spent abroad—are adopted to discourage overseas travel.

One source said the basic rationale behind the exemption is that money spent by U.S. tourists in other Western Hemisphere countries eventually returns in one form or another—increased travel to the United States or export sales and services, for example.

In outlining on New Year's Day his program to stem the U.S. dollar drain, President Johnson appealed for Americans to "defer for the next two years all nonessential travel outside the Western Hemisphere."

He added: "I'm asking the secretary of the Treasury to explore with appropriate congressional committees legislation to help achieve this objective."

One key official cited this sentence as proof that if more restrictions on travel are adopted the Western Hemisphere will continue to enjoy its exemption.

Although the administration has not legally defined the Western Hemisphere for purposes of the President's appeal, officials said Bermuda, the Bahamas and the West Indies generally are considered part of the hemisphere.

In fact, one source said another factor in the exemption is that the departure of American tourists from some of these resort areas could severely hurt the economies there.

The large number of tourists and daily travelers between the United States and Canada and the United States and Mexico was cited as another reason for the exemption. One source said the headaches in administering a travel ban with Canada and Mexico would be phenomenal if not impossible.

One of the major reasons the United States has traditionally enjoyed a favorable trade balance has been its extensive export trade with both border neighbors, Canada and Mexico.

are the best U.S. export customers and this country is the best customer for their exports.

Meanwhile, the Treasury Department declined to confirm any reports of possible restrictions on travel which might be proposed to Congress.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler has said "the whole range of alternatives" is being considered.

There were these other developments Wednesday in the wake of the President's appeal:

—Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., said the nation's dollar drain could be solved by forcing U.S. ship owners with vessels registered in foreign nations to register under the U.S. flag.

"If U.S. ships were carrying just half our cargo, instead of just seven per cent, there would be no balance-of-payments deficit at all," Howard told an AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department meeting.

—Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., called in a statement for a tourist incentive plan—featuring cost-cutting coupons—to inspire more Europeans to visit America.

—W. Willard Wirtz, secretary of labor, said the six-month-old U.S. copper strike has caused American manufacturers to import foreign copper and thereby contributed to the dollar drain.

Library Speaker Next Wednesday

Subway Tokens Scarce in City

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City subway straphanger, fresh from weeks of worry over the threat of a transit strike, has new cause for concern. He's been put on rationing—for subway tokens.

"Two Tokens Only Per Person. Sorry," read the hand-lettered sign on a subway change booth at Grand Central Station. Inside a clerk politely refused a pretty secretary's request for 50 of the 20-cent tokens.

"What's the matter, isn't my money good," she demanded, unsure of the new policy. "Your money's good but two to a customer is all that is allowed," the clerk replied.

He repeated the explanation given by Transit Authority member John J. Gilhooley who warned Wednesday that hoarding of the half-inch round tokens which operate the turnstiles was creating "a serious problem."

Thousands of subway riders have been saving the tokens in anticipation of a fare increase as a result of the new contract agreed upon recently for Transit Authority employees.

"Hoarding tokens is a waste of time and money," Gilhooley said. "If the fare is raised to 25 cents, we can tell you now that we will use a quarter, not a token, and thereafter we will no longer accept tokens."

Gilhooley said there are about 29 million tokens now in circulation and the TA has begun dipping into its reserve of 3 million to keep the turnstiles clicking.

He added: "You who are hoarding could some day be left with thousands and thousands of virtually worthless pieces of copper and zinc."

Seek Rocky's Help to Curb Crime in City

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York City's comptroller Mario A. Procaccino, sought Gov. Rockefeller's support today for a five-point, state-level program designed to curb crime in the city.

Procaccino arranged a late-morning meeting with the Republican governor to present his program formally.

The Democratic officeholder proposed to:

— Revise the new penal law so that a police officer could use his pistol to make an arrest without having to wait to determine whether the suspect was prepared to use "deadly force" to avoid arrest.

— Make it unlawful to carry a knife with a blade of three inches or longer "unless possessed for a legitimate purpose."

— Authorize mandatory, minimum prison sentences for repeated criminal offenders. The new penal law leaves this to the judge's discretion.

Procaccino also called for a re-examination of "the whole area of criminal punishment" and a study of the present policy of treating youthful offenders. He advocated more severe punishment for crimes of violence.

Three Arrested In Car Thefts

Accused of charges in connection with investigation of a stolen car operation in Orange County, three men were taken into custody Wednesday afternoon by Newburgh State Police on warrants issued after a grand jury investigation.

State Police Sergeant Robert Cleary said Arthur L. Palmer, 24, of Route 9W, Newburgh, was charged with 11 counts of criminally possessing stolen property, 11 counts of second degree grand larceny, 11 counts of criminally possessing a forged instrument and 11 counts of vehicle and traffic violations relating to dealing in stolen cars.

Also arrested on bench warrants by Newburgh troopers were John Palmerone, 39, of Union Avenue, Newburgh, and Joseph Thomas Palmerone, 36, of Route 17K, also Newburgh. They were charged with first degree perjury.

The three defendants were committed to the county jail in Goshen pending arraignment in county court.

According to Sergeant Cleary, Palmer allegedly was the distributor of the stolen cars. His arrest tied in with the recovery of 15 stolen automobiles in the Newburgh area last October, authorities said.

The bench warrants were issued after a grand jury investigation on Tuesday. The recovered cars were valued in excess of $77,000, according to Sergeant Cleary.

Pair Charged With Speeding

Accused of racing on ice-coated Dutchess Turnpike, Town of Poughkeepsie, after 1 a. m. today, two youths were arrested on vehicle and traffic charges after their cars were involved in a collision in front of the town police station.

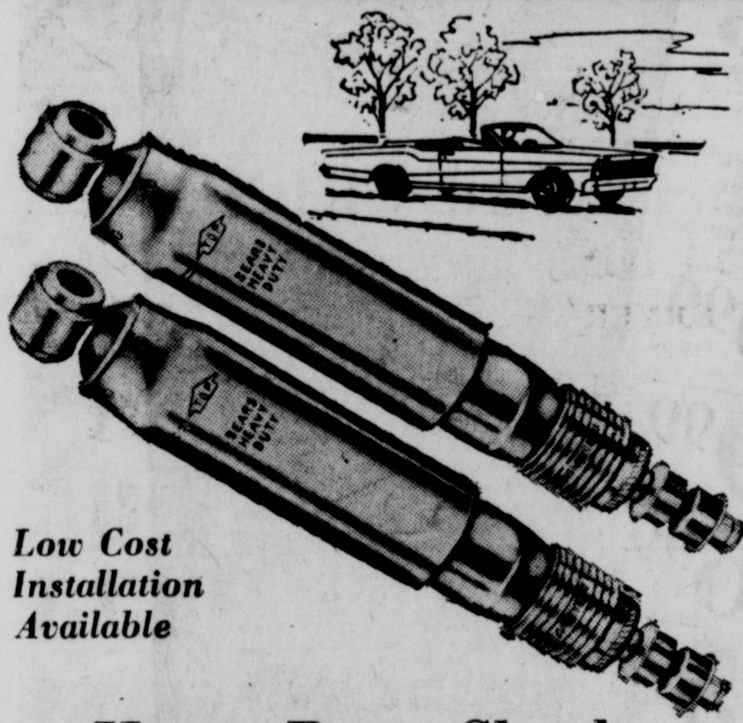

Police Chief Charles Schade said the cars were operated by John Roscoe, 16, of 49 Park Avenue, Poughkeepsie, and John Thorne, 18, of 69 Park Avenue.

Roscoe was charged with driving without a license, operating a car at speed not reasonable and prudent, and following too closely. Thorne was cited for reckless driving and driving at a speed not reasonable and prudent. The summonses are returnable on Jan. 9 before Town Justice George Pagnones.

According to Chief Schade both vehicles were traveling west on Route 44 when Thorne lost control and his car flipped over. His vehicle was hit by the Roscoe sedan, police said. There were no injuries.

—Rep. James J. Howard, D-N.J., said the nation's dollar drain could be solved by forcing U.S. ship owners with vessels registered in foreign nations to register under the U.S. flag. "If U.S. ships were carrying just half our cargo, instead of just seven per cent, there would be no balance-of-payments deficit at all," Howard told an AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department meeting.

—Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., called in a statement for a tourist incentive plan—featuring cost-cutting coupons—to inspire more Europeans to visit America.

—W. Willard Wirtz, secretary of labor, said the six-month-old U.S. copper strike has caused American manufacturers to import foreign copper and thereby contributed to the dollar drain.

Subway Tokens Scarce in City

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City subway straphanger, fresh from weeks of worry over the threat of a transit strike, has new cause for concern. He's been put on rationing—for subway tokens.

"Two Tokens Only Per Person. Sorry," read the hand-lettered sign on a subway change booth at Grand Central Station. Inside a clerk politely refused a pretty secretary's request for 50 of the 20-cent tokens.

"What's the matter, isn't my money good," she demanded, unsure of the new policy. "Your money's good but two to a customer is all that is allowed," the clerk replied.

He repeated the explanation given by Transit Authority member John J. Gilhooley who warned Wednesday that hoarding of the half-inch round tokens which operate the turnstiles was creating "a serious problem."

Thousands of subway riders have been saving the tokens in anticipation of a fare increase as a result of the new contract agreed upon recently for Transit Authority employees.

"Hoarding tokens is a waste of time and money," Gilhooley said. "If the fare is raised to 25 cents, we can tell you now that we will use a quarter, not a token, and thereafter we will no longer accept tokens."

Gilhooley said there are about 29 million tokens now in circulation and the TA has begun dipping into its reserve of 3 million to keep the turnstiles clicking.

He added: "You who are hoarding could some day be left with thousands and thousands of virtually worthless pieces of copper and zinc."

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York City's comptroller Mario A. Procaccino, sought Gov. Rockefeller's support today for a five-point, state-level program designed to curb crime in the city.

Procaccino arranged a late-morning meeting with the Republican governor to present his program formally.

The Democratic officeholder proposed to:

—Revise the new penal law so that a police officer could use his pistol to make an arrest without having to wait to determine whether the suspect was prepared to use "deadly force" to avoid arrest.

—Make it unlawful to carry a knife with a blade of three inches or longer "unless possessed for a legitimate purpose."

—Authorize mandatory, minimum prison sentences for repeated criminal offenders. The new penal law leaves this to the judge's discretion.

Procaccino also called for a re-examination of "the whole area of criminal punishment" and a study of the present policy of treating youthful offenders. He advocated more severe punishment for crimes of violence.

Three Arrested In Car Thefts

Accused of charges in connection with investigation of a stolen car operation in Orange County, three men were taken into custody Wednesday afternoon by Newburgh State Police on warrants issued after a grand jury investigation.

State Police Sergeant Robert Cleary said Arthur L. Palmer, 24, of Route 9W, Newburgh, was charged with 11 counts of criminally possessing stolen property, 11 counts of second degree grand larceny, 11 counts of criminally possessing a forged instrument and 11 counts of vehicle and traffic violations relating to dealing in stolen cars.

Also arrested on bench warrants by Newburgh troopers were John Palmerone, 39, of Union Avenue, Newburgh, and Joseph Thomas, Palmerone, 36, of Route 17K, also Newburgh. They were charged with first degree perjury.

The three defendants were committed to the county jail in Goshen pending arraignment in county court.

According to Sergeant Cleary, Palmerone allegedly was the distributor of the stolen cars. His arrest tied in with the recovery of 15 stolen automobiles in the Newburgh area last October, authorities said.

The bench warrants were issued after a grand jury investigation on Tuesday. The recovered cars were valued in excess of $77,000, according to Sergeant Cleary.

Pair Charged With Speeding

Accused of racing on ice-coated Dutchess Turnpike, Town of Poughkeepsie, after 1 a. m. today, two youths were arrested on vehicle and traffic charges after their cars were involved in a collision in front of the town police station.

Police Chief Charles Schade said the cars were operated by John Roscoe, 16, of 49 Park Avenue, Poughkeepsie, and John Thorne, 18, of 69 Park Avenue.

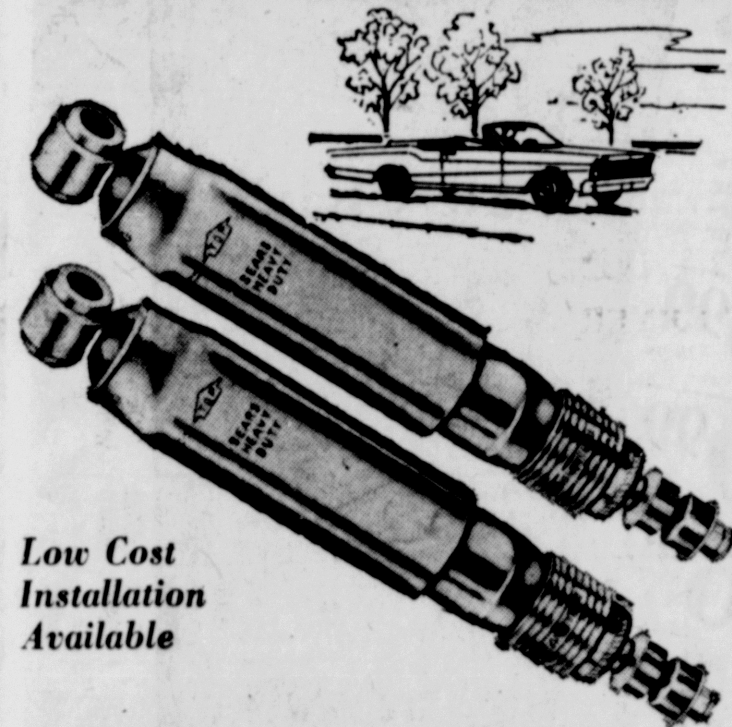

Roscoe was charged with driving without a license, operating a car at speed not reasonable and prudent, and following too closely. Thorne was cited for reckless driving and driving at a speed not reasonable and prudent. The summonses are returnable on Jan. 9 before Town Justice George Pagones.

According to Chief Schade both vehicles were traveling west on Route 44 when Thorne lost control and his car flipped over. His vehicle was hit by the Roscoe sedan, police said. There were no injuries.

States Fail to Cope With Ailing Medicaid Program

By BRUCE BOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) —

Leaders in the 50 states often moan that they cannot do a better job of fulfilling state government responsibilities because the federal government soaks up the key money sources. But only a handful of states make that argument sound convincing. When Medicare was established under Social Security, Congress deliberately left to the states the problem of caring for the "medically indigent" — those aged folk who could not qualify for Medicare because they lacked the work qualifications under Social Security.

In pre-Medicare days, this was known as the Kerr-Mills program and it involved substantial state contributions. Today it is called "Medicaid," except in a few places like California.

But after all this time only 31 of the 50 states have authorizing Medicaid legislation on their books, and several of these have hardly gone beyond that.

The care provided for under Medicaid, where it is in fact given, varies so widely in basic quality that Congress in late 1967 adopted Social Security amendments which, by Jan. 1, 1970, will begin applying certain minimum standards.

They simply will demand that every state which attempts to carry out such a program must offer the "medically indigent" some hospital benefits, some nursing-home care, some X-ray and other laboratory services, and some coverage of doctor bills.

State laws presently on the books are an incredible hodgepodge, and they are likely to be in considerable confusion in the next two years. Some states have dragged their feet so long that they seem to be offering Washington an open invitation to move into yet another field of activity.

In the operation of the Social Security system itself, there has been other opportunity to watch the states perform. And, again, many have not distinguished themselves.

Because Social Security in its beginning years inevitably affected so many elderly people who could not get reasonable full benefits at retirement (they had a limited earnings and work record until Social Security), large numbers got further help from "old age assistance." (This is welfare-type aid with major support from state contributions.)

As Social Security has matured and improved its benefit levels and other features, however, the states have been in no rush to act in related fields (like Medicaid) where responsible performance might in the future keep Washington out.

They have instead proved only too eager, in many cases, to cut back their own efforts and try to shed the problem altogether.

Social Security officials speak with some pride over the fact that the percentage of the older population getting old age assistance has dropped from 22 to 11 per cent and may soon fall to 5 per cent. Without the enlargements and other changes in Social Security, the burden of old age relief programs would fall much more heavily upon the states.

Yet some states act so bluntly to unload this expense that the net effect of their action in response to higher Social Security benefit levels is to leave the marginally poor among the aged no better off for the changes.

If the states are really anxious to keep the federal government from handling more and more of this and other problems, they have a funny way of showing it.

Span Area Housing Hearing Tonight

A public hearing concerning proposed plans for a 25-lot housing development along the Hudson River, just north of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, will be held tonight at 8 in the Chambers School.

Opposition to the plan has been voiced by the Hudson River Valley Commission which cites the design's "poor street arrangement and lack of access to the river" which "might impair the scenic and natural resources of the valley." The commission has offered a redesign which features about 62 lots and a sewage treatment plant, according to Mrs. Hazel DePaola, developer.

The commission, according to its designer, Dana Roberts, is concerned with the percolation rate of the clay soil, which he says will possibly contribute to contamination of wells.

Mrs. DePaola and the project sponsor, Leo Schwartzstein of Kingston and Yonkers, contend their plans, drawn by John Salapatis of Kingston, "make intelligent and appropriate use of the property." Mrs. DePaola has stated she feels the commission's redesign would contribute to hazardous road conditions, crowding of houses and high assessment of property in order to support the proposed sewage treatment plant construction.

Sizes Listed For Burned Out Napanoch Family

Appeals have been made by friends of the Henry Green family of Napanoch who were made homeless Wednesday morning when fire razed their home on Route 209 and destroyed all of their personal belongings—including gifts the family received for Christmas.

Donations of clothing, furniture or cash may be left at the Napanoch Firehouse in charge of Chief Donald Wilhelm, who directed volunteer firefighters from three communities in a losing battle to save the Green family's home.

The family of six, including four children, are in need of clothing and a place to live until they find some place to fit up as their permanent home. Sizes of clothing for the family are:

Henry Jr., clothes size 5-12, shoe size is 11½. Sizes for Mrs. Virginia Green are: misses size 12, shoe size is 6. Friends and neighbors of the family started to collect clothes and furniture for the homeless family soon after their three-story frame house burned to the ground.

Elect Finch Board Chairman

Morton Finch has been elected chairman of the Board of Fire Commissioners.

Finch, who resides at 154 TenBroeck Avenue, was elected to the post during Tuesday's annual reorganizational meeting.

During the meeting, the Rev. Robert T. Shellenberger and the Rev. Edward I. Farrelly were appointed departmental chaplains. Doctors Jack Lehner and John A. Cooke were re-appointed departmental surgeons. A new surgeon, Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, was added to the department.

The other three members of the board are Fred P. Reis, Raymond W. Garraghan, president; and Robert J. Hinkley.

Congregational Church Annual Meeting Jan. 25

"An Old Faith and a New Pattern . . . Can It Work?" will be the subject of the sermon Sunday at 10 a.m. at the First Congregational Church, Saugerties.

Susan Burch will be in charge of opening devotions.

The annual congregational meeting will be held Thursday, Jan. 25 at 7:30. Mrs. Norman Christie has accepted charge of the cradle roll and has been welcomed as a member of the church school staff.

The first meeting of the new year for the Women's Fellowship will be Thursday, Jan. 11 in the Church School rooms.

Arrest 19-Year-Old Youth As $960 Robbery Suspect

A 19-year-old youth, Emerson "Tookie" DuBois, was arrested by Kingston detectives yesterday and charged with the Dec. 30 robbery of a money bag from a woman in the Kingston Shopping Plaza.

DuBois, who gave his address as 37 Broadway, was taken into custody at his home Wednesday afternoon. Police also booked him on charges of possessing a dangerous weapon, unlawful possession of drugs, possession of a hypodermic instrument, and unlawful possession of firearms. The youth pleaded innocent to the charges.

Appearing in court this morning, DuBois had his case adjourned until Friday. He told officials he wanted a lawyer. Judge George A. Beck said bail would be set tomorrow.

Court records indicate that DuBois was arrested following an intensive investigation by detectives. Sworn depositions reveal that there were two witnesses to the alleged robbery.

Mrs. George R. Bixby, Woodstock, manager of Nugent's Dress Shop, was robbed of $960 Saturday night when a man wearing a ski mask pushed her to the ground and grabbed the store's money bag. Mrs. Bixby was about to deposit the cash in the New York National Bank when the incident occurred.

It was learned today that two youths, Allan Drake of Hurley and John Tweedy of Kingston, witnesses to the attack, chased the suspect and apprehended him along an alley in the shopping plaza. The youths told police they unmasked the suspect, identifying DuBois, but left him go because they knew him when they were students. Tweedy and Drake said they didn't want DuBois to get into trouble. Later, police questioned the youths and learned further details, detectives said.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to work irregularly lower early Thursday in active trading. The ticker tape was late.

Losses outnumbered gains at a ratio of about 4 to 3.

The Dow Jones Industrial average lost 3.82 at 900.31.

After a mixed opening the trend settled to the downside.

Air lines and gold mining issues put on a steadier performance following their weakness of the past couple of sessions.

Weakness continued, however, among pivotal blue chips. Du Pont dropped 2 and Eastman Kodak 1.

Span Area Housing Hearing Tonight

A public hearing concerning proposed plans for a 25-lot housing development along the Hudson River, just north of the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, will be held tonight at 8 in the Chambers School.

Opposition to the plan has been voiced by the Hudson River Valley Commission which cites the design's "poor street arrangement and lack of access to the river" which "might impair the scenic and natural resources of the valley." The commission has offered a redesign which features about 62 lots and a sewage treatment plant, according to Mrs. Hazel DePaola, developer.

The commission, according to its designer, Dana Roberts, is concerned with the percolation rate of the clay soil, which he says will possibly contribute to contamination of wells.

Mrs. DePaola and the project sponsor, Leo Schwartzstein of Kingston and Yonkers, contend their plans, drawn by John Salapatis of Kingston, "make intelligent and appropriate use of the property." Mrs. DePaola has stated she feels the commission's redesign would contribute to hazardous road conditions, crowding of houses and high assessment of property in order to support the proposed sewage treatment plant construction.

Sizes Listed For Burned Out Napanoch Family

Appeals have been made by friends of the Henry Green family of Napanoch who were made homeless Wednesday morning, when fire razed their home on Route 209 and destroyed all of their personal belongings—including gifts the family received for Christmas.

THE NEW STAMP — The Post Office Department made public the design of an American Flag postage stamp in the new first class denomination of six cents. It will be issued with first day ceremonies in Washington Jan. 24. The stamp repeats the theme of the 5-cent stamp it replaces. It shows the Flag towering over the White House, in a view taken from the Pennsylvania Avenue side, with the Washington Monument and the Jefferson Memorial visible in the distance. The flag will be printed in natural colors. The White House will be detailed in blue and the trees will be green. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Postal Rates Jump Jan. 7th

Increased rate for all classes of mail except parcel post and international mail will go into effect Jan. 7, Kingston Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk reminded postal customers today. "Even with the new rates of six cents for first class mail and 10 cents for air mail, postal service is still a real bargain," Postmaster Newkirk said. "For six cents you can send a letter to any of the 50 states, to any United States territories or possessions, to Canada or Mexico or to an American serviceman stationed anywhere in the world."

Postmaster Newkirk pointed out that the new rate for post cards will be five cents and for airmail post cards, eight cents. He said the added cent to the letter rate is a 20 per cent increase compared to the 24 per cent boost in the rates for mailing newspapers and magazines and a 34 per cent hike for advertising circulars, "occupant" mail and other material in the third-class category.

Single Category
The new rate of six cents per ounce for first class mail applies up to 13 ounces and the rate of 10 cents per ounce for air mail applies up to seven ounces. Under the new structure all first class mail over 13 ounces and all air mail over seven ounces will be merged into a single category.

These heavier pieces of first class and air mail subject to the single rate schedule will be delivered by the fastest means of transportation. A flat rate of 80 cents will be charged for all mail in this category up to one pound, the present air parcel post rates will continue to apply, except that the postage on matter weighing between one and five pounds will change at half-pound intervals rather than one-pound intervals.

Postmaster Newkirk said that the new rate structure will mean a reduction of postage on some parcels.

Rate for Cards
Another rate change that will effect the general public is the increase from four to six cents for the first two ounces of individual pieces of third-class mail. Unsealed greeting cards may be sent at this rate, Postmaster Newkirk said. He emphasized that the new rate on unsealed greeting cards will not go into effect until January 7 and until then they can be mailed at the old rate of four cents.

Postmaster Newkirk also noted that effective Jan. 7 special handling will be available on third-class parcels weighing between eight and sixteen ounces. Special handling has not been available on these parcels since 1958, when packages weighing between eight and sixteen ounces were transferred from fourth to third-class mail.

No Change
There will be no changes in the charges for special delivery, special handling, registered mail, certified mail, cash on delivery or insurance, Postmaster Newkirk said. "We have an ample supply of one-cent stamps on hand," Postmaster Newkirk said, "for those people who have five-cent stamps and need one-cent stamps to make up the postage required under the new rates."

Higher rates also will go into effect Jan. 7 for all categories of second-class mail, bulk-rate third class mail, controlled circulation mail, and the educational materials category of fourth-class mail. Mailers using these classes who need information on the new rate should contact the local Post Office, Postmaster Newkirk said.

GOPers in Albany:

Doubt Stricter Firearms Control

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Legislature's top - ranking Republican was reported today to be opposed to any move to enact strict gun-control legislation in New York State this year.

Republican sources said Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges and some other influential Republican senators were not inclined to approve Gov. Rockefeller's plea for substantially stricter firearms control.

Prospects Slim
Since Brydges has the final say on the fate of bills introduced in the Senate, prospects for passage of sweeping legislation in this area appeared slim.

In his state of the state message to the Legislature Wednesday, Rockefeller appealed for enactment of such legislation as part of his program to "wage war on crime."

Almost two months ago, Rockefeller said he would request the Legislature to require registration of all rifles and shotguns and impose "more effective control" over pistol permits.

Licensing for handguns long has been required by the state's Sullivan law.

Brydges and other influential upstate Republican lawmakers are said to be doubtful that such requirements for rifles and shotguns would do much to reduce crime.

Sen. John H. Hughes, R-Syracuse, told Rockefeller in a letter recently that statistics for the years 1965 and 1966 show that only a small percentage of the firearms used in the commission of crimes were rifles or shotguns.

In 1966, for example, Hughes said, of the 16,723 crimes committed in the state involving firearms, only 944 were carried out with rifles or shotguns.

Hughes cited figures collected by the Joint Legislative Committee on Crime, Its Causes, Control and Effect on Society. He is chairman of that committee.

Hughes said that, in 1966, according to committee figures, 8,734 of the 10,723 crimes involving use of firearms were carried out with unlicensed handguns.

Hughes and Senators Thomas Laverne of Rochester and Warren Anderson of Binghamton told a newsman they believe the burden of keeping firearms out of the hands of dangerous persons should rest basically with the federal government through such agencies as the Interstate Commerce Commission.

'Cooling Off' Possible
Hughes said he thought he might be able to approve some form of gun-control, such as a requirement for a "cooling off" delay of several days between the time a prospective gun owner asks to buy a rifle or handgun and the time he actually pays for it and takes it out of the store.

At the same time, Hughes complained that the potential cost of registering firearms would be prohibitive. Citing his committee's studies, he placed the cost of investigating a gun purchaser at about $20 per person.

Cambodian Talks

Assignment for Bowles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chester Bowles, U.S. ambassador to India, will be tapped by President Johnson as his special envoy in talks with Cambodia's Prince Sihanouk, the Washington Post reports.

State Department and diplomatic officials in Washington would neither confirm nor deny that Bowles is to draw the presidential assignment.

At issue in such talks, suggested last week by the Cambodia chief of state, is what U.S. officials term the growing use of Cambodia as a sanctuary for North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops battling the United States and her allies in South Vietnam.

The Post, quoting informed sources, said in today's editions that Bowles would be named for the task, possibly today. There was speculation elsewhere Bowles' selection might be announced at Secretary of State Dean Rusk's scheduled Washington news conference today.

Bowles, 66, has previously attempted to restore harmony to U.S.-Cambodian relations.

In 1965, he held talks in New Delhi with Cambodian officials after Sihanouk severed diplomatic relations with the United States.

Bowles also has already consulted on the sanctuary issue with officials in India, one of three members of the International Control Commission (ICC), which is supposed to supervise Cambodia's neutrality.

The United States has urged beefing up of the ICC. And Sihanouk, in extending an invitation to a U.S. envoy, blamed Communist Poland for using its veto power to block an extension of ICC operations. Poland and Canada are the other ICC members.

In the same statement—in response to questions posed by the Post—Sihanouk switched an earlier stand in acknowledging some Vietnamese Communist use of his nation as a sanctuary. And he said his nation would not fight U.S. troops engaged in "hot pursuit" of enemy forces into Cambodia so long as no population centers were involved.

In a New Year's Day statement, Sihanouk explained his position this way. "If Mr. Johnson wants to send an ambassador to Cambodia to negotiate, this is possible, but what is going to be negotiated? There will be negotiations so that the two (countries) do not become enemies."

At the same Jan. 1 news conference, the prince criticized unnamed French advisers to his cabinet he said were demanding that Cambodia fight back if U.S. troops crossed his borders in hot pursuit of Communists.

At his ranch near San Antonio, Tex., Johnson continued public silence on both Sihanouk's offer to receive an envoy and an apparent peace feeler from Hanoi.

In Paris, meanwhile, a correspondent for Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. said a North Vietnamese spokesman "confirmed more clearly than ever that Hanoi is willing to open peace talks at once if the bombing and all other acts of war against North Vietnam are halted."

Correspondent Bernard Redmont said the spokesman emphasized he spoke only for North Vietnam, and not for the Viet Cong in the South.

Redmont said the North Vietnamese diplomat "fully confirmed and reaffirmed" a statement by his prime minister, Nguyen Duy Trinh, in Hanoi last Saturday.

The Trinh statement, representing an apparent departure from previous North Vietnamese statements that a halt in U.S. bombing "could" lead to peace talks, is receiving close U.S. study.

Safe Cigarette Filter Withdrawn From School

HILLSDALE, N.J. (AP) — Robert Strickman said Wednesday he has terminated an agreement giving Columbia University the rights to his so-called safe cigarette filter. He said he will press for immediate return of the filter and also will file a $500-million damage suit against the National Broadcasting Co. Strickman said his lawyers notified Columbia last Sept. 19 that it had seriously breached a July 7 agreement in which it was assigned title to the filter. "I have done everything in my power to assist Columbia in curing its breach," Strickman said. "Today, nearly four months later, upon the advice of counsel, I have terminated the agreement and will press for immediate return of the cigarette filter."

An associate of Strickman's said the original agreement contained a termination date—Jan. 3, 1968.

There were rumors two months ago that Strickman might ask Columbia to give up its rights to the filter because the university had failed to test it. It was not disclosed whether that was the reason for today's announcement.

The suit against NBC, Strickman said, stems from statements on the Huntley-Brinkley Report Dec. 18 and 19 to the effect that "according to tests just completed by the University (Columbia), it (the Strickman filter) is no better than cigarette filters now in use."

Farmers Expect Same Income in '68
ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — New York State farmers will have about the same net income in 1968 as they had in 1967, despite prospects for increased farm receipts, an economist predicts.

The reason, Prof. C. A. Bratton of the State College of Agriculture at Cornell University said Wednesday, is that higher operating costs will reduce net income to 1967 levels.

Bratton, in a handbook published by the college, said milk prices and production could be expected to increase slightly.

Egg prices, considered unusually low last year, are likely to average 2 to 3 cents higher during the year, he said.

Bratton predicted also that surpluses from record grain crops last year would result in lower feed prices of $5 to $10 a ton.

GOPers in Albany:

Doubt Stricter Firearms Control

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Legislature's top-ranking Republican was reported today to be opposed to any move to enact strict gun-control legislation in New York State this year.

Republican sources said Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges and some other influential Republican senators were not inclined to approve Gov. Rockefeller's plea for substantially stricter firearms control.

Prospects Slim

Since Brydges has the final say on the fate of bills introduced in the Senate, prospects for passage of sweeping legislation in this area appeared slim.

In his state of the state message to the Legislature Wednesday, Rockefeller appealed for enactment of such legislation as part of his program to "wage war on crime."

Almost two months ago, Rockefeller said he would request the Legislature to require registration of all rifles and shotguns and impose "more effective control" over pistol permits.

Licensing for handguns long has been required by the state's Sullivan law.

Brydges and other influential upstate Republican lawmakers are said to be doubtful that such requirements for rifles and shotguns would do much to reduce crime.

Sen. John H. Hughes, R-Syracuse, told Rockefeller in a letter recently that statistics for the years 1965 and 1966 show that only a small percentage of the firearms used in the commission of crimes were rifles or shotguns.

In 1966, for example, Hughes said, of the 16,723 crimes committed in the state involving firearms, only 944 were carried out with rifles or shotguns.

Hughes cited figures collected by the Joint Legislative Committee on Crime, Its Causes, Control and Effect on Society. He is chairman of that committee.

Hughes said that, in 1966, according to committee figures, 8,734 of the 10,723 crimes involving use of firearms were carried out with unlicensed handguns.

Hughes and Senators Thomas Laverne of Rochester and Warren Anderson of Binghamton told a newsman they believe the burden of keeping firearms out of the hands of dangerous persons should rest basically with the federal government through such agencies as the Interstate Commerce Commission.

'Cooling Off' Possible

Hughes said he thought he might be able to approve some form of gun-control, such as a requirement for a "cooling off" delay of several days between the time a prospective gun owner asks to buy a rifle or handgun and the time he actually pays for it and takes it out of the store.

At the same time, Hughes complained that the potential cost of registering firearms would be prohibitive. Citing his committee's studies, he placed the cost of investigating a gun purchaser at about $20 per person.

Cambodian Talks

Assignment for Bowles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chester Bowles, U.S. ambassador to India, will be tapped by President Johnson as his special envoy in talks with Cambodia's Prince Sihanouk, the Washington Post reports.

The United States has urged the State Department and diplomatic officials in Washington would neither confirm nor deny that Bowles is to draw the presidential assignment.

At issue in such talks, suggested last week by the Cambodian chief of state, is what U.S. officials term the growing use of Cambodia as a sanctuary for North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops battling the United States and her allies in South Vietnam.

The Post, quoting informed sources, said in today's editions that Bowles would be named for the task, possibly today. There was speculation elsewhere

Bowles' selection might be announced at Secretary of State Dean Rusk's scheduled Washington news conference today. Bowles, 66, has previously attempted to restore harmony to U.S.-Cambodian relations.

In 1965, he held talks in New Delhi with Cambodian officials after Sihanouk severed diplomatic relations with the United States.

Bowles also has already con-

Safe Cigarette Filter Withdrawn From School

HILLSDALE, N.J. (AP) — Robert Strickman said Wednesday he has terminated an agreement giving Columbia University the rights to his so-called safe cigarette filter. He said he will press for immediate return of the filter and also will file a $500-million damage suit against the National Broadcasting Co.

Noting that Columbia is "responsive to pressures from government, the press and the public" and that "it is not in a position to promote... what is admittedly a commercial product," Strickman said that as soon as Columbia relinquishes its rights to the filter he will contribute the university's entire interest to a trust fund. The beneficiary would be Columbia's College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Strickman said his lawyers notified Columbia last Sept. 19 that it had seriously breached a

July 7 agreement in which it was assigned title to the filter. "I have done everything in my power to assist Columbia in curing its breach," Strickman said. "Today, nearly four months later, upon the advice of counsel, I have terminated the agreement and will press for immediate return of the cigarette filter."

An associate of Strickman's said the original agreement contained a termination date—Jan. 3, 1968.

There were rumors two months ago that Strickman might ask Columbia to give up its rights to the filter because the university had failed to test it. It was not disclosed whether that was the reason for today's announcement.

$78 Million Bond Sale To Chase Manhattan Bank

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Chase Manhattan Bank has been awarded a $78-million bond sale for road construction at 4.1968 per cent — the highest interest rate for state bonds in 44 years, State Comptroller Arthur Levitt said Wednesday.

The Chase Manhattan bid was the low bid and set a net interest cost to the state of $34,372,260 for the 20-year life of the bonds, Levitt said.

The only other bid on the bonds sold Wednesday was 4.2133 per cent from First National City Bank and associates.

The Democratic comptroller, a frequent critic of the fiscal policies of Gov. Rockefeller's Republican administration during the past eight years, termed the interest rate acceptable in view of the general level of yields and the tight money conditions that prevail.

But, he added, "this interest cost emphasizes anew the need for exercising tighter controls over the state's borrowing and spending policies."

The last time the state paid more than 4 per cent interest to borrow through bonds, Levitt said, was in April 1924, when $45 million in World War I bonus bonds was sold at a net interest cost of 4.13725 per cent.

The bond sale authorized Wednesday was the 10th made under a $500-million authorization approved by voters in 1956, during the Democratic administration of the then Gov. Averill Harriman.

Complete, New X-Ray Unit Placed Into Kingston Hospital Service

Brighter, Detailed Picture

The unit, basic purpose of which is to permit seeing structures inside the body, provides a much brighter and more detailed picture than previous equipment because the image is electronically intensified. Because of this electronic intensification, the amount of radiation can be significantly reduced in spite of the brighter image.

The equipment includes a high gain, high-resolution, compact image intensifier providing full binocular viewing of "life-size" images; an intensified image recorder with 90-mm camera for recording images at a maximum rate of one exposure per second; X-ray generator, and diagnostic X-ray table.

More Informative Image

With a gain in excess of 5,000 x, the image intensifier presents the fluoroscopist with a brightly illuminated, sharply defined image at reduced "r" exposures to himself and his patient. Further reduction in accumulated "r" levels is achieved through reduced fluoroscopic time allowed by the more informative image.

An f/0.75 lens system provides up to 50 per cent more brightness per unit input than the conventional lenses. Low-level white light is permitted in the room during the examination, increasing patient comfort.

'Zoom' Technique

The image recorder uses 90-mm unperfected film and has a 105-mm lens. Operating at one-sixth the exposure factor of conventional spot films, use of fractional-focus X-ray tube is permitted, providing greatly increased detail not possible with larger focal spots. The equipment makes possible a "zoom" technique to provide a magnified image. A density control detector functions as a part of a phototiming system in the unit.

The X-ray generator is a high-capacity, full-wave generator with a patented direct-reading meter which gives positive readings at exposures down to 1/120 second.

Dr. Smalldon in Charge

Kingston Hospital's X-ray Department is in charge of Dr. Ted R. Smalldon, radiologist, with Dr. Peter O'Hara as associate radiologist. The work has increased substantially in recent years. In 1967, the department performed 22,090 X-ray examinations for 17,028 patients, including both in- and out-patients. This is a 32 per cent increase in patient load over the past five years.

Greene County GI Killed in Vietnam

Army Warrant Officer Mark V. Schmidt, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Schmidt of Leeds, has been killed in action in Vietnam, the Pentagon said Wednesday, according to The Associated Press.

Schmidt was the second Greene County serviceman killed in Vietnam recently. Marine Sergeant Norman Clearwater, son of the late Richard D. and Ada A. Clearwater of Catskill, was believed killed in fighting around Quang Tri in a battle that killed 48 and wounded 81 leathernecks.

The Pentagon also said Army Sgt. Gregory E. Warner of Hancock, previously listed as missing, was dead of non-hostile causes.

Schmidt, 28, a helicopter pilot, was flying a military mission to rescue trapped U. S. soldiers when his craft was hit by hostile aircraft fire. The copter crashed and burned, according to word received by his parents. His mother is clerk-treasurer-collector for the village of Catskill.

A graduate of Catskill High School, Schmidt attended Hope College, graduated from Culinary Institute in Connecticut, and from Paul Smith where he took a course in hotel management. He enlisted in the U. S. Army two years ago, won his wings in January, and had been serving in Vietnam since February.

He had been stationed in Vietnam for a month. He attended Cat-kill schools. In 1960 he was awarded the Navy and Marine Corps Medal by President Johnson for valor in the Agadir, Morocco earthquake disaster area. Clearwater, out of sight of fellow workers and armed only with flashlight and wrecking bar, tunneled through fallen debris and concrete to rescue a woman who was entombed for 24 hours.

Schmidt's brother, Larry, is a captain in the Air Force stationed at Griffith.

Clearwater, 28, was a veteran of 11 years of Marine service.

Truck, Auto Mishap Kills Two Persons

KANONA, N.Y. (AP) — Warren Porter, 43, of Gillett, Pa., and Clifford Updike, 70, of Harris Hill, Elmira, were killed Wednesday night when the automobile in which they were riding and a pickup truck collided on a Route 15 bridge in this Finger Lakes hamlet.

Melvin Potter, 19, of the Buffalo suburb of Cheektowaga, also in the car, and Arland Hoad, 44, of Bath, the truck-driver, were admitted to Ira Davenport Hospital, Bath, State Police said. Hoad was reported in critical condition.

RV's Adult Registration

Registration for the second semester of the Adult Education Program at Rondout Valley Central School will take place next Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 8 and 9, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Charles Ayasse, director, has announced.

It is planned to offer the following courses on Monday evenings:

Elementary sewing, conversational French, conversational Spanish, woodworking for men/women, basic welding, high school equivalency and preparation for a learner's permit New York State.

On Tuesday evenings, these courses will be given:

Driver education (this class will start the 1st of March), elementary art, Latin, refinishing old and new furniture, instruction for school bus drivers (new drivers and anyone who would like to become a substitute driver in this school district).

Physical fitness for men will be offered on Wednesday evenings. Additional courses may be added if enrollment warrants and leadership is available.

There must be a minimum registration of 12 pupils before a class may begin. Any person over 17 years of age who is not attending regular high school courses may enroll in this program. Residents who plan to enroll are asked to aid the program by endeavoring to recruit others so that all classes may be offered.

Those interested in enrolling in any of the above courses who are unable to register on either Monday or Tuesday, may enroll by calling Ayasse at the high school.

Car Stolen

Andrew Imperati of 25 Lafayette Avenue yesterday reported his 1960 car stolen, police said. Imperati told police a man named Ralph Dutcher took his auto Jan. 2 for a test drive to see whether he might purchase the vehicle. Imperati said Dutcher never returned with his auto. A police alert has been issued.

RICHARD FITZGIBBONS

Hyde Park Boice Gages Names Chief Engineers

Gary P. Avaler, director of Research and Engineering at Boice Gages, Inc., Hyde Park, has announced the promotions of Richard T. Fitzgibbons and Allan Linderholm.

Fitzgibbons, who resides at 19 Ann Street, Town of Poughkeepsie, will be advanced to the position of chief design engineer, in the Metrology Measuring Machines Division. Linderholm has been named chief design engineer in the Dial Gage Division. The effective date for both promotions was scheduled for Jan. 1, 1968.

Fitzgibbons joined Boice Gages, Inc., on Aug. 1, 1961 as a manufacturing engineer and was advanced to the position of project engineer on Oct. 1, 1963. He will assume full responsibility in the Metrology Measuring Machines Division. He was formerly associated with the Daystrom Company and is a past chairman of the ASTM. He resides with his wife, Margaret and four children, Richard Jr., a graduate of Arlington High School; Margaret, Rhoda and Thomas.

Linderholm joined the Boice Gage company on June 1, 1957, as a draftsman. He was advanced to the position of design engineer on August 1, 1964—and was appointed project engineer on Sept. 1, 1964. The new position will include all research and customer engineering within the division.

A native of Sweden, he received his education in the Halstad Public School System and Gothenburg Technical University, where he received his degree in mechanical engineering. He also attended Kristinehamn College, receiving an advance rating in engineering.

Linderholm resides at 18 Baker Street, Poughkeepsie, with his wife, Asta and four-year-old son, Kent.

A member of A.S.T.M.E., Linderholm was formerly employed by Nillson Gage Company and the Lelliviana Svenska Electric Company of Sweden, one of the largest manufacturers of electrical products in Europe.

Hyde Park Firm Executive Sees 1968 Good Year

Ralph A. Boice, president of Boice Gages, Inc., Hyde Park, said he found excellent reasons for continuing good business conditions in 1968. Boice said that 1967 has been a good year, and as a result of extensive research and development new products that will be introduced in 1968, the outlook for the future indeed looks bright.

Boice added, "We have just doubled our manufacturing space and when we complete the remodeling of the office and other facilities, we will be in a position to handle the expected increased volume of production."

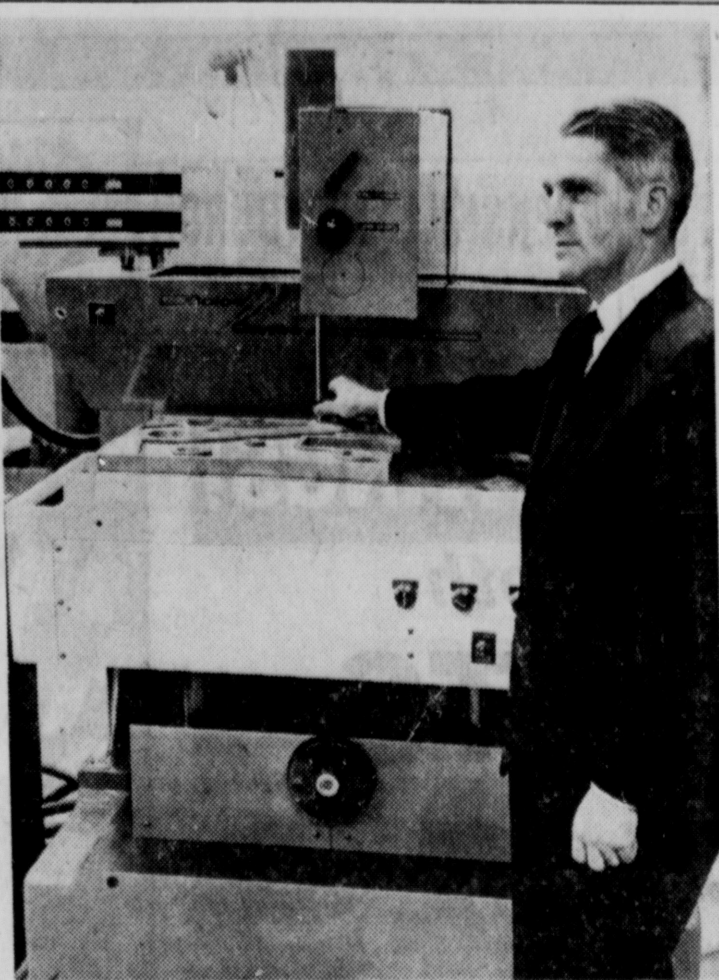

"We are now shipping Boice products, manufactured in Hyde Park, to just about every state in this country, as well as to Canada, Mexico, the Netherlands, India, and many other foreign countries. One of the largest and newest coordinate measuring machines ever built has joined the ACRA-CORD fleet—and we are very pleased with its acceptance by manufacturers in so many places all over the world."

This machine is built to do bigger jobs—it is the biggest measuring surface available anywhere—a full 40" X 24" X 8". It is also very fast—it inspects parts up to 20 times faster than conventional gaging methods.

William Livingston, assistant to the president, and general sales manager, added, "The new ACRA-CORD device, and new products, will make it necessary to add new personnel in the production areas, as well as technical people in both mechanical and electronics departments in the coming year."

Livingston added, "We now have approximately 100 employees—this will have to be increased." Boice and Livingston agreed that sales volume had about doubled in the past two years and they expect further advance in 1968.

Boice Gages, Inc., is now in the 19th year of operation in Dutchess County.

New Record Earnings Are Noted by Grand Union Co.

New records in earnings and sales were set by The Grand Union Company in both the third quarter and the first nine months of fiscal 1967, it was announced today by Thomas C. Butler, chairman and chief executive officer of the 564-store food and general merchandise retailing chain.

Grand Union had third quarter net earnings, after all taxes and depreciation, of $2,929,132 during the 13-week period ended Nov. 25, 1967. This was a new high for any third quarter in the company's 95-year history. It represents an increase of 28.7 per cent over earnings of $2,276,774 in the third quarter of 1966.

The 1967 third quarter earnings were equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to 49 cents a share on the 5,837,491 shares of common stock outstanding at the close of the period. In 1966, third quarter earnings equaled 38 cents a share on the shares then outstanding, after adjusting for a 5 per cent stock dividend distributed in May, 1967.

Third quarter sales were $231,364,587 in 1967, a new high for any third quarter and 11.2 per cent above sales of $208,138,030 in the comparable quarter of 1966.

For the first nine months of Grand Union's current fiscal year, through Nov. 25, net earnings totaled $7,698,539, a new record for any similar period. Earnings were $7,662,962 in the same period of 1966. Nine month earnings, after taxes and all other charges, were equal to $1.29 per common share of stock, based on the average number of shares outstanding during the 39-week period. This compares with earnings of $1.28 per share during the first nine months of 1966.

Grand Union sales for the first nine months of 1967 were a record $670,524,222, a gain of 8.9 per cent over sales of $615,943,142 in the corresponding period a year ago.

Grand Union currently operates 564 retail outlets, 532 supermarkets and 32 Grand Way discount department stores, in 11 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. There were 558 stores, including 30 Grand Ways, in operation at this time in 1966.

Aid for Amsterdam

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $98,900 loan to help Amsterdam, N.Y., plan a $13,694,000 learning center has been approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., reported Wednesday.

Among other things, the facility would include a high school for 2,000 pupils, a library, museum, art center; a performing arts theater; academic facilities for younger children; and vocational and physical education facilities for the elderly.

Nationwide Adds New Guarantees For All Insured

The Nationwide Mutual Insurance Companies announced today they will add a five-year renewal guarantee to their automobile and homeowners insurance policies.

The renewal guarantee will go into effect on Jan. 15. It will be extended to present policyholders, and to new policyholders after the usual 60-day processing period.

Bowman Doss, president of Nationwide, said: "This isn't merely a promise not to cancel auto policies in mid-term. It's an assurance that policies—both auto and homeowners—will be automatically renewed for a minimum of five years." These policies normally expire semiannually or annually.

"For the first time," Doss added, "a renewal guarantee is available to policyholders for a full line of personal insurance—auto, homeowners, life, and health." Nationwide also offers life and health insurance.

Doss said policyholders need to meet only two conditions to receive the guarantee for auto insurance:

They and other drivers in their families must have valid drivers' licenses;

Premiums must be paid when due. The payment of premiums is the only requirement for the homeowners guarantee.

The renewal guarantee for auto insurance will apply to all private passenger coverages. These include liability, collision, comprehensive, medical payments, and family compensation.

The renewal guarantee for both auto and homeowners policies begins on the effective date of the policy.

Doss said, "Adoption of the renewal guarantee, particularly for auto, is in response to the public's desire for assurance that policies won't be cancelled in mid-term and will be renewed when they normally expire. We feel our guarantee gives this assurance."

Nationwide, headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, is the country's fifth largest car insurer. It has 2,650,000 policies in force. Over 98 per cent of them are in states east of the Mississippi River.

For auto insurance, the renewal guarantee will be extended to about two million policyholders in 22 states east of the Mississippi, and the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico.

Among those excluded are the states of North Carolina, Virginia, and Massachusetts. Restrictive laws in those states require all companies to follow the same rulings, and to use the same rates and policy forms. This situation rules out the guarantee.

The guarantee also doesn't apply to some 200,000 commercially-rated vehicles and can't be extended to motorists covered by assigned risk plans.

Nationwide said the renewal guarantee will cover about 500,000 of its 552,000 homeowners policies. Excluded because of regulatory restrictions are policyholders in North Carolina, Mississippi, New Jersey, Virginia, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico.

Shop-Rite Lists Job Opportunity Offers in Store

Supermarkets General Corp., operators of 76 Shop-Rite Supermarkets has developed a job opportunity exhibit at the Plainfield, N. J., High School in connection with that school's Distributive Education program.

The exhibit, assembled by students in the Distributive Education classes, consists of posters, copies of the Supermarkets General Company newspaper, a variety of photographs and actual products carried in Shop-Rite Supermarkets.

Serving to dramatize work in Supermarkets and the varied company activities, one intent of the exhibit is to provide students with visual, down-to-earth information about the opportunities SGC offers for building a career in its Shop-Rite stores and other units.

Students were given a brochure describing the company's advancement opportunities, types of jobs available, working conditions, benefits, training programs.

The Shop-Rite exhibit was initiated by Alan Sorkin, manager of Supermarkets General's Plainfield Shop-Rite and John Coogan, coordinator of the Distributive Education program at Plainfield High School.

The program gives students the opportunity to work and train part-time in local business at regular wage rates and at the same time, earn academic credits toward graduation.

Discussing the program, Sorkin said, "The Distributive Education Program offers practical training and experience for high school students. We feel it's a valuable bridge between the school and business worlds, and we're very happy with the program's results." He said the exhibit has already been requested by other area high schools.

New Record Earnings Are Noted by Grand Union Co.

New records in earnings and sales were set by The Grand Union Company in both the third quarter and the first nine months of fiscal 1967, it was announced today by Thomas C. Butler, chairman and chief executive officer of the 564-store food and general merchandise retailing chain.

Grand Union had third quarter net earnings, after all taxes and depreciation, of $2,929,132 during the 13-week period ended Nov. 25, 1967. This was a new high for any third quarter in the company's 95-year history. It represents an increase of 28.7 per cent over earnings of $2,276,774 in the third quarter of 1966.

The 1967 third quarter earnings were equal, after preferred dividend requirements, to 49 cents a share on the 5,837,491 shares of common stock outstanding at the close of the period. In 1966, third quarter earnings equaled 38 cents a share on the shares then outstanding, after adjusting for a 5 per cent stock dividend distributed in May, 1967.

Third quarter sales were $231,364,587 in 1967, a new high for any third quarter and 11.2 per cent above sales of $208,138,030 in the comparable quarter of 1966.

For the first nine months of Grand Union's current fiscal year, through Nov. 25, net earnings totaled $7,698,539, a new record for any similar period. Earnings were $7,662,962 in the same period of 1966. Nine month earnings, after taxes and all other charges, were equal to $1.29 per common share of stock, based on the average number of shares outstanding during the 39-week period. This compares with earnings of $1.28 per share during the first nine months of 1966.

Grand Union sales for the first nine months of 1967 were a record $670,524,222, a gain of 8.9 per cent over sales of $615,943,142 in the corresponding period a year ago.

Grand Union currently operates 564 retail outlets, 532 supermarkets and 32 Grand Way discount department stores, in 11 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. There were 558 stores, including 30 Grand Ways, in operation at this time in 1966.

Aid for Amsterdam

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $98,900 loan to help Amsterdam, N.Y., plan a $13,694,000 learning center has been approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., reported Wednesday.

Among other things, the facility would include a high school for 2,000 pupils, a library, museum, art center; a performing arts theater; academic facilities for younger children; and vocational and physical education facilities for the elderly.

Nationwide Adds New Guarantees For All Insured

The Nationwide Mutual Insurance Companies announced today they will add a five-year renewal guarantee to their automobile and homeowners insurance policies.

The renewal guarantee will go into effect on Jan. 15. It will be extended to present policyholders, and to new policyholders after the usual 60-day processing period.

Bowman Doss, president of Nationwide, said: "This isn't merely a promise not to cancel auto policies in mid-term. It's an assurance that policies—both auto and homeowners—will be automatically renewed for a minimum of five years." These policies normally expire semiannually or annually.

"For the first time," Doss added, "a renewal guarantee is available to policyholders for a full line of personal insurance—auto, homeowners, life, and health." Nationwide also offers life and health insurance.

Doss said policyholders need to meet only two conditions to receive the guarantee for auto insurance:

They and other drivers in their families must have valid drivers' licenses;

Premiums must be paid when due. The payment of premiums is the only requirement for the homeowners guarantee.

The renewal guarantee for auto insurance will apply to all private passenger coverages. These include liability, collision, comprehensive, medical payments, and family compensation.

The renewal guarantee for both auto and homeowners policies begins on the effective date of the policy.

Doss said, "Adoption of the renewal guarantee, particularly for auto, is in response to the public's desire for assurance that policies won't be cancelled in mid-term and will be renewed when they normally expire. We feel our guarantee gives this assurance."

Nationwide, headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, is the country's fifth largest car insurer. It has 2,650,000 policies in force. Over 98 per cent of them are in states east of the Mississippi River.

For auto insurance, the renewal guarantee will be extended to about two million policyholders in 22 states east of the Mississippi, and the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico.

Among those excluded are the states of North Carolina, Virginia, and Massachusetts. Restrictive laws in those states require all companies to follow the same rulings, and to use the same rates and policy forms. This situation rules out the guarantee.

The guarantee also doesn't apply to some 200,000 commercially-rated vehicles and can't be extended to motorists covered by assigned risk plans.

Nationwide said the renewal guarantee will cover about 500,000 of its 552,000 homeowners policies. Excluded because of regulatory restrictions are policyholders in North Carolina, Mississippi, New Jersey, Virginia, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico.

Shop-Rite Lists Job Opportunity Offers in Store

Supermarkets General Corp., operators of 76 Shop-Rite Supermarkets has developed a job opportunity exhibit at the Plainfield, N. J., High School in connection with that school's Distributive Education program.

The exhibit, assembled by students in the Distributive Education classes, consists of posters, copies of the Supermarkets General Company newspaper, a variety of photographs and actual products carried in Shop-Rite Supermarkets.

Serving to dramatize work in Supermarkets and the varied company activities, one intent of the exhibit is to provide students with visual, down-to-earth information about the opportunities SGC offers for building a career in its Shop-Rite stores and other units.

Students were given a brochure describing the company's advancement opportunities, types of jobs available, working conditions, benefits, training programs.

The Shop-Rite exhibit was initiated by Alan Sorokin, manager of Supermarkets General's Plainfield Shop-Rite and John Coogan, coordinator of the Distributive Education program at Plainfield High School.

The program gives students the opportunity to work and train part-time in local business at regular wage rates and at the same time, earn academic credits toward graduation.

Discussing the program, Sorokin said, "The Distributive Education Program offers practical training and experience for high school students. We feel it's a valuable bridge between the school and business worlds, and we're very happy with the program's results." He said the exhibit has already been requested by other area high schools.

Viet War Delays Pearl Harbor Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comments on the Hollywood scene— Plans to stage the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor with a massive two-nation film production have hit a delay because of the Vietnam war. Filming was supposed to have begun this month on the Japanese portion of "Tora! Tora! Tora!," a monumental undertaking by 20th Century-Fox and the company of famed director Akira Kurosawa. "But the picture can't be made without the cooperation of the United States Navy," reports Richard Fleischer, who is scheduled to direct the American portion of the film. "The Navy has offered to help, but it can't guarantee the use of ships because of the Vietnam situation. We'd be in terrible shape if we started filming with the ships and then had them pulled out for Vietnam. So now the picture is postponed until fall, when the situation might be more stable. The plan is to shoot the American part of the story first, and then follow with the Japanese portion. "Tora," which means tiger, was the code word used by Japanese pilots to signal the success of their Dec. 7, 1941 mission. Audiences at world's fairs have been dazzled by the use of multiple projections on a single screen—four, eight or more different movies being shown in checkerboard fashion. It was highly effective in the U.S. Pavilion of the Seattle Fair, the Johnson's Wax Exhibit at New York, and in several presentations at Expo 67 in Montreal. The device is going to be employed in "The Boston Strangler" by Richard Fleischer. He explains: "I think it fits the subject, because I want to show several actions going on at the same time. The screen will depict the levels of investigation that were being conducted, and it will also help to depict the fragmented personality of the strangler himself."

"Actually the device isn't new. It is used all the time in television, especially in sports, when two or more simultaneous actions are pictured."

Viet War Delays Pearl Harbor Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comments on the Hollywood scene—

Plans to stage the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor with a massive two-nation film production have hit a delay because of the Vietnam war. Filming was supposed to have begun this month on the Japanese portion of "Tora! Tora! Tora!," a monumental undertaking by 20th Century-Fox and the company of famed director Akira Kurosawa. "But the picture can't be made without the cooperation of the United States Navy," reports Richard Fleischer, who is scheduled to direct the American portion of the film. "The Navy has offered to help, but it can't guarantee the use of ships because of the Vietnam situation. 'We'd be in terrible shape if we started filming with the ships and then had them pulled out for Vietnam. So now the picture is postponed until fall.

"Tora," which means tiger, was the code word used by Japanese pilots to signal the success of their Dec. 7, 1941 mission.

Audiences at world's fairs have been dazzled by the use of multiple projections on a single screen—four, eight or more different movies being shown in checkerboard fashion. It was highly effective in the U.S. Pavilion of the Seattle Fair, the Johnson's Wax Exhibit at New York, and in several presentations at Expo 67 in Montreal. The device is going to be employed in "The Boston Strangler" by Richard Fleischer. He explains: "I think it fits the subject, because I want to show several actions going on at the same time. The screen will depict the levels of investigation that were being conducted, and it will also help to depict the fragmented personality of the stranger himself."

"Actually the device isn't new. It is used all the time in television, especially in sports, when two or more simultaneous actions are pictured."

Democratic Women's Conference Scheduled for Feb. 25 and 26

The 17th Annual Political Conference of the Women's Division of the New York Democratic State Committee will be held on February 25th and 26th at the Thruway Motor Inn, Albany, it was announced by Mrs. Mae Gurevich, Vice-Chairman of the State Committee and Chairman of its Women's Division. Theme of the Conference is "The Mobilization of Opinions: A Search for New Direction in New York State."

The Freeman contacted Mrs. Rose Hogan, vice chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Committee and learned that names of Democratic women planning to attend the conference from this area will be released at the regular meeting of the Ulster County Women's Democratic Club later this month. Mrs. Marie Gorsline is club president.

Miss Margaret Costanza of 68

Jerold Street, Rochester, vice-chairman of the Monroe County Democratic Committee, will serve as chairman of this year's Conference. Miss Costanza is private secretary and administrative assistant to John J. Petrossi, Rochester real estate developer, and is building manager of the Powers Building. The young businesswoman, known as "Midge," has been actively engaged in Monroe County Democratic politics for the past thirteen years. She has served as First Assembly District Director and was Executive Committeewoman of the 22nd Ward until 1964, when she resigned to manage Robert F. Kennedy's successful Senatorial campaign in Monroe and eight surrounding counties. In May of 1966 she was appointed vice-chairman of the Monroe County Democratic Committee by County Leader Charles Maloy. Miss Costanza, who was born in LeRoy, New York, and whose family moved to Rochester when she was five years old, has also been active in many charitable organizations. She was city chairman of the American Cancer Crusade for three years, and is chairman of the Public Information Committee of the Society, in which capacity she serves on the Board of Directors of their Monroe County Unit. She has been active with the Community Chest, the annual Italian World War Veterans Association Dinner Dance and the Annette Hawley Cancer Research Ball. For the past two years she has been secretary of the Rotary Horse Show, sponsored for the benefit of the Handicapped Children's Camp. Miss Costanza was chosen chairman of the annual Political Conference by Mrs. Gurevich "because in her triple role as business executive, community leader and party official she is representative of so many outstanding women who are assuming positions of leadership in the Democratic Party today." About 800 women from the 62 counties of New York State are expected to attend the two-day conference.

Buddenhagen-Cloonan Nuptials

Miss Barbara Anne Buddenhagen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer W. Buddenhagen, 9 Harrison Street, Kingston, exchanged marriage vows with Robert Joseph Cloonan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund T. Cloonan of 69 Lounsberry Place, this city, on Saturday, Dec. 30, 1967 at St. Joseph's Church. The Rev. James V. Keating, assistant pastor, officiated at the ceremony and was celebrant of the nuptial Mass. Traditional music was provided by James Sweeney, organist, Donald Sweeney, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory silk peau de soie gown in princess style with bodice and kabuki sleeves of peau d'ange lace. Her removable chapel length train featured peau d'ange applique. An ivory silk peau de soie pillbox edged with matching lace and seed pearls held a chapel length veil of English silk illusion. The bride carried phalaenopsis orchids with stephanotis and ivy.

Susan L. Toscano of Hackensack, N.J., the bride's college classmate, served as maid of honor. She wore winter pink satin in princess style with accents of burgundy velvet. Her burgundy colored veil was also accented with velvet and she carried a nosegay of pink sweetheart roses and ivy.

Louise B. Franks of White Plains, Carole A. Jordan and Arlene L. Forte of Kingston, served as bridesmaids. Their gowns were identical in style to that worn by the honor attendant and they carried pink sweetheart roses with fern.

William N. Cloonan of Kingston was best man for his brother, Ushering were J. Kevin Cloonan of No. Merrick, N. Y., brother of the bridegroom, William W. Buddenhagen of Kingston, brother of the bride, and David J. Winter of Kingston.

Governor Clinton Hotel after the church ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and University of Rochester, class of 1967. She was president of Theta Tau Theta Sorority and is on the faculty at Mill Road School in Red Hook. Her husband is an alumnus of Kingston High School and Marist College, Poughkeepsie. He has done graduate work at State University of New York at New Paltz and is now on the faculty at Haviland Junior High School in Hyde Park.

When Mr. and Mrs. Cloonan return from a trip to Bermuda, they will be at home at the Mill Road Apartments in Red Hook, N. Y.

Dean Is Named Guest Speaker

Tonight at 8:15, Dr. Irmgard F. Karle, dean of faculty at the Ulster County Community College, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Y-Wives. The meeting will take place in the YWCA at 209 Clinton Avenue, this city.

Dr. Karle, who will speak on the topic "Mother Was a Freshman," is the only woman serving as dean of faculty at any of the 31 two-year community colleges in New York State.

Dr. Karle was associate professor of chemistry, and has had the major responsibility of developing the college's chemistry program. She also has served as chairman of the Division of Science and Mathematics and as chairman of the college curriculum and instruction committee.

A PhD from New York University, MA and BA from Hunter College, she has also completed 30 hours of graduate work in the field of chemistry at Columbia University, where she served as a John Jay Fellow. Before joining the UCCC faculty in September, 1964, Dr. Karle spent 13 years in the teaching field and served on the graduate faculty at Harvard University for three summers. There, as a master teacher of chemistry, she helped to train people going into the teaching profession.

In 1950, Dr. Karle received the Mosher Prize in German; 1954, General Electric Science

DR. IRMGARD F. KARLE

Teachers Award; 1959-60, Pi Lambda Theta Graduate Scholarship. In 1960, her doctoral dissertation was published. Other learned societies and professional organizations to which she belongs include: the American Chemical Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the National Science Teacher's Association, the National Association for Research in Science Teaching.

All members are invited to bring guests.

At the December 21 meeting, Y-Wives were entertained with a slide presentation given by Mrs. Warren Van Kleeck. Mrs. Van Kleeck discussed many important sites such as monuments and battlefields.

PLAN HYMN-SING

The Hudson Valley Ministerial Association will sponsor a hymn-sing this coming Saturday night at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, Miller's Lane, Kingston, at 7:30.

For the past two years she has been secretary of the Rotary Horse Show, sponsored for the benefit of the Handicapped Children's Camp. Miss Costanza was chosen chairman of the annual Political Conference by Mrs. Gurevich "because in her triple role as business executive, community leader and party official she is representative of so many outstanding women who are assuming positions of leadership in the Democratic Party today." About 800 women from the 62 counties of New York State are expected to attend the two-day conference.

MRS. TIMO-OLAVI LIEKOSKI (Tripod photo)

Katherine Winkky Weds Liekoski of Rosendale

On Saturday, Dec. 23, 1967, at 11:30 a.m. at the New Paltz Reformed Church, Miss Katherine Ann Winkky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric E. Winkky of New Paltz, became the bride of Timo-Olavi Liekoski, of Rosendale, N. Y., son of Mrs. Fanny Liekoski of Rosendale and Helmer-Olavi Liekoski of Helsinki, Finland. The Rev. Gerret Wullschlegler officiated at the double ring ceremony. The organist, Mrs. Arthur Kurtz of New Paltz, accompanied Miss Cary Walker of Allston, Mass., in two selections, "Cora Mioben" and "The Lord's Prayer." Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length A-line gown of ivory antique faille with a raised waist and long draped sleeves appliqued with alencon lace and crystal beading. The removable chapel length train was held to the waist with a Dior bow. The chapel length veiling of English silk illusion was attached to an ivory alencon lace circlet crown accented with crystal beading. The bride carried a bouquet of white pompon chrysanthemums, white carnations and holly.

Buddenhagen-Cloonan Nuptials

Miss Barbara Anne Buddenhagen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer W. Buddenhagen, 9 Harrison Street, Kingston, exchanged marriage vows with Robert Joseph Cloonan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund T. Cloonan of 69 Lounsbury Place, this city, on Saturday, Dec. 30, 1967 at St. Joseph's Church. The Rev. James V. Keating, assistant pastor, officiated at the ceremony and was celebrant of the nuptial Mass. Traditional music was provided by James Sweeney, organist, Donald Sweeney, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory silk peau de soie gown in princess style with bodice and kaku sleeves of peau d'ange lace. Her removable chapel length train featured peau d'ange applique. An ivory silk peau de soie pillbox edged with matching lace and seed pearls held a chapel length veil of English silk illusion. The bride carried phalaenopsis orchids with stephanotis and ivy.

Susan L. Toscano of Hackensack, N.J., the bride's college classmate, served as maid of honor. She wore winter pink satin in princess style with accents of burgundy velvet. Her burgundy colored veil was also accented with velvet and she carried a nosegay of pink sweetheart roses and ivy. Louise B. Franks of White Plains, Carole A. Jordan and Arlene L. Forte of Kingston, served as bridesmaids. Their gowns were identical in style to that worn by the honor attendant and they carried pink sweetheart roses with fern.

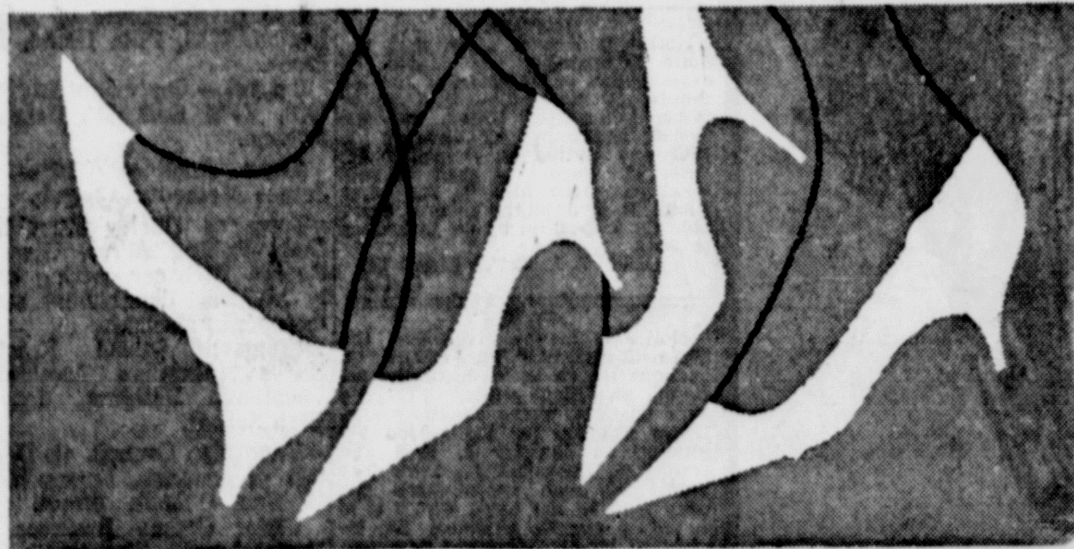

William N. Cloonan of Kingston was best man for his brother, Kevin Cloonan of No. Merriek, N. Y., brother of the bridegroom. William W. Buddenhagen of Kingston, brother of the bride, and David J. Winter of Kingston. A reception was given at the

Governor Clinton Hotel after the church ceremony. The bride is a graduate of Kingston High School and University of Rochester, class of 1967. She was president of Theta Tau Theta Sorority and is on the faculty at Mill Road School in Red Hook. Her husband is an alumnus of Kingston High School and Marist College, N. Y.

Dean Is Named Guest Speaker

Tonight at 8:15, Dr. Irmgard F. Karle, dean of faculty at the Ulster County Community College, will be guest speaker at a meeting of the Y-Wives. The meeting will take place in the YWCA at 209 Clinton Avenue, this city.

Dr. Karle, who will speak on the topic "Mother Was a Freshman," is the only woman serving as dean of faculty at any of the 31 two-year community colleges in New York State.

Dr. Karle was associate professor of chemistry, and has had the major responsibility of developing the college's chemistry program. She also has served as chairman of the Division of Science and Mathematics and as chairman of the college curriculum and instruction committee.

A PhD from New York University, MA and BA from Hunter College, she has also completed 30 hours of graduate work in the field of chemistry at Columbia University, where she served as a John Jay Fellow. Before joining the UCCC faculty in September, 1964, Dr. Karle spent 13 years in the teaching field and served on the graduate faculty at Harvard University for three summers. There, as a master teacher of chemistry, she helped to train people going into the teaching profession.

In 1950, Dr. Karle received the Mosher Prize in German; 1954, General Electric Science

DR. IRMGARD F. KARLE

Teachers Award; 1959-60, Pi Lambda Theta Graduate Scholarship. In 1960, her doctoral dissertation was published. Other learned societies and professional organizations to which she belongs include: the American Chemical Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the National Science Teacher's Association, the National Association for Research in Science Teaching.

All members are invited to bring guests. At the December 21 meeting, Y-Wives were entertained with a slide presentation given by Mrs. Warren Van Kleeck. Mrs. Van Kleeck discussed many important sites such as monuments and battlefields.

PLAN HYMN-SING

The Hudson Valley Ministerial Association will sponsor a hymn-sing this coming Saturday night at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, Miller's Lane, Kingston, at 7:30.

Many of the churches will be presenting special numbers in song. All may attend.

Hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Do you have trouble with neckline curls when you give yourself a home permanent?

Cut the top from a nylon stocking, stretch it over your head until it is down to the neck. Then push it up to the level at the back where those pesky neckline curlers start.

Slide the rat-tail end of the comb straight across your head and draw down only the hair needed. Then roll away.

This certainly makes this tedious job much easier because the nylon stocking holds the other hair up out of your way.

L. M. D.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When you make fruit salad and use bananas, always cover the bowl with plastic wrap. Just press it down all over the top so the air is removed from the bowl. The bananas will not turn dark.

If you keep it covered with the plastic wrap until all is used, not only will it hold its color, but it keeps that fresh taste.

Mrs. E. A. Luetzlam

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

I'm a housewife who doesn't know North from South or East from West. Every time I drive into a filling station to ask directions, they must give me the wrong ones, 'cause I still get lost.

I finally decided they just wanted to sell more gas . . .

"Lost"

Dear Heloise:

I always keep a small sponge (like we use in the dishpan) in my car to wipe steam off the inside of the windshield.

Nadine Speir

Dear Heloise:

Let me tell you about the newest fad that has hit my daughter's crowd.

The girls have confiscated old shirts of their father's and added ruffles to them!

My teen ager cut off the sleeves at the elbow and added a ruffle, then put one around the bottom and up those curved sides.

They're just adorable with stretchpants and cost only the amount of the ruffle plus a wee bit of time to stitch it on.

Marge Ellis

Dear Heloise:

Lay a piece of foil over an open frying pan to prevent grease from popping out. If it's laid loosely over the pan, the steam can still escape and food will be crispier.

The Right Thing to Do

By ELIZABETH L. POST of The Emily Post Institute NEIGHBOR'S CHILDREN
BECOME A PROBLEM

Dear Mrs. Post: What can I do about neighbor's children who never stay in their own yard. They prefer our yard and get into things they shouldn't. This is especially true when I am at work. I have scolded them, but sometimes it makes me feel guilty—and the scolding don't seem to sink in.—Florence

Dear Florence: If you have spoken to the children themselves and they have ignored your request, the only way of dealing with this problem is through the parents. Call their mothers, explain your problem, and ask them to please tell their youngsters to play elsewhere. Short of constructing a fence around your place, I know of nothing else you can do since you are not generally there to "police" your yard.

Maintain Your Standards
Without Criticizing

Dear Mrs. Post: What should a married couple do when they are at a party and the host and hostess suggests playing a game that is in extremely bad taste.

My husband and I want no part of such shenanigans. We left the party, but I heard that the game went on without us. I doubt that we will ever run into a situation like this again, but I would like to know what to do.—Carolyn

Dear Carolyn: The only possible thing to do is exactly what you did. It is their own business if the others wish to play games which are in bad taste, but you certainly do not need to participate—or even make an issue of it. Thank the hosts for the dinner, apologize for leaving so early, and go.

Classroom Eating Not Approved

Dear Mrs. Post: I am a junior high school student. My class eats lunch at the end of the day. Before lunch we have a rather informal English class. In the beginning of the term, our English teacher gave us permission to eat during class. Now he has changed his mind. Our class disagrees with him, provided we are clean, quiet and pay attention. I said I would write to you and see what you think. We are going by your decision.—Susan

Dear Susan: Your English teacher's mistake was in letting you eat during class in the first place. Surely, if his class comes right before lunch you can wait until the bell ends the period. If lunch is so late, you must have some sort of recess earlier in the morning, and that's the time to eat your snacks.

A Double-Header Shower

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a daughter and a step-daughter who are going to have babies a month apart. Would it be proper for me to have one shower for both girls? If so, just how would the invitation

Late Cancellations
Are Inconsiderate

Dear Mrs. Post: I would like to know if it was proper of friends we invited to Christmas dinner to call Christmas morning and say they could not come. Their daughter called them at 7:00 a.m. that day and said she would come and bring the dinner along, so they decided to stay home.—Disappointed.

Dear Disappointed: No, it wasn't proper. They should have said to their daughter, "Thanks a lot, but we've made other plans." They were extremely inconsiderate to upset your plans as such a late date.

A copy of the famous White House wedding gown worn by the President's daughter on December 9 will be on display at Doreen's, Kingston. It is designer Alfred Angelo's version of the White House fashion.

The gown is of white satin faille with its unusual embroidery and apron effect front skirt. Flowers with pearl centers are artfully embroidered around the sides and bottom of the front-skirt and are complemented by similar adornment on the military neckline and at the cuffs. The long (15 feet) nylon net train adds an ethereal effect.

Alfred Angelo also made fashion history by quickly reproducing Lucie Johnson Nugent's gown and the gowns of Grace Kelly and Princess Margaret. It is the firm whose exclusive fashions were seen in the film "Father of the Bride." The company also created several "Miss America Dream Wedding Gowns."

Weary Jersey Quint Gets Wind and Sleep

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The home team supposedly has the advantage in basketball, but the New Jersey Americans had a terrible time pressing it home. In fact, they almost didn't get home to press it.

The Americans, who lost 97-96 in New Orleans Tuesday night, were scheduled to leave the New Orleans Airport at 1 a. m. to return home for Wednesday night's American Basketball Association game with Kentucky.

But fog delayed their departure until 4:45 p. m., and by the time they were ready to take the court at the Teaneck Armory it was 10:30 two hours past the scheduled starting time.

Once the game started, the weary Americans rolled to an 18-point lead, then they faded and Kentucky closed to within two points, 113-111, with nine seconds left. But Tony Jackson then clinched it with two foul shots, and the Americans had a 115-111 victory and a chance to get some sleep.

Walt Simon led the Americans with 30 points and Dan Anderson added 28. Louie Dampier scored 38 and Jim Ligon 27 for Kentucky.

In other ABA action, Houston edged Denver 89-83 and Anaheim ripped Indiana 122-111. Chicago beat Baltimore 113-94, New York topped Philadelphia 129-115, Boston outlasted Los Angeles 113-103 and San Diego edged St. Louis 126-124 in double overtime in the National Basketball Association.

Houston, which led 71-69 after three periods, took advantage of a seven-minute span of the fourth quarter in which Denver failed to score a field goal, to pick up its victory. Willie Frazier paced Houston with 24 points and Larry Jones led Denver with 19.

Indiana, picking up its sixth victory in seven games, was led by Ben Warley's 27 points. Fred Lewis of Indiana led all scorers with 37 points.

HONORARY MEMBERSHIP card in the Kingston Trail-sweepers Ski Club is presented to Richard Schafer (R) by club president, Miss Dorothy Birmingham.

Sweepers Honor Schaefer With Honorary Membership

Trail-sweepers Ski Club of Kingston has voted honorary membership to Richard D. Schaefer of Woodstock, coach of the first varsity ski team at Kingston High School.

Schaefer, a member of the KHS faculty, was cited for his outstanding contributions to the area ski world. An honorary membership card was presented to him by Miss Dorothy Birmingham, TSC president.

For two years prior to activation of skiing as a varsity sport at KHS, Schaefer headed the high school ski club which fielded "unofficial" teams to represent Kingston.

This year's first varsity squad consists of 29 boys and 13 girls who will compete in 11 contests during the months of January and February.

The girls on the team do not have varsity rating but efforts are being made to have the state high school athletic association change its rules to accord them varsity status.

In presenting Schaefer with the honorary membership, Miss Birmingham said:

"The Kingston Trail-sweepers are very proud of the KHS varsity ski team and feel honored that their coach, Mr. Schaefer, has accepted honorary membership to our club."

UCCC Overwhelms Middlesex 112-61

By CHARLES J. TIANO

Like all vigorous young men, the Ulster County Community College basketball Senators had their share of fun and frolic over the long Christmas hiatus.

But they returned to the wars Wednesday night with skills unimpaired as they hit a blistering 56 per cent from the field to overwhelm homesteading Middlesex (N.J.) Community College, 112-61, in their first Garden State foray.

UCCC's one-two punch of Joe Uhl (34) and Frank Roselli (24) accounted for 58 points, while seven other players used by Coach Mike Perry crashed the scoring column. Mike Derren-bacher was in double figures with 13.

12th Win of Season

The victory was the 12th in 13 starts for the Senators, whose next stop is a visit to State University College, New Paltz, for a battle with the Frosh squad Saturday at 7 p. m.

Combining 60 per cent free throw accuracy with 56 per cent from the field, the locals moved to a 51-33 halftime then applied a 61-28 crusher after the recess.

Playing man-to-man, Ulster jumped to a 3-0 lead at the outset. Rocco Funari, who led Middlesex with 18 points, tied it with a 3-pointer but that was as close as the hosts ever came.

Uhl, Hanna and Roselli drilled three straight baskets for 9-3. Middlesex called time but UCCC changed its defense and forged ahead, 19-9. Bill Boines did an outstanding job on the boards with 10 rebounds in the first half.

Break Game Open

At the onset of the second half, Ulster hit on a quick tap play and layup by Roselli to jump out 55-33. This literally demoralized the hosts and Funari, their big gun, picked up his fourth foul and Middlesex attempted a zone press. Boines and Hanna quickly ripped through it with layups and the rout was on.

Ulster had 103 points on the scoreboard with 5 minutes left in the game but managed only 9 points in the last six as Middlesex moved into an effective slowdown.

Coach Perry took out Uhl, Hanna, Chando and Boines with 8:56 remaining. Roselli played his usual hustling defensive ball as did Derrenbacher and Zilliox. Stan Henderson grabbed 8 rebounds in just under 9 minutes of play. Chando and Uhl each had 6 assists and the Senators outbounded the taller Middlesex squad, 53-33.

The score:

Ulster (112)	Middlesex (61)
Uhl 16	24 Barkauskas 3
Chando 5	10 Montecarlo 4
Roselli 11	24 Chambers 2
Henderson 2	15 Lange 2
Boines 2	3 7 Wiczerak 1
Zilliox 3	3 9 Casey 2
DuBois 0	1 7 Basarab 2
Derrenb 4	5 13 Weichowski 0
Hanna 4	1 9 Murray 1
TOTALS 47 18 112	TOTALS 24 13 61

UCCC 51 61-112
MCC 33 28-61

Personal fouls: Uhl (2), Chando (1), Hanna (1), DuBois (1), Boines (2), Zilliox (3), Roselli (3), Derrenbacher (2), Middlesex—Funari (4), Barkauskas (5), Montecarlo (1), Chambers (2), Lange (3), Wiczerak (2), Casey (2), Basarab (1), Murray (2).

Ed Williams Makes U.S. Olympic Team

Ulster County will have a representative on the United States Olympic Biathlon Team in the 1968 Winter Olympics at Grenoble, France. And he is the only civilian on the squad.

Eddie (Gust) Williams of Rosendale, a former Army lieutenant and post-graduate student at Dartmouth College, captured a place on the six-man U. S. team by placing third in the three-day Biathlon tryouts that ended in sub-zero weather Wednesday at Upson, Michigan.

Bill Spencer of Salt Lake City, a veteran of the U. S. Army Biathlon squad, led the six qualifiers with an adjusted time of 1 hour, 29 minutes, 25 seconds.

Jonathan Chaffee of Lyme, N. H., was second and Williams third. Other members of the team will be Ralph Wakely of Logan, Utah; Jay Bowerman of Eugene, Oregon; and John Ehrensbeck of Old Forge, N. Y.

Penalties Hurt

Ehrensbeck, who won the U. S. title Tuesday in the second day of the trials, lost the works when he was penalized 14 minutes on target misses.

Biathlon is an old European sport combining cross country skiing and rifle marksmanship. It became a Winter Olympic event in 1960.

Mathis Opens War of Words With Frazier

NEW YORK (AP) — "I don't know why he signed for it. It's his first mistake. He's got his work cut out for him."

Big Buster Mathis, a 6-foot-3 giant who has trimmed down from 300 pounds to an almost sleek 240, started the war of words with Joe Frazier, the solemn-faced, 5-11, 210-pound heavyweight contender.

"That's just big talk," said Frazier later. "He's making a lot of mouth now. We'll see what happens in the ring."

The talking came after it was officially announced Wednesday that the two 23-year-old unbeaten heavyweights would battle for New York and Massachusetts recognition as world heavyweight champion in the new 20,000-seat Madison Square Garden in the week of March 4. The date will be announced within a week.

It will be part of a championship doubleheader. Middleweight king Emile Griffith of New York will take on Italy's Nino Benvenuti in the third and rubber match between the two.

Won September Bout

Nino won the crown from Griffith on a 15-round decision last April 17 and Emile regained it the same way on Sept. 29.

Frazier and Griffith already have the jump on their opponents. They will collect flat guarantees of $175,000 each while Benvenuti will get $80,000 and Mathis $75,000.

The Garden hopes to pay off the $505,000 net to the four principals with a $750,000 gross on tickets priced from $10 to $100 and the television receipts. The telecast may be either on home television or by closed circuit to theaters and arenas.

The fighters won't share in the television receipts.

The announcements by Eddie Dooley, chairman of the New York Athletic Commission, and by Eddie Urbee, chairman of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, that they would recognize the heavyweight winner as champion created a stir and some critical remarks at the press conference.

WBA Downs Frazier

Frazier, with a 19-0 record including 14 knockouts, is ranked first by Ring Magazine and seventh by the World Boxing Association which is supporting an elimination tournament. He had been ranked second by the WBA until he declined to participate in the tourney.

Mathis has a 23-0 record, including 17 kayos, but has not fought anyone of consequence. He is unranked by either Ring or the WBA.

Buster, of Grand Rapids, Mich., however, beat the Philadelphia twice in the amateurs three years ago. He whipped him in the Olympic Trials and then in a practice fight, both three-rounders.

The team will represent the U. S. in the winter games at Grenoble, France on Feb. 9 and Feb. 15.

In the Biathlon, the contestants are rated on "adjusted times" in which penalties for missing targets are rated in minutes and added to the actual racing time.

The order of finish:
Spencer—1:26.25, skiing; target penalties, 3 minutes; adjusted time—1:29.25.

Chaffee — 1:26.18, skiing; 4 minutes target penalties; adjusted time—1:30.18.

Williams — 1:26.14 skiing; 7 minutes penalties; adjusted time—1:33.14.

Wakely — 1:27.34 skiing; 7 minutes penalties; adjusted time—1:34.31.

Bowerman—1:29.43 skiing; 6 minutes penalties; adjusted time—1:35.43.

Ehrensbeck — 1:21.56 skiing; 14 minutes penalties; adjusted time 1:35.54.

Williams Reports

Walter Williams, father of Ed Williams, and a member of the U. S. Biathlon Committee, reported from Wisconsin this morning that the three-day trials had been conducted in zero and sub-zero temperatures.

Williams said the squad will be flown to New York this morning to be outfitted and then head for Oslo, Norway, to begin intensive training for the February Olympics.

Blue Devils Casting Eyes Toward Top Ten

Duke and North Carolina already have one thing in common — Vanderbilt — and the Blue Devils are now casting covetous glances at the Tarheels' place in the college basketball Top Ten.

Duke, unranked as yet, boosted its season record to 7-1 Wednesday night with a comeback 89-84 victory over Davidson, which, until last week, was in the Top Ten itself. North Carolina, No. 3, beat Wake Forest 74-62.

Both clubs' lone defeats were suffered at the hands of Vanderbilt, rated fourth. The first meeting between Duke and North Carolina will come Saturday at Chapel Hill, N.C.

The Blue Devils fought back from a 50-43 deficit early in the first half to their victory.

Coach Condit

"As long as we continue to scratch and claw as we have all season, said Vic Bubas, Duke coach, "this bunch will make a good showing against anybody."

Davidson Coach Lefty Driesell added, "If Duke continues to shoot like they did tonight, they can beat anyone in the country."

The Blue Devils outbounded Davidson 55-33 and Mike Lewis and Dave Golden each had 25 points. North Carolina got 25 points from Rusty Clark, 22 from Charlie Scott and 20 from Larry Miller in downing Wake Forest.

Seventh-ranked Utah boosted its record to 11-1, beating American University 84-77. Merv Jackson had 27 points and Walt Simon had 26 for the Redskins. Ninth-ranked St. Bonaventure, with Bob Lanier scoring 33 points, beat Kent State 80-63, the Bonnies' 10th straight triumph.

St. Bon Rolls 10th Straight

Calvin Murphy had a sore leg and foot, Tony Morgan didn't score a point in the first half, but each ended up leading his team to victory in upstate New York collegiate basketball action Wednesday.

Ninth-ranked St. Bonaventure overwhelmed Kent State of Ohio, 80-63, in other action.

Murphy, Niagara University's sensational sophomore, retained his position as the nation's leading scorer by pouring in 39 points to take Niagara to a 94-79 victory over Buffalo State, despite a sore right knee and left instep.

Murphy, who has a 42.5 point average, hit on all 13 of his foul shots and 13 of 37 from the floor as the Purple Eagles won their fifth victory of the season. They have lost four.

Dave Saunders, with 22 points, was high scorer for Buffalo State, now 7-3 on the season.

Morgan scored 18 points, all in the second half, to lead Iona to a, 57-53, win over Siena at New Rochelle.

Siena led, 27 - 24, at halftime and stayed in close contention until Bob McMahan's jump shot with 2:50 left put Iona ahead to stay.

Iona is now 6-4 on the season. Siena is 3-7.

St. Bonaventure rolled to its 10th straight victory behind the 33 points of sophomore center Bob Lanier. The Bonnies fired a hot 62.8 per cent (32 of 51 field goals) and Lanier hit on 13 of 18 shots.

Kent, 3-5, pulled to within nine points, 52-43, with 9:53 left in the game, but Jim Satalin and Lanier added four points to keep the Bonnies out of danger.

Tony's Romp; 114-64 Score

Bill Huber poured in 33 points last night to lead Tony's Pizzeria over Ramblers 114-64 in a YMCA "A" League basketball game.

Never once were the Pizzeria men challenged. Halftime score found Ramblers down 43-20. In the second half Tony's tallied 71 points alone.

Gary Matthews led the losers with 14.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The home team supposedly has the advantage in basketball, but the New Jersey Americans had a terrible time pressing it home. In fact, they almost didn't get home to press it.

The Americans, who lost 97-96 in New Orleans Tuesday night, were scheduled to leave the New Orleans Airport at 1 a. m. to return home for Wednesday night's American Basketball Association game with Kentucky.

But fog delayed their departure until 4:45 p.m., and by the time they were ready to take the court at the Teaneck Armory it was 10:30 two hours past the scheduled starting time.

Once the game started, the weary Americans rolled to an 18-point lead, then they faded and Kentucky closed to within two points, 113-111, with nine seconds left. But Tony Jackson then clinched it with two foul shots, and the Americans had a 115-111 victory and a chance to get some sleep.

Walt Simon led the Americans with 30 points and Dan Anderson added 28. Louie Dampier scored 38 and Jim Ligon 27 for Kentucky.

In other ABA action, Houston edged Denver 89-83 and Anaheim ripped Indiana 122-111. Chicago beat Baltimore 113-94, New York topped Philadelphia 129-115, Boston outlasted Los Angeles 113-103 and San Diego edged St. Louis 126-124 in double overtime in the National Basketball Association.

Houston, which led 71-69 after three periods, took advantage of a seven-minute span of the fourth quarter in which Denver failed to score a field goal, to pick up its victory. Willie Frazier paced Houston with 24 points and Larry Jones led Denver with 19.

Indiana, picking up its sixth victory in seven games, was led by Ben Warley's 27 points. Fred Lewis of Indiana led all scorers with 37 points.

Dave Saunders, with 22 points, was high scorer for Buffalo State, now 7-3 on the season.

Morgan scored 18 points, all in the second half, to lead Iona to a, 57-53, win over Siena at New Rochelle.

Siena led, 27 - 24, at halftime and stayed in close contention until Bob McMahan's jump shot with 2:50 left put Iona ahead to stay.

Iona is now 6-4 on the season. Siena is 3-7.

St. Bonaventure rolled to its 10th straight victory behind the 33 points of sophomore center Bob Lanier. The Bonnies fired a hot 62.8 per cent (32 of 51 field goals) and Lanier hit on 13 of 18 shots.

Kent, 3-5, pulled to within nine points, 52-43, with 9:53 left in the game, but Jim Satalin and Lanier added four points to keep the Bonnies out of danger.

Tony's Romp; 114-64 Score

Bill Huber poured in 33 points last night to lead Tony's Pizzeria over Ramblers 114-64 in a YMCA "A" League basketball game.

Never once were the Pizzeria men challenged. Halftime score found Ramblers down 43-20. In the second half Tony's tallied 71 points alone.

Gary Matthews led the losers with 14.

Maybe the Eskimo population of Green Bay isn't aware of it, but winter seems to be here to linger awhile. Anytime you can assemble 53,000 persons to watch a football game in 13-below-zero temperature, it has to happen in another world. There is little doubt that both the incomparable Packers and their frost-defying aficionados are in a world of their own.

But snow and winter in our area means renewed interest in skiing, rated by many as the fastest growing participant sport in the country.

The landscape gives evidence that a certain segment of the sports population is skillfully engaged in the pursuit of perfection of such strange sounding items (to me, at least) as Christies, traverse, stem turns, parallel turns, bunnyhops, Schuss-boomers and wedlen. When you achieve the wedlen, you have it made, we are told.

The vast majority of the ski-niks, we are further assured, form the huge army of the willing, if not able, skiers who are leaving their personal sitzmarks all over the magnificent Catskill terrain and other glamor spots where the rum and toddie crowds assemble.

AMONG THE MISSING this season is Sharon Stahl, the dynamic publicity gal of the Trailweavers Club. Miss Stahl, a gung ho ski enthusiast if ever we saw one, has been spirited to New York City by IBM. Her sprightly and lucid comments on the local ski scene will be missed.

With 28 inches of natural snow on the ground, and 2 to 3 feet of man-made stuff on various parts of the mountain, Hunter begins its second full month of operation. Night skiing begins on Friday night, with the sessions extending from 7 p. m. to 10 p. m., with an increase in lift ticket rate. Each Wednesday will be Ladies Day at Hunter and each Thursday will be Professional Men's Day.

On Friday, Jan. 19, Art Furrier, the famed Swiss acrobatic skier, will spend the day at Hunter demonstrating his acrobatic style, lecturing and hosting a cocktail party.

FIVE TEENAGE MEMBERS of the Rosendale cross country ski team are back from their exhilarating trip to Sweden where they were given the VIP treatment by Swedish ski officials and the Swedish Olympic team.

The group headed by Rune Karlson, who is Mr. Skiing at Rosendale, included Jerri Ellen DuBois, Linda Coogan, Susan Karlson, Susan Claus (no relation to Santa) and Bill Johnson.

Miss DuBois, who served as spokesman for the youngsters, reported:

"When we arrived in Sweden, we were met by a Mr. Bergman, secretary of the World Ski Federation, who invited us to his home for lunch."

"After lunch we were driven to the station and boarded a train for Moca, a 4-hour trip. We traveled another two hours by car to the Swedish Olympic training camp where we stayed."

"The camp is located in the high mountain area of western Sweden, near the border of Norway, and quite remote, to say the least. There we trained with the 10 best cross-country girl skiers in Sweden. It was a delightful experience. Everyone was nice to us and although only a few spoke English we got along wonderfully."

"Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hagg served as our coaches and one day one of the boys coaches worked with us, teaching the techniques of up and downhill skiing. The trails in the area were severe and in the first four days of our stay we broke three skis."

"After a week's stay in the Olympic camp, we transferred to a camp where only junior skiers were in training."

MORE ABOUT ROSENDALE: Rosendale Nordic Ski Club is looking ahead to a Winter Carnival (Jan. 27-28) and the five major events scheduled in cross country and jumping at this early mecca of ski jumping in the Eastern United States.

The five events on the 1968 calendar include (1) the Rosendale Junior Cross Country Race (2) New York State Cross Country Championship (3) Annual Rosendale Nordic Ski Club Trophy jumping tournament (4) New York State Championships (Combined and Special Jump) and (5) Arnold Berge Junior Jumping and Combined Tournament.

The jumping tournaments will again be held on Joppenbergh Mountain in the heart of Rosendale village. Cross country events will be run on the trails near Williams Lake Hotel.

ROSENDALE NORDIC president Robert Hicks has commended various Rosendale organizations for their help and cooperation with the forthcoming events.

The Rosendale Women's Club is arranging complimentary housing for 40 visiting competitors for these events. Roundout Valley Lions Club is concentrating on the junior program and will donate all the trophies for the junior events as they did last year.

Junior coaches and parents have done a fine job on the 30 meter hill at High Falls, but much work remains to be done on the 70 meter hill. Work crews assemble at 10 a. m., Sundays and everyone is invited.

Sexual Symbolism

British Soccer Melees Inspire Talk of Moats

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — The British have tried everything from girl cheer leaders in mini-skirts to psychiatrists in white coats in an effort to halt the growing violence at soccer games, but without luck so far.

Now there is talk here of digging moats around soccer pitches in order to separate fans from the players. It has even been suggested that the fans be caged in behind wire fences like animals at a zoo.

The use of cheerleaders to mollify crowds was imported from America, but when tried out at Birmingham recently it was a big flop. No sooner did the boala-boola girls come dancing onto the fields to the sound of Beatles music than the fans began to boo.

"Soccer is strictly a masculine game," explains a Birmingham roofer. "We like mini-skirts and shapely legs, but not on the pitch, where they only get in the way."

As for the psychiatrists, they have been no more successful in quelling violence than the dancing girls so far.

A team of psychiatrists under Dr. John Harrington, of Birmingham, has been set up to study crowd violence, but they have had a hard time getting their priorities straight.

Fans or Players? As Dr. Harrington admits, they don't know whether it is the players who spark off violence in the fans, or vice versa.

Violence on the sports field is something new in Britain. Unlike America, where the baseball umpire once felt unappreciated if bottles were not aimed in his direction, referees here have seldom been attacked, no matter how unpopular their rulings. This is changing, as players and fans alike are caught up in a wave of violence.

For example: Eleven players for Glasgow Celtic have been fined $750 apiece, after their recent play-off match with the Racing Club of Argentina, which sports writers have described as the most disgraceful within living memory. During the slugfest, four Scottish players and two Argentines were sent off the field for fouls, and police had to be called onto the pitch to restore order.

A referee was carried off the field unconscious after fans invaded the Millwall soccer pitch in London. The crowd, which was angry because the referee had disallowed a goal, knocked him down. The referee's association now threatens to boycott Millwall games unless it can be assured adequate police protection. Millwall is now considering the erection of cages behind both goal-posts to keep spectators penned in.

British Railways is threatening to discontinue all special trains for soccer fans, so heavy is the damage from vandalism.

In order to probe what makes an ordinary peaceable citizen go mad when he gets in a soccer stadium, the psychiatrists' study team plans to interview players who are sent off the field for dirty play and spectators who are arrested for starting fights.

So far, the team seems to have gotten bogged down in talk about mother complexes and superego controls. Says Dr. Harrington: "The unconscious sexual symbolism of soccer cannot be dismissed out of hand. Football is certainly invested with much male libido."

Highland Wins; 73-60 Victory

Highland captured its first win after dropping five last night, defeating Rhinebeck 73-60 in a non-league basketball game.

The game, plagued by fouls, saw Highland take an early lead only to lose it just prior to the half. But in the third quarter Highland scored twice to Rhinebeck's one and was never seriously threatened afterwards.

Highland's Barrington and Rhinebeck's Connell scored 20 apiece to lead all tallies. The game was played in Rhinebeck.

Highland Jayvees defeated Rhinebeck Jayvees 50-49 in overtime.

Season Opens Insko Wins

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Little Del Insko, the toothpick-chewing mite from South Beloit, Ill., drove three straight winners at Roosevelt Raceway Wednesday night at the opening of 1968 New York harness racing season.

The 5-foot-5 Insko took up where he left off last season when he won the 1967 driving championship at Roosevelt.

After scoring with Jay Martin, $3.60, in the fourth race, Insko brought home Little Kitty Clay, $17, in the $15,000 Winter Wonderland Pace and got his third in a row with Del Hi's Boy, $7.40, in the sixth.

Insko gave a masterful exhibition of his driving skill in getting Little Kitty Clay home by a nose over Amphion in the Winter Wonderland.

Fifth at the head of the stretch, Insko burst between horses in the stretch and won in the last stride in a four-horse photo finish. Just a nose, a neck, and another nose separated the first four finishers.

"I didn't know we have won it until the official sign went up," Insko said afterwards.

Behind Amphion, was Yankee Miek. Nevele Way, the 8-5 favorite reined by Stanley Dancer, finished fourth after leading until midstretch in the 2:03 3-5 mile.

A crowd of 19,410 welcomed back the trotters and pacers after a three-week lapse from the Dec. 15 end of the 1967 season. The temperature was near freezing and there was a threat of snow. There was no wind, however, and Insko said it "wild mild" on the track.

Cesare Maniago has the Los Angeles Kings' number and obviously, it's a big, round zero.

Minnesota's Maniago shut out the Kings for the third straight time as Minnesota trounced Los Angeles 6-0 in National Hockey League action Wednesday night.

It was the fourth shutout of the season for Maniago and tied him with Montreal's Gump Worsley for the league lead in that department. Last month, the lanky Minnesota goalie strung three straight shutouts together, two of them over the Kings.

Elsewhere Wednesday night, Oakland absorbed its fourth straight shutout, bowing to St. Louis 4-0. New York battled from behind for a 5-5 tie with Boston and Montreal tied Toronto 1-1.

Maniago kicked out 35 shots as Los Angeles dropped its fifth straight game. The victory moved Minnesota within two points of the second place Kings in the NHL's West Division.

Mabelle Davis High With 561

Mabelle Davis boisted her 161 average with 561 off 211, 166 and 184 in the Chalet Pioneer Women's League.

Football Cards Paradise Gets A Slight Jolt

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Head Coach Charley Winner says the St. Louis Cardinals have one of the finest coaching staffs in the National Football League, but the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says the players don't agree.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said eight players were fined an estimated total of $3,200 for missing a bed check when the team was in New York for the final game of the season against the Giants. The Giants won the game 37-14.

The Globe-Democrat then charged in its editions today that the players had missed the bedcheck on purpose. The newspaper said the Cardinals are in the midst of widespread player dissatisfaction with the coaches, the management and fellow players.

But Winner refused to comment on the stories. He was in Mobile, Ala. scouting the Senior Bowl game.

"I mean anything that happens on our ball club is a closed affair between the coaches and players and there's nothing to say about it," Winner remarked. He then praised his coaching staff.

But the toughest problem on the club, which finished with a 6-7 record, according to the Globe-Democrat, is the unhappiness of Negro athletes with an assistant coach and with fellow players. Every Negro on the club attended a three-hour meeting at which their complaints were aired, the newspaper said.

Later in the week the players gave Winner a two-page letter outlining their grievances and demands. The Globe-Democrat said many of the demands "were not unlike those being fought for by civil rights groups around the country."

Jolt to Red Sox Hopes

See Lonborg Return Delayed Until May

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox' hopes of repeating as American League champions have been dealt a blow with the word that pitching ace Jim Lonborg's recovery from knee surgery may keep him sidelined for virtually the entire first month of the 1968 season.

The big right-hander, who was injured in a Dec. 24 skiing accident, was scheduled for release from the hospital today, but club trainer Buddy LeRoux said he wasn't expected to be back in action until several weeks after the April 9 opening game at Detroit.

"From a realistic point of view he won't be ready for the opener," LeRoux said Wednesday. "The doctors all feel that sometime in May would be the date for him to return to action."

Half Dozen Starts

That could mean the loss of half a dozen or more starts for the hurler who bulwarked the Red Sox' otherwise undistinguished staff all through the 1967 pennant drive, finishing with a 22-9 record, earning the Cy Young Award as the league's top pitcher, and winning two World Series games.

Each Wednesday will be Ladies Day at Hunter and each Thursday will be Professional Men's Day.

On Friday, Jan. 19, Art Furrier, the famed Swiss acrobatic skier, will spend the day at Hunter demonstrating his acrobatic style, lecturing and hosting a cocktail party.

FIVE TEENAGE MEMBERS of the Rosendale cross-country ski team are back from their exhilarating trip to Sweden where they were given the VIP treatment by Swedish ski officials and the Swedish Olympic team.

The group headed by Rune Karlsson, who is Mr. Skiing at Rosendale, included Jerri Ellen DuBois, Linda Coogan, Susan Karlsson, Susan Claus (no relation to Santa) and Bill Johnson.

Miss DuBois, who served as spokesman for the youngsters, reported:

"When we arrived in Sweden, we were met by a Mr. Bergman, secretary of the World Ski Federation, who invited us to his home for lunch."

"After lunch we were driven to the station and boarded a train for Moca, a 4-hour trip. We traveled another two hours by car to the Swedish Olympic training camp where we stayed."

"The camp is located in the high mountain area of western Sweden, near the border of Norway — and quite remote, to say the least. There we trained with the 10 best cross-country girl skiers in Sweden. It was a delightful experience. Everyone was nice to us and although only a few spoke English we got along wonderfully."

"Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hagg served as our coaches and one day one of the boys coaches worked with us, teaching the techniques of up and downhill skiing. The trails in the area were severe and in the first four days of our stay we broke three skis."

"After a week's stay in the Olympic camp, we transferred to a camp where only junior skiers were in training."

MORE ABOUT ROSENDALE: Rosendale Nordic Ski Club is looking ahead to a Winter Carnival (Jan. 27-28) and the five major events scheduled in cross country and jumping at this early mecca of ski jumping in the Eastern United States.

The five events on the 1968 calendar include (1) the Rosendale Junior Cross Country Race (2) New York State Cross Country Championship (3) Annual Rosendale Nordic Ski Club Trophy jumping tournament (4) New York State Championships (Combined and Special Jump) and (5) Arnold Berge Junior Jumping and Combined Tournament.

The jumping tournaments will again be held on Joppenbergh Mountain in the heart of Rosendale village. Cross-country events will be run on the trails near Williams Lake Hotel.

ROSENDALE NORDIC president Robert Hicks has commended various Rosendale organizations for their help and cooperation with the forthcoming events.

The Rosendale Women's Club is arranging complimentary housing for 40 visiting competitors for these events. Rondout Valley Lions Club is concentrating on the junior program and will donate all the trophies for the junior events as they did last year.

Junior coaches and parents have done a fine job on the 30 meter hill at High Falls, but much work remains to be done on the 70 meter hill. Work crews assemble at 10 a. m., Sundays and everyone is invited.

Sexual Symbolism

British Soccer Melees Inspire Talk of Moats

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (TREA) — The British have tried everything from girl cheer leaders in miniskirts to psychiatrists in white coats in an effort to halt the growing violence at soccer games, but without luck so far.

Now there is talk here of digging moats around soccer pitches in order to separate fans from the players. It has even been suggested that the fans be caged in behind wire fences like animals at a zoo.

The use of cheerleaders to mollify crowds was imported from America, but when tried out at Birmingham recently it was a big flop. No sooner did the boo-boo girls come dancing onto the fields to the sound of Beatles music than the fans began to boo.

"Soccer is strictly a masculine game," explains a Birmingham rooster. "We like miniskirts and shapely legs, but not on the pitch, where they only get in the way."

As for the psychiatrists, they have been no more successful in quelling violence than the dancing girls so far.

A team of psychiatrists under Dr. John Harrington, of Birmingham, has been set up to study crowd violence, but they have had a hard time getting their priorities straight.

Fans or Players? As Dr. Harrington admits, they don't know whether it is the players who spark off violence in the fans, or vice versa.

Violence on the sports field is something new in Britain. Unlike America, where the baseball umpire once felt unappreciated if bottles were not aimed in his direction, referees here have seldom been attacked, no matter how unpopular their rulings. This is changing, as players and fans alike are caught up in a wave of violence.

For example: Eleven players for Glasgow Celtic have been fined $750 apiece, after their recent play-off match with the Racing Club of Argentina, which sports writers have described as the most disgraceful within living memory. During the slugfest, four Scottish players and two Argentines were sent off the field for fouls, and police had to be called onto the pitch to restore order.

● A referee was carried off the field unconscious after fans invaded the Millwall soccer pitch in London. The crowd, which was angry because the referee had disallowed a goal, knocked him down. The referees' association now threatens to boycott Millwall games unless it can be assured adequate police protection. Millwall is now considering the erection of cages behind both goal-posts to keep spectators penned in.

● British Railways is threatening to discontinue all special trains for soccer fans, so heavy is the damage from vandalism.

In order to probe what makes an ordinary peaceable citizen go mad when he gets in a soccer stadium, the psychiatrists' study team plans to interview players who are sent off the field for dirty play and spectators who are arrested for starting fights.

So far, the team seems to have gotten bogged down in talk about mother complexes and superego controls. Says Dr. Harrington: "The unconscious sexual symbolism of soccer cannot be dismissed out of hand. Football is certainly invested with much male libido."

Highland Wins; 73-60 Victory

Highland captured its first win after dropping five last night, defeating Rhinebeck 73-60 in a non-league basketball game.

The game, plagued by fouls, saw Highland take an early lead only to lose it just prior to the half. But in the third quarter Highland scored twice to Rhinebeck's one and was never seriously threatened afterwards.

Highland's Barrington and Rhinebeck's Connell scored 20 apiece to lead all tallies. The game was played in Rhinebeck.

Highland Jayvees defeated Rhinebeck Jayvees 50-49 in overtime.

Season Opens Insko Wins

The 5-foot-5 Insko took up where he left off last season when he won the 1967 driving championship at Roosevelt.

After scoring with Jay Martin, $3.60, in the fourth race, Insko brought home Little Kitty Clay, $17, in the $15,000 Winter Wonderland Pace and got his third in a row with Del Hi's Boy, $7.40, in the sixth.

Insko gave a masterful exhibition of his driving skill in getting Little Kitty Clay home by a nose over Amphion in the Winter Wonderland.

Fifth at the head of the stretch, Insko burst between horses in the stretch and won in the last stride in a four-horse photo finish. Just a nose, a neck, and another nose separated the first four finishers.

"I didn't know we have won it until the official sign went up," Insko said afterwards.

Behind Amphion, was Yankee Mick. Nevele Way, the 8-5 favorite reined by Stanley Dancer, finished fourth after leading until midstretch in the 2:03 3-5 mile.

A crowd of 19,410 welcomed back the trotters and pacers after a three-week lapse from the Dec. 15 end of the 1967 season. The temperature was near freezing and there was a threat of snow. There was no wind, however, and Insko said it "wild mild" on the track.

Football Cards Paradise Gets A Slight Jolt

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Head Coach Charley Winner says the St. Louis Cardinals have one of the finest coaching staffs in the National Football League, but the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says the players don't agree.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch said eight players were fined an estimated total of $3,200 for missing a bed check when the team was in New York for the final game of the season against the Giants. The Giants won the game 37-14.

The Globe-Democrat then charged in its editions today that the players had missed the bedcheck on purpose. The newspaper said the Cardinals are in the midst of widespread player dissatisfaction with the coaches, the management and fellow players.

But Winner refused to comment on the stories. He was in Mobile, Ala., scouting the Senior Bowl game.

"I mean anything that happens on our ball club is a closed affair between the coaches and players and there's nothing to say about it," Winner remarked. He then praised his coaching staff.

But the toughest problem on the club, which finished with a 6-7-1 record, according to the Globe-Democrat, is the unhappiness of Negro athletes with an assistant coach and with fellow players. Every Negro on the club attended a three-hour meeting at which their complaints were aired, the newspaper said.

Later in the week the players gave Winner a two-page letter outlining their grievances and demands. The Globe-Democrat said many of the demands "were not unlike those being fought for by civil rights groups around the country."

Today is Thursday, January 4, the fourth day of 1968. There are 362 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1790, George Washington delivered the first annual presidential message.

On this date:
In 1642, the English mathematician who discovered the law of gravity, Sir Isaac Newton, was born.

In 1896, Utah was admitted to the Union as the 45th state.

In 1936, the Nazis ordered military training for the children of Germany.

In 1948, Britain granted independence to Burma.

Ten years ago—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan proposed that the Western powers seek a pact of nonaggression with the Soviet Union.

Five years ago — The United Nations said it was discontinuing news broadcasts to Hungary. They had been started after the unsuccessful Hungarian revolt seven years earlier.

One year ago—Eight art masterpieces worth $7 million were returned to a London art gallery four days after they had been stolen.

Drug Charge

Charged with possessing a dangerous drug, fourth degree, James Dismuke, 17, of Winlake Avenue, Poughkeepsie, was arrested Wednesday by Town of Poughkeepsie Police. The youth was arraigned by the arresting officer, Detective Charles Mittelstaedt, before Town Justice Lyle B. Quick and the case was adjourned for hearing. Dismuke was released pending disposition of the charge.

VFW Cubs Mark Holiday With Skits, Awards

Cub Pack 19, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, held its holiday pack meeting at the VFW home on Delaware Avenue, with Den 2 presenting the opening exercise concerning the meaning of Christmas. Santa's Annual Visit was a skit read by William Ralff. Den 1 led the entire assembly in the singing of carols, while Den 3 conducted the closing program, after which refreshments were served.

Awards were presented to the Cub Scouts as follows:

A. H. Wicks Kentucky Colonel

Arthur H. Wicks, who for 30 years served as Senator from this state senatorial district, may now be addressed as Colonel Wicks as well as Senator Wicks.

Announcement was made Wednesday by Gov. Louis B. Nunn of Kentucky that he has conferred on Sen. Wicks the honorary title of Kentucky Colonel.

Colonel Wicks, who received the honor at his winter home in Terra Mar Island, Pompano Beach, Fla., observed his 80th birthday Dec. 24. He was born in New York City and at an early age moved to Ulster County.

During his terms as senator and as a leader in county and state political affairs, he advocated many important policies including the New York State Thruway, the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge and State University at New Paltz.

SUCCEEDS ACKLEY — Arthur M. Okun, 39, shown at a news conference in Washington has been named by President Johnson to be chairman of his Council of Economic Advisors, succeeding Gardner Ackley. Okun, a member of the council since 1964 and a former Yale economics professor, will be the youngest chairman in the history of the nation's top economic post. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Pleasing Design

Price Correction
The price on Morrell smoked sliced beef advertised by the Gov. Clinton Market, 777 Broadway in Wednesday's Free-Press should have been three three-ounce packages for 89 cents instead of 3-ounce packages for 89 cents.

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — A uniform and into its building design, says Joe Selame, is like a girl. It helps if it's pretty. Selame's field is visual communications. He starts dressing up a business by giving it a trademark and carrying the design to the corporation's stationery, packages, signs, trucks, age.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Thursday, January 4, the fourth day of 1968. There are 362 days left in the year. Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1790, George Washington delivered the first annual presidential message.

On this date: In 1642, the English mathematician who discovered the law of gravity, Sir Isaac Newton, was born.

In 1896, Utah was admitted to the Union as the 45th state.

In 1921, the Rockefeller Foundation announced that yellow fever had been wiped out in Ecuador.

In 1936, the Nazis ordered military training for the children of Germany.

In 1946, Gen. Douglas MacArthur invited 30 prominent American educators to help set up a democratic school system in occupied Japan.

In 1948, Britain granted independence to Burma.

Ten years ago—British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan proposed that the Western powers seek a pact of nonaggression with the Soviet Union.

Five years ago—The United Nations said it was discontinuing news broadcasts to Hungary. They had been started after the unsuccessful Hungarian revolt seven years earlier.

One year ago—Eight art masterpieces worth $7 million were returned to a London art gallery four days after they had been stolen.

Drug Charge

Charged with possessing a dangerous drug, fourth degree, James Dismuke, 17, of Winlake Avenue, Poughkeepsie, was arrested Wednesday by Town of Poughkeepsie Police. The youth was arraigned by the arresting officer, Detective Charles Mittelstaedt, before Town Justice Lyle B. Quick and the case was adjourned for hearing. Dismuke was released pending disposition of the charge.

VFW Cubs Mark Holiday With Skits, Awards

Cub Pack 19, sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, held its holiday pack meeting at the VFW home on Delaware Avenue, with Den 2 presenting the opening exercise concerning the meaning of Christmas. Santa's Annual Visit was a skit read by William Ralff. Den 1 led the entire assembly in the singing of carols, while Den 3 conducted the closing program, after which refreshments were served.

Awards were presented to the Cub Scouts as follows:

Named State

Ponce de Leon, who discovered it on Easter Sunday, gave Florida its name. The Spanish name he gave it was "Pascua Florida," meaning "fast of flowers."

One year pins with perfect attendance bars to Gary LaConte and Donald VanEtten; one year pins to Kevin Hotelling, Mark Modica, and Samuel McCubrey; also one year pin and perfect attendance bar to Den Mother June LaConte; two year pin to David Lawson and Douglas Lawson.

Cub Pack 19 also visited the city infirmary and sang carols to the residents.

HOW DO YOU FIND A BUYER WHEN YOU HAVE SOMETHING TO SELL?

Basically, it is a rather simple problem in communications.

Whether you are a home owner with one item for which you have no further need, or a businessman with a large stock to dispose of, you need a low cost means of conveying your offer to sell to a large number of people. Once the public is notified of your offer, as if by magic, a buyer (or many buyers) will emerge.

To contact all of your prospective buyers one at a time is a hopeless (and very expensive) task. To reach many thousands of them in one stroke is easy.

All you need do is to place a low cost FREEMAN FAST ACTION Want Ad. Your ad will appear in a proven marketplace, where advertisers get quick response. It is the quick, easy, inexpensive way to find the buyer or buyers you are looking for.

Dial Direct 338-0606. The Ad-Visor who answers will be prepared to answer your questions and help you word your ad for best response.

Dear Abby

Hunting for Strange Game

(© 1967 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: What would you think if your husband could hardly wait for the hunting season to open. And then he took off in the middle of the night for a four-day hunting trip and forgot his rifle? I thank you.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: I would think that he did not intend to

DEAR ABBY: I am a 65-year-old woman, facing eye surgery which could cost me my eye sight, but that is not my problem. My problem is my 41-year-old daughter. She is married and lives in the same town, but I have not been able to contact her or see my grandchildren for five years.

My daughter started growing distant toward me when her husband was promoted and they moved into a fine big home. Then she broke off with me completely. When I call her house her maid says she is not in. I have left my number, but she never calls me back. When I call my son-in-law at his office, his secretary gives me the same story. I have written letters to her, but she never answers. On Mother's day and Christmas I never hear from her.

When I made my first visit to the doctor's office after my first baby was born the nurse motioned to me, and said, "You're next, Mother." I knew she wasn't addressing me as HER mother. Suddenly I realized that she addressed all of us with children as "Mother." Immediately my vision was broadened, and I came to understand that "Mother" applied to all women with children. That was the moment I was lifted out of the narrow rut of thinking that the title belonged only to my own mother.

I soon put this knowledge to practice. When I wanted to attract the attention of friends, neighbors, or even strangers, I would say, "Mother, watch your little one." You'd be surprised how quickly they reacted, having been reminded that they were mothers. The title is rightly theirs, and never interfered with the special meaning it held for my own dear mother. If we would use the term freely, the next generation would learn from our example and thus alleviate a sticky problem.

Thank you for the privilege of sharing these thoughts with you.

"A" OF ALABAMA

Dear "A": And thank you for having shared them.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR

It's In The Stars —

(The wise man controls his destiny... astrology points the way.)

FORECAST FOR Friday, January 5, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): In any gathering with co-workers be wary of one who is ultra-temperamental. Be poised. Uphold principles without becoming involved in argument. Key is moderation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Be ready for surprises, announcements that may involve children. Keep balance. Don't be caught with guard down. Day features change, travel, variety, romantic excitement.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Conflict between comfort and requirements highlights day. Much of what was established is shaken up, torn down. Be ready with rebuilding plans. The unorthodox is featured.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Travel today could be fun but more expensive than you anticipate. Best move is to become familiar with surroundings. Don't feel you have to expand, move or change. Know where you are and why.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Strain indicated in area of chart related to marriage, partnership, close ties. Erratic transformations occur. Be ready for sudden action. Watch public relations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Break through opposition to main goal. Many around you may attempt upsetting techniques. Key to be ready. Take independent course. Be self-reliant, even selfish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Explosive situation could exist where emotions are concerned. You want to understand everything at once. Lack of patience could cause error in judgment. Act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your sense of security could be disturbed. Means status quo is shaken. Be versatile. Avoid fixed attitude. You can be on the move without losing possessions. Realize this. Get going.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoid needless journeys. Concentrate on finishing tasks at hand. Some are anxious to share gossip. This could cause emotional drain. Strive for greater maturity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Exercise caution where possessions are concerned. If impulsive, there could be loss. Know this and keep guard up. Protect yourself. Some want to part you from your money.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Check needs, desires of mate or partner. Domestic situation is spotlighted. If you show consideration minor crisis can be averted. Word to wise should be sufficient.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have cool exterior but are a passionate individual. You are creative and could travel and record your impressions. New activity and added social life due in upcoming year.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Shake-ups due to occur in leading organizations.

(To find out more about yourself and astrology, order Sydney Omarr's 50-page booklet, "The Truth About Astrology." Send 50 cents to Omarr Booklet (The Kingston Daily Freeman), Box 3240, Grand Central Station, New York, N. Y. 10017.)

DEAR LONELY: It seems highly unlikely that this is the whole story. But if it is, your daughter is heartless beyond belief. In any case, your only course is to accept the fact that she has chosen to ignore you. Put all thoughts of her out of your mind as best you can. Not an easy pill to swallow, but it's better than consuming yourself with the pain and sorrow that now dominate your life.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to help all "young marrieds" who find it difficult to address their husbands' mothers as "Mother".

Opening lead—♦ Q

Our favorite hand of this type for 1967 occurred in a New York City mixed pair, Connecticut bridge teacher Sally Johnson sat East and Oswald Jacoby West.

We don't really recommend West's overall, even though one of us did make it. (Jim says, "The older my father gets, the more he likes to bid.") Anyway the overall didn't keep South from arriving at three no-trump. He could have made his contract against any defense at all and would have made it easily without the actual defense that faced him.

The queen of diamonds lead was normal. Mrs. Johnson covered her partner's queen with the king. South took his ace and played ace and another heart. Dummy's jack lost to East's king and the three of spades was led.

South ducked and Jacoby was in with the queen. It was now up to him to make a key play and he did. He was sure his partner had started with exactly three diamonds. If she had only two, then South would have five, if she held four she would not have played the king. Where was the ten of diamonds in that case? In the East hand. Sally would not have played the king from king and two small.

Jacoby led his nine of diamonds and Mrs. Johnson was careful to put on the ten. Then she led her deuce of spades. South went up with the ace, entered dummy with a club, played the queen of hearts, cashed the rest of his clubs when the ten of hearts failed to drop and settled for down one. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

BARBS

By PHIL PASTORET

Don't knock the other fellow's fraternal affiliation—your outfit has no monopoly on sincerity. The boss whose employees work for him might profitably wonder how to get them to work with him.

Our wolf in residence can't wait for Friday to get his play check.

Our neighbor promises to not drink any more in the new year, and he's going to have one heck of a time limiting himself to last year's gargantuan quantities of booze.

Puzzle: What do professional date-stuffers do from one Christmas season to the next? (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

One of those fascinating short items in our favorite paper states that puppet shows have "probably been seen by more people in a 20-year period on television than all the audiences such shows attracted in the past 2,000 years!" No comment.

Some folks swear by their horoscope—others, at it.

The bright, young executive on his way up should keep in mind that it's possible to run out of ladder.

Friend says his girl is like a Christmas cookie—sweet, but nutty.

Everyone has troubles. If Congress continues on its economy kick, Peace Corps' Sargent Shriver may well be bustled to buck private.

Some folks go to Las Vegas to gamble—most of us just continue to buck rush-hour traffic.

Dear Abby

Hunting for Strange Game

(© 1967 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)
DEAR ABBY: What would you think if your husband could hardly wait for the hunting season to open. And then he took off in the middle of the night for a four-day hunting trip and forgot his rifle? I thank you.
WONDERING
DEAR WONDERING: I would think that he did not intend to shoot whatever it was that he set out to hunt.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 65-year-old woman, facing eye surgery which could cost me my eye sight, but that is not my problem. My problem is my 41-year-old daughter. She is married and lives in the same town, but I have not been able to contact her or see my grandchildren for five years.

My daughter started growing distant toward me when her husband was promoted and they moved into a fine big home. Then she broke off with me completely. When I call her house her maid says she is not in. I have left my number, but she never calls me back. When I call my son-in-law at his office, his secretary gives me the same story. I have written letters to her, but she never answers. On Mother's day and Christmas I never hear from her.

When I made my first visit to the doctor's office after my first baby was born the nurse motioned to me, and said, "You're next, Mother." I knew she wasn't addressing me as HER mother. Suddenly I realized that she addressed all of us with children as "Mother." Immediately my vision was broadened, and I came to understand that "Mother" applied to all women with children. That was the moment I was lifted out of the narrow rut of thinking that the title belonged only to my own mother.

I am not a drunk or a dope and have done nothing to make her ashamed of me. I go to church and have never interfered in her life. My husband (her father) deserted us when she was a child, so I went to work and gave her a good home and put her thru college.

I have spoken with my minister, and hers, too, and they both tell me their hands are tied and their authority is limited. Please tell me what to do. Life isn't worth living anymore.

LONELY IN GREENVILLE, N. C.

DEAR LONELY: It seems highly unlikely that this is the whole story. But if it is, your daughter is heartless beyond belief. In any case, your only course is to accept the fact that she has chosen to ignore you. Put all thoughts of her out of your mind as best you can. Not an easy pill to swallow, but it's better than consuming yourself with the pain and sorrow that now dominate your life.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to help all "young marrieds" who find it difficult to address their husbands' mothers as "Mother".

I soon put this knowledge to practice. When I wanted to attract the attention of friends, neighbors, or even strangers, I would say, "Mother, watch your little one." You'd be surprised how quickly they reacted, having been reminded that they were mothers. The title is rightly theirs, and never interfered with the special meaning it held for my own dear mother. If we would use the term freely, the next generation would learn from our example and thus alleviate a sticky problem.

Thank you for the privilege of sharing these thoughts with you.

"A" OF ALABAMA
Dear "A": And thank you for having shared them.

Horoscope By SYDNEY OMARR It's In The Stars —

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR Friday, January 5, 1967

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 19): In any gathering with co-workers be wary of one who is ultra-temperamental. Be poised. Uphold principles without becoming involved in argument. Key is moderation.

TAURUS (Apr. 20-May 20): Be ready for surprises, announcements that may involve children. Keep balance. Don't be caught with guard down. Day features change, travel, variety, romantic excitement.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Conflict between comfort and requirements highlights day. Much of what was established is shaken up, torn down. Be ready with rebuilding plans. The unorthodox is featured.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Travel today could be fun but more expensive than you anticipate. Best move is to become familiar with surroundings. Don't feel you have to expand, move or change. Know where you are and why.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Interest in unusual subjects is emphasized. You find things out, especially about legacies, hidden assets. Money and where to get it is major subject. You get answers today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Strain indicated in area of chart related to marriage, partnership, close ties. Erratic transformations occur. Be ready for sudden action. Watch public relations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Break through opposition to main goal. Many around you may attempt upsetting techniques. Key to be ready. Take independent course. Be self-reliant, even selfish.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Explosive situation could exist where emotions are concerned. You want to understand everything at once. Lack of patience could cause error in judgment. Act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your sense of security could be disturbed. Means status quo is shaken. Be versatile. Avoid fixed attitude. You can be on the move without losing possessions. Realize this. Get going.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Avoids needless journeys. Concentrate on finishing tasks at hand. Some are anxious to share gossip. This could cause emotional drain. Strive for greater maturity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Exercise caution where possessions are concerned. If impulsive, there could be loss. Know this and keep guard up. Protect yourself. Some want to part you from your money.

PISCES (Feb. 19-Mar. 20): Check needs, desires of mate or partner. Domestic situation is spotlighted. If you show consideration minor crisis can be averted. Word to wise should be sufficient.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have cool exterior but are a passionate individual. You are creative and could travel and record your impressions. New activity and added social life due in upcoming year.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Shake-ups due to occur in leadership organizations.

Good defense may merely be a matter of individual brilliance. Really expert defense requires co-operation of both partners and mutual confidence.

Our favorite hand of this type for 1967 occurred in a New York City mixed pair. Connecticut bridge teacher Sally Johnson sat East and Oswald Jacoby West.

We don't really recommend West's overall, even though one of us did make it. (Jim says, "The older my father gets, the more he likes to bid.") Anyway the overall didn't keep South from arriving at three no-trump. He could have made his contract against any defense at all and would have made it easily without the actual defense that faced him.

The queen of diamonds lead was normal. Mrs. Johnson covered her partner's queen with the king. South took his ace and played ace and another heart. Dummy's jack lost to East's king and the three of spades was led.

South ducked and Jacoby was in with the queen. It was now up to him to make a key play and he did. He was sure his partner had started with exactly three diamonds. If she had only two, then South would have five, if she held four she would not have played the king. Where was the ten of diamonds in that case? In the East hand. Sally would not have played the king from king and two small.

One of those fascinating short items in our favorite paper states that puppet shows have "probably been seen by more people in a 20-year period on television than all the audiences such shows attracted in the past 2,000 years!" No comment.

Some folks swear by their horoscope—others, at it.

The bright, young executive on his way up should keep in mind that it's possible to run out of ladder.

'Music Hall' Show Excels

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Music Hall," NBC's weekly Wednesday night variety show, tried something different this week and, as most programs in this series do, it turned out very well. There were three musical acts, each vastly different from the other, and each in turn had many minutes in the spotlight.

First there was Nancy Wilson, an attractive young singer, in an assortment of night-club type songs.

Then there was Victor Borge, who as usual was vastly amusing as he clowning in familiar style around the keyboard and, also as usual, never quite satisfied the audience's desire to hear him play the piano more. And he plays the piano superbly.

All Very Effective
Perhaps most impressive of all was the young team of Simon and Garfunkel who sang, for the most part, their own hauntingly beautiful ballads.

Only at the very end were the stars together on stage, and then for a few lines of a song. It was all very effective. The settings were handsome and the mood quiet and easy.

Simon and Garfunkel are just one of many young performers who are currently enchanting audiences of all ages. They are two earnest young men who, without any props except Simon's guitar, can climb on any makeshift stage or stand in the center of an elaborate TV set and weave their musical spell.

Peter Noone, whose Herman's Hermits will be seen in a half hour musical documentary next Tuesday night on NBC, remarked recently that although the Beatles are generally credited with opening up the field for young musicians and launching the new sounds and new beats, it was really kicked off by Englishmen inspired by America's Elvis Presley, then an international rage among the teenagers.

"The sound really started as an American sound," said the 20-year-old Noone who is the Herman of the British quartet. Presley even started the mod look—remember his long hair and sideburns? Most of us stuck with instruments like the guitar, drums, bass and piano because we couldn't afford to have somebody like a saxophone player who couldn't sing and play."

Noone was 15 when with some Manchester schoolmates he formed a singing group. They performed in small clubs and gatherings around the English city trying to pick up a few bob wherever they could.

Made the Easy Way
"Pete Novak and the Heartbeats"—Noone then was Novak—became Herman's Hermits "because we decided to find the most unusual name in the world. What the name did not achieve, one hit record did. Now

'Music Hall' Show Excels

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Music Hall," NBC's weekly Wednesday night variety show, tried something different this week and, as most programs in this series do, it turned out very well. There were three musical acts, each vastly different from the other, and each in turn had many minutes in the spotlight.

First there was Nancy Wilson, an attractive young singer, in an assortment of night-club type songs.

Then there was Victor Borge, who as usual was vastly amusing as he clowning in familiar style around the keyboard and, also as usual, never quite satisfied the audience's desire to hear him play the piano superbly.

All Very Effective

Perhaps most impressive of all was the young team of Simon and Garfunkel who sang, for the most part, their own hauntingly beautiful ballads.

Only at the very end were the stars together on stage, and then for a few lines of a song. It was all very effective. The settings were handsome and the mood quiet and easy.

Simon and Garfunkel are just one of many young performers who are currently enchanting audiences of all ages. They are two earnest young men who, without any props except Simon's guitar, can climb on any makeshift stage or stand in the center of an elaborate TV set and weave their musical spell.

Peter Noone, whose Herman's Hermitage will be seen in a half hour musical documentary next

Tuesday night on NBC, remarked recently that although the Beatles are generally credited with opening up the field for young musicians and launching the new sound and new beats, it was really kicked off by Englishmen inspired by America's Elvis Presley, then an international rage among the teenagers.

"The sound really started as an American sound," said the 20-year-old Noone who is the Herman of the British quartet.
Presley even started the mod look—remember his long hair and sideburns? Most of us stuck with instruments like the guitar, drums, bass and piano because we couldn't afford to have somebody like a saxophone player who couldn't sing and play."

Noone was 15 when with some Manchester schoolmates he formed a singing group. They performed in small clubs and gatherings around the English city trying to pick up a few bobs wherever they could.

Made the Easy Way

"Pete Novak and the Heartbeats"—Noone then was Novak —became Herman's Hermitage —because we decided to find the most unusual name in the world. What the name did not achieve, one hit record did. Now the boys comprise one of the best known groups, travel the world, play to jammed audiences and, not incidentally, make a lot of money.

Noone and his fellow musicians will be seen in a half-hour television show Tuesday which is made the easy way. A crew and cameras merely photographed Herman and the Hermits at work one night last fall when they were giving a concert for 40,000 at the Ohio State Fair.
Then the film was edited to fit the time spot.

"We didn't have to do anything about it," Noone said.
"Not even fuss about makeup or clothes."

Yanks Pursue Viet Reds, Enemy Toll 400 Since Truce

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. infantrymen today pursued North Vietnamese troops that tried to overrun three American bases near Da Nang, and the Communist death toll in South Vietnam's five northern provinces climbed to at least 400 since the New Year's truce ended Tuesday.

The North Vietnamese kept up heavy machine gun fire at American helicopters moving troops and supplies into the Que Son Valley south of Da Nang. One helicopter was shot down today, making a total of five downed in two days. The crew was rescued, and U.S. fighter-bombers tried to knock out the enemy guns.

Brig. Gen. Charles Ryder, assistant commander of the Americal Division, said his troops killed "about 300" enemy troops, including 241 in attempts to seize Landing Zones Ross and Leslie in the valley about 25 miles southwest of Da Nang. The other attack Wednesday was against nearby Landing Zone West.

Ryder said he believes the North Vietnamese "may be regrouping and I fully expect them to continue the attack."

Two of his companies patrolling were attacked early today, but reports of the action were sketchy.

Two of the Que Son Valley bases came under sporadic mortar attack during the night, and the Americans fired thousands of mortar and artillery rounds.

Delayed reports from other parts of the 1st Corps area—the five northernmost provinces—listed 111 Communists killed.

A platoon of U.S. soldiers bolstered by a squad of Marines said about 25 Viet Cong riflemen opened up on them Wednesday about 20 miles south of the Que Son Valley. The Americans said after beating back the initial attack, they surrounded a nearby Communist fortified village and attacked it, killing 51 enemy soldiers. They reported no American casualties.

Kill at Least 60
A South Vietnamese outpost in western Quang Tin Province lost contact with government headquarters for nearly a day, then reported today its forces killed at least 60 North Vietnamese regulars in a series of attacks Tuesday by two North Vietnamese battalions. U.S. helicopters helped with flare illumination and automatic weapons fire.

American casualties so far in the Que Son Valley fighting were put at 26 killed and 149 wounded. This brought American losses reported in the 1st Corps area since Tuesday to at least 44 killed and 228 wounded. The South Vietnamese reported moderate casualties in several battles.

U.S. officers said Communist plans for the assaults on the Que Son bases had been captured from the body of a North Vietnamese regimental commander killed Dec. 8 on a reconnaissance mission.

"Many documents indicated (the enemy) wanted this area back," Ryder said. "This has been his house. We had pushed him back into the hills."

Intelligence officers said a wounded prisoner captured Tuesday told questioners that about 1,000 North Vietnamese troops had come out of the mountains two nights before the attacks Wednesday.

B52s Active
In support of the Americal Division, eight-engine B52 bombers dropped tons of explosives Wednesday night and today on the east side of a mountain range west of Landing Zone Ross in an attempt to catch the enemy on supply and withdrawal routes.

B52s also made saturation raids today on suspected enemy infiltration routes 59 miles northwest of Saigon, near the U.S. 25th Infantry Division camp eight miles from the Cambodian border where enemy troops made repeated attacks Tuesday. U.S. officers reported 348 Communists and 23 Americans killed and 153 Americans wounded in that fighting, which began before the end of the New Year's cease-fire.

GI Deaths Up, Fewer Wounded

SAIGON (AP) — The number of Americans killed in the Vietnam War increased during Christmas week despite cease-fires proclaimed by both sides, but the number of wounded dropped sharply, the U.S. Command reported today.

South Vietnamese government casualties decreased slightly, the number of enemy killed dropped, but those of other allied forces increased over the totals reported the week before.

The U.S. Command said 185 Americans were killed in action last week, compared with 166 the week before. The number of wounded was 437 last week, compared with 1,361 the previous week.

Of the 437 wounded, the U.S. Command said, 130 did not require hospitalization.

The new totals raised to 15,997 the number of Americans killed in action in the Vietnam war and the number of wounded to 99,742. Another 878 Americans are listed as missing or captured.

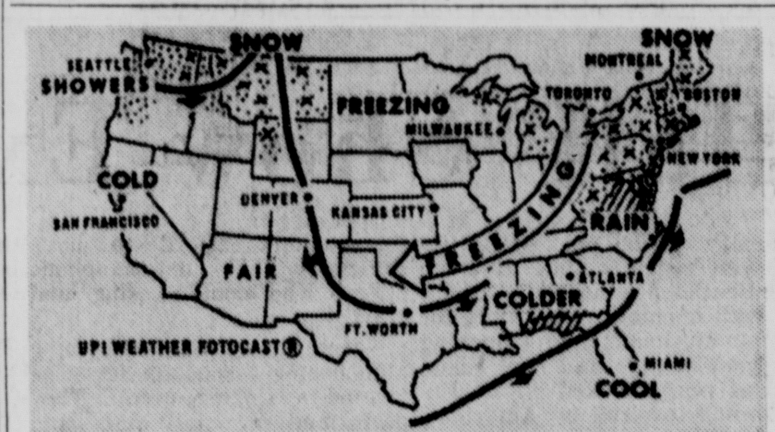

More than half the American combat casualties were recorded in 1967: 9,353 killed and 72,209 wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 227 government troops killed last week, 556 wounded and 63 missing. The previous week 234 were reported killed, 629 wounded and 26 missing.

Other allied forces reported 37 men killed last week and 47 wounded, compared with 20 killed and 34 wounded a week earlier. None was listed as missing.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands reported a total of 1,438 enemy killed last week, down from a readjusted total of 1,674 a week earlier. Of the combined count for last week, 815 enemy were reported killed by South Vietnamese forces and 623 by U.S. and other allied forces.

The U.S. Command said American military strength in South Vietnam climbed to 486,000 last week, up 8,000 from the 478,000 reported a week earlier.

For Period Ending 7 a. m. EST Friday

During tonight, snow and snow flurries are forecast for New England, and mid-Atlantic coastal states, most of the Appalachians, the lower and also in portions of the upper Great Lakes, as well as in the northern Plateaus. More Gloom: 4-6 Inches of Snow

Although Ulster County was not subjected to the predicted sleet and freezing rain yesterday the forecast of four to six inches of snow still holds.

Flurries started at 7 a. m. today with snowfall becoming heavier as the morning progressed. The U.S. Weather Bureau, brushing the snow from its crystal ball, said the Hudson Valley and Catskills were in for the heaviest accumulation from the Dixie-born storm which swept into New York State early today.

To add insult to injury, forecasters see bitter cold coming in on Arctic air masses out of Canada as the storm passes by this evening. Temperatures rode the mid-20 mark in Kingston this morning.

Though overworked road crews and harassed commuters may cry the blues, the good word at Belleayre Ski Center is "beautiful." Up on the mountain, snow conditions are ideal with temperatures at 20 degrees, no wind and a 10 to 14 inch packed powder base to cushion the new accumulation of a predicted four to six inches.

Infant Is Killed

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — An infant boy was killed and his father and another man were injured Wednesday when two automobiles collided along Kenmore Avenue in suburban Tonawanda.

One-year-old Mark J. Szczypkowski of Tonawanda died in the crash. His father, Alfred, 25, and the other driver, Harold May, 47, of Cheektowaga, suffered minor head cuts, police said.

The Szczypkowski address is 58 Riverview Blvd. May lives at 191 Oehman Blvd.

New York State Lottery's new way to win money.

It's

SUPERPRIZE

The Superprize drawing will be held in March 1968 as a bonus drawing.

Since the first Lottery drawing, 200 extra tickets have been drawn each month for every million tickets sold. This will continue through March. The names of these ticket holders have not been disclosed. From these tickets, and the tickets of the monthly consolation prize winners, the Superprize winners will be drawn.

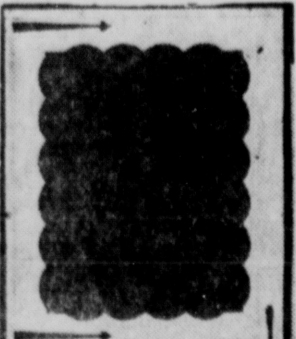

Each ticket holder has a chance at a Superprize of $250,000. And a raft of $15,000 prizes, $7,500 prizes and $2,500 prizes. And depending on how many more tickets will be sold between now and March the number of prizes will go up.

So, the more tickets you buy the better your chances are of winning. Not only the monthly Lottery but the Superprize too. That's the really nice thing about the Lottery, there's always another chance to win.

More Gloom: 4-6 Inches of Snow

Although Ulster County was not subjected to the predicted sleet and freezing rain yesterday the forecast of four to six inches of snow still holds.

Flurries started at 7 a. m. today with snowfall becoming heavier as the morning progressed. The U.S. Weather Bureau, brushing the snow from its crystal ball, said the Hudson Valley and Catskills were in for the heaviest accumulation from the Dixie-born storm which swept into New York State early today.

To add insult to injury, forecasters see bitter cold coming in on Arctic air masses out of Canada as the storm passes by this evening. Temperatures rode the mid-20 mark in Kingston this morning.

Though overworked road crews and harassed commuters may cry the blues, the good word at Belleayre Ski Center is "beautiful." Up on the mountain, snow conditions are ideal with temperatures at 20 degrees, no wind and a 10 to 14 inch packed powder base to cushion the new accumulation of a predicted four to six inches.

Infant Is Killed

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — An infant boy was killed and his father and another man were injured Wednesday when two automobiles collided along Kenmore Avenue in suburban Tonawanda.

One-year-old Mark J. Szczyp-kowski of Tonawanda died in the crash. His father, Alfred, 25, and the other driver, Harold May, 47, of Cheektowaga, suffered minor head cuts, police said.

The Szczypkowski address is 58 Riverview Blvd. May lives at 191 Oehman Blvd.

GI Deaths Up, Fewer Wounded

SAIGON (AP) — The number of Americans killed in the Vietnam War increased during Christmas week despite cease-fires proclaimed by both sides, but the number of wounded dropped sharply, the U.S. Command reported today.

South Vietnamese government casualties decreased slightly, the number of enemy killed dropped, but those of other allied forces increased over the totals reported the week before. The U.S. Command said 185 Americans were killed in action last week, compared with 166 the week before. The number of wounded was 437 last week, compared with 1,361 the previous week.

Of the 437 wounded, the U.S. Command said, 130 did not require hospitalization.

The new totals raised to 15,997 the number of Americans killed in action in the Vietnam war and the number of wounded to 99,742. Another 878 Americans are listed as missing or captured.

More than half the American combat casualties were recorded in 1967: 9,353 killed and 72,209 wounded.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 227 government troops killed last week, 556 wounded and 63 missing. The previous week 234 were reported killed, 629 wounded and 26 missing.

Other allied forces reported 37 men killed last week and 47 wounded, compared with 20 killed and 34 wounded a week earlier. None was listed as missing.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands reported a total of 1,438 enemy killed last week, down from a readjusted total of 1,674 a week earlier. Of the combined count for last week, 815 enemy were reported killed by South Vietnamese forces and 623 by U.S. and other allied forces.

The U.S. Command said American military strength in South Vietnam climbed to 486,000 last week, up 8,000 from the 478,000 reported a week earlier.

For Period Ending 7 a. m. EST Friday

During tonight, snow and snow flurries are forecast for New England, and mid-Atlantic coastal states, most of the Appalachians, the lower and also in portions of the upper Great Lakes, as well in the northern Plateaus. Showers are expected for the northern Pacific coast, while rain is slated for the mid-Gulf coast. Clear to partly cloudy skies elsewhere. Colder readings are expected for most of the eastern third of the nation and the southern Plateaus. Moderating temperatures are forecast from the northern and central Plains to the Pacific Northwest and along the western slopes of the Rockies. Little temperature change is anticipated elsewhere. Minimum readings include: Atlanta 30; Boston 18; Chicago -10; Cleveland 5; Denver 17; Duluth -25; Ft. Worth 38; Jacksonville 45; Los Angeles 42; Miami 60; New York 17; San Francisco 35; Seattle 40; St. Louis 3; and Washington 20.

New York State Lottery's new way to win money.

It's

SUPERPRIZE

The Superprize drawing will be held in March 1968 as a bonus drawing.

Since the first Lottery drawing, 200 extra tickets have been drawn each month for every million tickets sold. This will continue through March. The names of these ticket holders have not been disclosed. From these tickets, and the tickets of the monthly consolation prize winners, the Superprize winners will be drawn.

Each ticket holder has a chance at a Superprize of $250,000. And a raft of $15,000 prizes, $7,500 prizes and $2,500 prizes. And depending on how many more tickets will be sold between now and March the number of prizes will go up.

So, the more tickets you buy the better your chances are of winning. Not only the monthly Lottery but the Superprize too. That's the really nice thing about the Lottery, there's always another chance to win.
